The Annual Review of Applied Linguistics, 1980 is the first volume in a series of annual reviews of this important field. Each year's volume will focus on different areas of applied linguistics and will contain state-of-the-art papers, annotated bibliographies of seminal works for that year and unannotated bibliographies of other key works in the field.

The purpose of the Annual Review of Applied Linguistics is to make recent scholarship more readily available to a broad audience and to provide a unifying context for all the areas of research and scholarship in applied linguistics. The series is under the General Editorship of Robert Kaplan.

The present volume reviews the fields of Bilingualism, Language Teaching/Learning: New Pedagogical Approaches and Texts, Psycholinguistics and Sociolinguistics.
