

Two Monographs Available from the Program for Biosocial Research

The Literature of Biopolitics, revised edition, 1980

Edited by Albert Somit, Steven A. Peterson, William D. Richardson, and David S. Goldfischer
DeKalb, Illinois: Program for Biosocial Research, Northern Illinois University. $3.00 postpaid.

The Literature of Biopolitics is a definitive bibliography of works by political scientists in the field of biopolitics covering the years 1963 to 1979. Entries are listed alphabetically by author, and they are organized into the several subfields that have evolved within biopolitics. Thus, the work provides an overall view of what has been written, and it reflects the internal structure of biopolitical scholarship. The alphabetical listing begins with an introductory essay, and each subfield listing includes an annotated guide to the literature in that area. The Literature of Biopolitics is a valuable guide to the research.

The Biology of Primate Sociopolitical Behavior

Edited by Glendon Schubert and Albert Somit
DeKalb, Illinois: Program for Biosocial Research, Northern Illinois University. 1982. $3.00 postpaid.

The Biology of Primate Sociopolitical Behavior is based on the proceedings of a symposium held at the Netherlands Institute for Advanced Study in the Humanities and Social Sciences. The symposium explores with creativity and imagination the implications that research on simian behavior has for the better understanding of human behavior. It focuses explicitly on political structure, blending the perspectives of the biological and the social sciences and the humanities as well.
