

Mark Nadel has been appointed Director of the Public Management Study Center of the Battelle Human Affairs Research Centers, Washington Operations. Nadel was formerly Group Director of the Program Analysis Division, U.S. General Accounting Office.

Lawrence K. Pettit, formerly Commissioner of Higher Education (Chancellor), Montana University System, has been appointed Assistant Commissioner for Senior Colleges and Universities, Coordinating Board, Texas College and University System.

Promotions

David B. Abernethy, professor, Stanford University.

Larry Berman, associate professor, University of California, Davis.

Steve Chan, associate professor, Texas A&M University.

George Edwards, professor, Texas A&M University.

Richard Eribes, associate professor of public affairs, Arizona State University.

Michael Gant, assistant professor, Texas A&M University.

Jerry Goldman, associate professor, Northwestern University.

Jerrold D. Green, assistant professor, University of Michigan.

Susan E. Howell, associate professor, University of New Orleans.

Thomas G. Ingersoll, associate professor, West Virginia University.

Charles Johnson, associate professor, Texas A&M University.

Ronald M. Labbe, professor, University of Southwestern Louisiana.

James Lester, assistant professor, Texas A&M University.

Sarah F. Liebschutz, professor, State University of New York, College at Brockport.

Lynn Mather, associate professor, Dartmouth College.

Michael McBride, professor, Whittier College.

Donald C. Menzel, professor, West Virginia University.

David W. Neubauer, professor, University of New Orleans.

Robert A. Packerham, professor, Stanford University.

Donald J. Reaves, assistant professor, Northeastern University.

James W. Sheffield, Jr., associate professor, Wichita State University.

Randolph M. Siverson, professor, University of California, Davis.

Paul M. Sniderman, professor, Stanford University.

L. A. Wilson II, associate professor of public affairs, Arizona State University.

Retirements

Paul P. Van Riper, Professor Emeritus, Texas A&M University.

Award Recipients

Russell Sage Scholars

Eleven social scientists have been named Russell Sage Scholars and Fellows for 1982. The Russell Sage Foundation is a national grant-making foundation and also New York City's oldest independent center for social science research.

Russell Sage Scholars are selected from a roster of the nation's distinguished social scientists. Russell Sage Fellows, who are younger postdoctoral researchers nominated by senior scholars in universities or research institutes, are selected in a national competition.

The appointments and research subjects are as follows:

Visiting Scholars

Samuel W. Bloom, a medical sociologist from Mount Sinai Medical Center, and author of the Russell Sage volume, The Doctor and His Patient: A Sociological Interpretation (1963). The development of sociology in medicine and the role of the sociologists in medical education.

Mariam Chamberlain, an economist and former program officer of the Ford Foundation. The status of women in higher education, including affirmative action, the role of single-sex institutions, and other issues.

Robert A. Kagan, a political scientist from the University of California (Berkeley), and author of the Russell Sage volume, Regulatory Justice: Implementing a Wage-Price Freeze (1978). Analysis of the use of discretion by police officers and by inspectors for administrative agencies.

Herbert Kaufman, a political scientist from the Brookings Institution and co-author (with Wallace S. Sayre) of an earlier Russell Sage work, Governing New York City (1960). A general theoretical analysis of the evolution of organizational behavior.

Howard Margolis, a political scientist at Massachusetts Institute of Technology and author of Selfishness, Altruism, and Rationality (Cambridge University Press, 1981). Analysis of cases in which political participants have taken positions that are not comprehensible by the logic of the situation or even their own interests.

William C. Pendleton, an economist on the staff of the National Institute for Dispute Resolution. Development of new programs to facilitate the resolution of conflicts in American society.

Max Singer, deputy director of the Hudson Institute. Research on risk analysis, with emphasis on the role of morale in contemporary risk policy and management.

Visiting Fellows

Natale Cipollina, a Ph.D. from Brandeis University and co-author (with Aaron Wildavsky) of The Politics of Mistrust: Estimating Oil and Gas Resources (Sage, 1981). The politics of reform in New York City, with emphasis on budgets, municipal unions, and fiscal crises.

Jack H. Knott, assistant professor at Michigan State University and author of A Zero-Base Look at Zero-Based Budgeting (Transaction Books, 1980), and also Managing the German Economy: Budgetary Politics in a Federal State (Lexington Books, 1981). The effectiveness of different strategies employed by governmental agencies in disseminating information.

David M. O'Brien, assistant professor at the University of Virginia and author of The Public's Right to Know: The Supreme Court and the First Amendment (Praeger, 1981). The dilemmas of due process in disputes over science policy.

John Witte, assistant professor at the University of Wisconsin and author of Democracy, Authority, and Alienation in Work: Worker Participation in an American Corporation (University of Chicago Press, 1980). The use of the federal tax code for achieving policy ends beyond raising revenues.

Beer Dissertation Prize

The 1982 winner of the British Politics Group's Samuel H. Beer Dissertation Prize is Beth Fuchs, who received her doctorate from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. Fuchs's dissertation, written under the supervision of Jeffrey Obler, was "Comparative Health Policy in Great Britain and the United States." Fuchs is currently working in Congressman Michael Lowry's office as an APSA Congressional Fellow.

By operationalizing indicators of humanism, Fuchs sought to develop an ethical framework to assess the National Health Service. One member of the prize committee commented that the "dissertation provides the best synthesis I have seen on comparing U.S. and U.K. health policy."

SSRC Award Winners

The Social Science Research Council has announced the awards for the International Doctoral Research Fellowships, the Postdoctoral Grants for International Research and the Doctoral Fellowships for Research in Employment and Training for the 1981-82 competition. The awardees are:

William H. Apfel, Ph.D. candidate in history, Brown University. Research in the United Kingdom on poverty and discontent among rural laborers in Norfolk, England, 1800-1830.

Noel D. Cary, Ph.D. candidate in history, University of California, Berkeley. Research in West Germany on the Catholic political psyche and the structure of German politics, 1900-1966.

Carol A. Mershon Connor, Ph.D. candidate in political science, Yale University. Research in Italy on industrial conflict, state enterprise, and the political consequences of strikes against state-owned firms.

Nancy J. Curtin, Ph.D. candidate in history, University of Wisconsin. Research in the United Kingdom and Ireland on mobilization and social composition of the United Irishmen in Ulster, 1791-1798.

Mark H. Lazerson, Ph.D. candidate in sociology, University of Wisconsin. Research in Italy on informalism and the implementation of the Italian Workers' Charter of 1970.

Jerry Z. Muller, Ph.D. candidate in history, Columbia University. Research in West Germany for a political and intellectual biography of Hans Freyer (1887-1969).

Jonas G. Pontusson, Ph.D. candidate in political science, University of California, Berkeley. Research in Sweden on class conflict and industrial adjustment.

Mary Ann Quinn, Ph.D. candidate in history, Cornell University. Research in France on property and justice in rural France, 1650-1850.

Michael S. Roth, Ph.D. candidate in history, Princeton University. Research in France on the resurgence of French Hegelianism from the 1930s through the post-war period.

Anthony E. Simpson, Ph.D. candidate in sociology, New York University. Research in the United Kingdom on detective operations and the origins of urban police agencies in London and Manchester.

Peter A. Swenson, Ph.D. candidate in political science, Yale University. Research in West Germany and Sweden on the development of the organizational structure of German and Swedish labor since 1965.

Peter W. White, Ph.D. candidate in political science, Columbia University. Research in the United Kingdom on international monetary relations and the political economy of change in the international monetary regime, 1933-1936.

Meta E. Zimmeck, Ph.D. candidate in history, State University of New York, Stony Brook. Research in the United Kingdom on the employment of women in the civil service, 1870-1925.

MacArthur Foundation Prize

The American Political Science Association Woodrow Wilson Foundation Book Award Winner John P. Gaventa of the Highlander Center, New Market, Tennessee, has been further honored by being named as one of twenty MacArthur Foundation Prize fellows. He will receive $32,800 this year and a total of $172,000 for five years.

The MacArthur Foundation, the third largest foundation in the United States, donates monies to individuals with no requirements on how the funds are to be used. The awards are given in the hope that the recipient is freed from financial burdens and can devote his time and efforts to furthering his research and broadening his intellectual creativity. Prize fellows are nominated without prior knowledge and the award comes as a complete surprise to them.

Gaventa is also the recipient of the V. O. Key book award of the Southern Political Science Association. (See story in News of the Profession section in this issue of PS.)

Travel Grant Recipients

Listed below are the 31 advanced foreign graduate students who were chosen by APSA to attend the 1981 Annual Meeting with funds provided for by the Institute of International Education (IIE) and the Asia Foundation. Monies provided by the Short-Term Enrichment Program (STEP) of IIE and by the Asia Foundation enabled foreign students attending institutions of higher education in the U.S. to travel to and participate in the Annual Meeting.

Syed Masoom Abidi, Pakistan; University of Hawaii.

Ahwar-Ul-Haq Ahady, Afghanistan; Northwestern University.

Keith A. Archer, Canada; Duke University.

Sanjib K. Baruah, India; University of Chicago.

Singma B. Basnyat, Nepal; George Washington University.

Colin Bennett, United Kingdom; University of Illinois.

Chou Feng-zse, Republic of China; Syracuse University.

Jonhui Joo, Korea; SUNY at Buffalo.

Owen Kahn, South Africa; University of California.

Mamadou Kante, Mali; Indiana University.

Hyungkook Kim, Korea; Duke University.

Jong Eun Lee, Korea; Kent State University.

Ariel Levite, Israel; Cornell University.

I-Chou Liu, Republic of China; University of Michigan.

Hudson Meadwell, Canada; Duke University.

Neil Mitchell, United Kingdom; Indiana University.

Yahya A. Muhaimin, Indonesia; Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Joshua Muvumba, Uganda; Harvard University.

Manju Parikh, India; University of Chicago.

Panos N. Partos, Greece; American University.

Dijana Plestina, Canada; University of California.

Philippe Le Prestre, France; Indiana University.

Abel K. Rai, Guyana; Indiana University.

Prakash Sarangi, India; University of Rochester.

Michael P. Simon, United Kingdom; University of Arizona.

Kaare Strom, Norway; Stanford University.

Zvi Uri Ullmann, Israel; Indiana University.

Patrick Utomi, Nigeria; Indiana University.

Kenneth K. Wong, Hong Kong; University of Chicago.

Tai-Shuenn Yang, Republic of China; Indiana University.

Yahia Zoubir, Algeria; American University.

Alpha Sigma Nu National Book Award

James M. Rhodes, associate professor of political science at Marquette University, won the 1980 Alpha Sigma Nu National Book Award for his book, The Hit- ler Movement: A Modern Millenarian Revolution (Stanford: The Hoover Institution Press). The award is given for the best book published in 1980 by faculty members in Jesuit Colleges and Universities, and it carries a $1,000 prize. Alpha Sigma Nu is the national Jesuit honorary society.

Newcomb Cleveland Prize

Robert Axelrod, University of Michigan, has won the Newcomb Cleveland Prize for an outstanding paper published in Science. The $5,000 award was given by the American Association for the Advancement of Science to Axelrod and his co-author, biologist William D. Hamilton, for their March 27, 1981 article on "The Evolution of Cooperation."

John M. Echols III Prize

The second annual John M. Echols III Prize in Public Policy Analysis was awarded to Karen Burke for her paper, "A Methodological Approach to the Determination of Risk." Honorable Mention was awarded to Teri Martin for her paper, "Policy Impacts of Federal Courts." The prize has been established in memory of the late John M. Echols III. Contributions to the fund which supports this memorial may be addressed to the University of Illinois Foundation, Box 4348, Chicago, Illinois 60680; checks should be marked for credit to the John M. Echols Memorial Fund.

Senior Fulbright Scholars Announced

Following are the names of United States political science scholars who have received senior Fulbright-Hays awards for 1981-82, with the countries in which they will lecture or conduct advanced research. The program, known officially as the Mutual Educational and Cultural Exchange Act, is administered by the Council for International Exchange of Scholars.

J. Theodore Anagnoson, assistant professor of political science, University of California at Santa Barbara; New Zealand.

Daniel J. Bloom, doctoral candidate in political science, Syracuse University; Venezuela.

Barbara Callaway, associate provost, Rutgers University at Newark; Nigeria.

Judith A. Chubb, assistant professor of political science, College of the Holy Cross; Italy.

John G. Corbett, assistant professor of public administration, Florida International University; Mexico.

Charles Dechert, professor of politics, Catholic University of America; Italy.

Richard L. Engstrom, professor of political science, University of New Orleans; Taiwan.

Elizabeth G. Ferris, assistant professor of political science, Miami University (Ohio); Mexico.

Joyce Gelb, associate professor of political science, City College of City University of New York; United Kingdom.

Kurt Glaser, professor of government, Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville; Taiwan.

Maure L. Goldschmidt, professor of political science, Reed College; Hong Kong.

Gilbert R. Gordon, associate professor of statistics, Baruch College of City University of New York; Turkey.

Charles W. Gossett, U.S. Office of Personnel Management (Washington); Swaziland.

Denis A. Goulet, professor of education for justice, University of Notre Dame; Mexico.

Daniel P. Gregory, associate professor of political science, El Camino College; Central African Republic.

Ted R. Gurr, professor of political science, Northwestern University; Australia.

Fred R. Harris, professor of political science, University of New Mexico; Mexico.

Darril Hudson, professor of political science, California State University at Hayward; West Germany.

Hans H. Indorf, director of Pacific symposium, National Defense University (Washington); Thailand.

Bernard Kolasa, associate professor of political science, University of Nebraska at Omaha; Poland.

Clifford E. Landers, associate professor and chairman of political science, Jersey City State College; Dominican Republic.

Victor T. Le Vine, professor of political science, Washington University (St. Louis); Cameroon.

Theodore J. Lowi, professor of American institutions, Cornell University; France.

Robert Q. Parks, assistant professor of political science, Elmira College; Japan.

Nelson M. Robinson, professor of political science, University of Tennessee at Knoxville; Brazil.

G. Sidney Silliman, associate professor of political science, Chaffey College; Philippines.

Michael K. Simpson, associate professor of political science, Utica College of Syracuse University; France.

W. Rand Smith, assistant professor of politics, Lake Forest College; France.

Evelyne H. Stephens, assistant professor of political science, College of the Holy Cross; Jamaica.

John D. Stephens, assistant professor of sociology, Brown University; Jamaica.

Philippa Strum, professor of political science, Brooklyn College of City University of New York; Turkey.

Eric M. Uslaner, associate professor of government and politics, University of Maryland at College Park; Israel.

Luis Valdes, associate professor of political science, Rollins College; Paraguay.

Donald E. Weatherbee, professor of international relations, University of South Carolina at Columbia; Singapore.

Marvin G. Weinbaum, associate professor of political science, University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign; Egypt.

Herbert F. Weiss, professor of political science, Brooklyn College of City University of New York; Turkey.

C. S. Whitaker, chairman and professor of political science, Rutgers University at Newark; Nigeria.

1981-82 Fulbright Awards to Graduate Students

Following are the names of United States political science graduate students who have received Fulbright-Hays awards for 1981-82 with their U.S. institutions and the countries in which they will study. The awards are administered by the Institute of International Education.

Alan Constantian, Bates College; West Germany.

Cathleen Fisher, Humboldt State University; West Germany.

John Floyd, University of Hawaii; Philippines.

Hope Haugen, Washington State University; West Germany.

James Helvey, III, Wake Forest University; West Germany.

Robin Hissong, at large, Virginia; Colombia.

Jeffrey McCredie, Eastern College; West Germany.

Carol Mershon, Yale University; Italy.

Althea Nagai, University of Chicago; Japan.

Kenneth Prince, Clemson University; West Germany.

Gary Sappington, University of Missouri at Columbia; West Germany.

Stephen Thoburn, Kalamazoo College; West Germany.

Brian Wynne, University of Scranton; West Germany.

Chester I. Barnard Award

Willard Price of the University of the Pacific has won the Chester I. Barnard Award for the outstanding article in volume four of the Southern Review of Public Administration. His article is titled, "The Distribution of Public Works Services: A Current Critique of Equity."

Serving on the Barnard Award Committee were: Steven Neuse, University of Arkansas, Chair; Donato J. Pugliese, Georgia State University; William Earle Klay, Florida State University; Catherine Burke, University of Southern California; Lenneal J. Henderson, Howard University; Robert B. Denhardt, University of Missouri; John Rouse, Ball State University; Merlin Hackbart, University of Kentucky; Gerald Gabris, Mississippi State University; and Thomas Williams, University of Alabama-Huntsville.

Tinker Foundation Grant

A University of Texas faculty member has been awarded a Tinker Foundation grant to study what conditions and factors tend to promote the appeal of leftist political parties for the urban poor.

Henry Dietz, associate professor of government, was awarded the postdoctoral research grant for the year 1982. He will study voting behavior of the urban poor in Lima, Peru.

Growth of Government Research Program

The British Social Science Research Council has awarded a five-year grant of £288,000 to Richard Rose of the Centre for the Study of Public Policy at the University of Strathclyde to study the growth of government in the United Kingdom since 1945. In consequence, Rose will leave his appointment as Head of the Politics Department at Strathclyde, and become fulltime director of the Centre on January 1, 1982.

The five-year study is intended to lead to seven book-length studies of the components of growth in government, its causes and consequences. In addition, there will be dozens of papers, many published as the research progresses under the imprint of the Centre for the Study of Public Policy. The papers will be authored by the four-person research team and by associated visiting fellows.

For further details, write Richard Rose, Director, Centre for the Study of Public Policy, McCance Building, University of Strathclyde, Glasgow, G1 1XQ, Scotland.

In Memoriam

D. B. Hardeman

(Editor's Note: A great friend of APSA, D. B. Hardeman, 67, died of a heart attack on December 3, 1981. "DB" was an aide to former House Speaker Sam Rayburn, and, in the words of The Washington Post, "became a legend as a mentor in the education of reporters, staff members and political scientists interested in the workings of Capitol Hill." "DB" was one of three honorary Congressional Fellows. The other two were Dean Acheson and Hubert H. Humphrey. The following tribute was delivered by Richard Fenno on April 25, 1980, in accepting the D. B. Hardeman Prize for the book Home Style.)

I'm not surprised that there is such a thing as a D. B. Hardeman Prize. Anyone who has ever been associated with "DB" would have associated him with a prize. But it surely is a surprise to find myself connected to it. And, I have to add, a special pleasure. Because in saying 'thank you,' I speak for a whole generation of students of the United States Congress whose understanding of that