The Medieval Economy and Society

An Economic History of Britain, 1100-1500

M. M. Postan

Relating demographic change to the occupation and use of land, Postan offers a revealing picture of medieval Britain. He describes the economic organization of the countryside and deals with the different classes of rural society. In addition, the book also focuses on the history of medieval commerce, the development of towns, and the institutions that regulated trade.

land grants made for service in the American Revolution.*

FEDERAL BOUNTY-LAND WARRANTS OF THE AMERICAN REVOLUTION by Clifford Neal Smith

This outstanding work is of particular interest to genealogical researchers seeking evidence of Revolutionary War services of ancestors.

The assignability of bounty-land warrants based on certificates of military service made possible a vigorous business in large-scale land speculation. This relatively neglected aspect of American land policy is thoroughly illuminated in Smith's book, clearly showing the identities of the major land speculators and the extent of their holdings.

This volume also provides much more information of great value: it lists bounty-land warrants exchanged for scrip, it provides exact tract descriptions for certain Ohio counties, it reveals the extent of political intervention in locating land grants, it includes "caveats" or warnings of fraudulent warrant cases.

THE ECONOMIC HISTORY ASSOCIATION

The Economic History Association was organized in 1940. Its purpose is to encourage research and teaching in the history of economic activity and of economic thought. It seeks to cooperate with societies devoted to the study of agricultural, industrial, and business history. It aims to bring together economists, historians, statisticians, geographers, and others who find that the story of economic change throws light on their field of interest or is enriched by their contribution. Membership is open to all who are interested in the history of economic life in all its phases in the United States and other countries.

THE JOURNAL OF ECONOMIC HISTORY is published for The Economic History Association by the Graduate School of Business Administration of New York University. Correspondence concerning contributions to the JOURNAL should be addressed to the editorial office: Nathan Rosenberg, Department of Economics, University of Wisconsin, Madison, Wisconsin 53706. Applications for membership should be addressed to Herman E. Krooss, Treasurer, in care of New York University, 100 Trinity Place, New York, New York 10006.
