A Memoir by N. G. L. HAMMOND. With a portrait. 7s. 6d. net

ARATOS OF SICYON

By F. W. WALBANK. 8s. 6d. net

Aratos of Sicyon, in himself one of the most fascinating figures Greece produced, is peculiarly significant for the understanding of the third century B.C., for the development of the Achaean League was inseparably connected with his life and character. The present book is the first separate study of him in English.

ELECTION BY LOT AT ATHENS

By J. W. HEADLAM (Sir James Headlam-Morley, C.B.E.)

Second Edition, by D. C. MACGREGOR. 7s. 6d. net

This Essay won the Prince Consort Prize in 1890 and very quickly obtained an international reputation. 'No writer,' wrote Dr Macan, 'has better understood and expressed the spirit of the Athenian democracy and its constitution.' 'Headlam,' writes Mr Macgregor, 'created a new obligation upon historians to treat the Lot, not as an insignificant oddity, but as an institution of fundamental importance in the study of Athenian democracy.' The present edition has a few corrections. The editor has written a Preface of some 20 pages and added a number of Notes.

ANCIENT ITALY AND MODERN RELIGION

By R. S. CONWAY. Illustrated. 10s. 6d. net

The proofs of this book were passed shortly before the author's death. It is his theme that the religion of the Italian peoples outside Rome contributed something to the common stock of ideas which Europe took over with the Christianity which it drew from Rome.

SOME ASPECTS OF THE LIFE AND WORK OF NIETZSCHE

Particularly of his connection with Greek Literature and Thought

By A. H. J. KNIGHT. 10s. 6d. net

An elucidation of the philosopher's final Weltanschauung and a discussion of his dependence on Greek literature and his belief in a kinship with the Greek spirit.
