

Molding Japanese Minds

The State in Everyday Life
Sheldon Garon

How has the Japanese government persuaded its citizens to save substantial portions of their incomes? And to care for the elderly within the family? What actually unites the Japanese to achieve so many economic and social goals that have eluded other polities? Here Sheldon Garon helps us to understand the intimate relationships everyday Japanese have with their government.

In a series of five compelling case studies, Garon demonstrates how average citizens have cooperated with government officials in the areas of welfare, prostitution, and household savings, and in controlling religious "cults" and promoting the political participation of women. In each case, we see Japanese citizens working closely with the state to recreate "community" and shape the thought and behavior of fellow citizens.

"As with any superb work of history, one finishes this book with a renewed appreciation of the complexity of the human condition, for this is not a simple story of control from the top."—Andrew Gordon, Harvard University

Puppets of Nostalgia

The Life, Death, and Rebirth of the Japanese Awaji Ningyō Tradition
Jane Marie Law

Puppets of Nostalgia is the first major work in any Western language to examine the ritual origins and religious dimensions of puppetry in Japan. In a lucid and engaging style Jane Marie Law describes the "life, death, and rebirth" of awaji ningyō shibai, the unique form of puppet theater of Awaji Island that has existed since the sixteenth century. Law conducted fieldwork on Awaji, located in Japan's Inland Sea, over a ten-year period.

Illustrated throughout with rare photographs, the book provides an in-depth view of a four-hundred-year-old tradition never so thoroughly revealed to Western readers. In addition to being a detailed history and ethnography of this ritual tradition, Law's work is, at a theoretical level, a study of the process and meaning of tradition formation, reformation, invention, and revitalization.

“By oscillating between scenes that are bland in their matter-of-fact concreteness and ones that are almost unbelievable in their nightmarish cruelty and complexity, Rae Yang skillfully evokes the bizarre and contradictory ‘revolutionary’ world in which she grew up in Mao’s China.”—Orville Schell, author of Mandate of Heaven

Contemporary South Asia

EDITORS

Gowher Rizvi and Robert Cassen,
Queen Elizabeth House, Oxford, UK

There is a growing realization that South Asia has to be both treated and studied as a region. Contemporary South Asia does just that. The purpose of the journal is to cultivate an awareness that South Asia is more than a sum of its parts: a fact of great importance not only to the states and peoples of the region, but to the world as a whole. It also addresses the major issues facing South Asia from a regional and interdisciplinary perspective.

Contemporary South Asia focuses on issues concerning the region that are not circumscribed by the national borders of the states. While national perspectives are not ignored, the journal's overriding purpose is to encourage scholars within South Asia and in the global community to search for means (both theoretical and practical) by which our understanding of the present problems of cooperation and confrontation in the region can be enhanced.

NOTES TO CONTRIBUTORS

Modern Asian Studies is concerned with the history, geography, politics, sociology, literature, economics and social anthropology of South Asia, South-East Asia, China and Japan. Contributions should be based on original research or field-work. Articles are peer reviewed and the review process is as expeditious as possible.

All articles (text, notes and references) must be clearly typed in double spacing throughout, including footnotes, on one side only of the paper—preferably A4. Two copies should be submitted. Spelling, dates, references and footnote numbers should be checked for accuracy. The use of diacritical marks, italics and capital letters should be kept to a minimum. References repeated in the footnotes should be by author and short title; or the Harvard system of citation may be used.

The title of the article and the author's name and affiliation should be typed on a separate page at the beginning of the article.

Tables should be clearly laid out and numbered consecutively. Vertical lines between columns should be omitted. All figures and totals should be checked for accuracy.

Maps and figures should be clearly legible in every detail. The spelling of place names should be consistent with that used in the text.

Every table, map and figure should have a title and at least one reference in the text to indicate its location.

When an article has been accepted for publication, the author is strongly encouraged to send a copy of the final version on computer disk (Apple Macintosh or IBM compatible PC) together with the hard copy typescript, giving details of the wordprocessing software used (Microsoft Word, Word or Word Perfect). However, the publisher reserves the right to typeset material by conventional means if an author's disk proves unsatisfactory.

First proofs only will be sent to the author who will be expected to return them to the Editor within three days. Excessive alterations and additions may be charged to the author.

Each author will receive twenty-five free offprints of his or her article and a copy of the part of the journal in which it appears.

Submission of an article will be taken to imply that it has not been previously published and that it is not on offer to any other publisher. In the interests of authors, copyright is normally assigned to Cambridge University Press. The Editor welcomes expression of all shades of opinion, but responsibility for them rests with their authors.

All correspondence should be addressed to Dr Gordon Johnson, Wolfson College, Cambridge CB3 9BB, England.
