COVER
Summer Shelter,
Greenwich Park,
London. A design
study by Andrew Carr.
See pp. 94–112.

leader	87	Habitat and inhabitant perspective	89	Looking Down Neena Verma design	94	The quick and the dead: temporality, temporal structure and the architectural chronotope Andrew Carr examines the temporality of architecture. He presents design studies exploring temporal structures and the architectural chronotope through the concepts of succession and duration.
theory	113	From Japanese tradition towards new subjectivity in the architecture of Kengo Kuma and Toyo Ito Kristina Fridh explores how the formation of mental processes creates new subjectivity in the architecture of Kengo Kuma and Toyo Ito, evoking uncompleted experiences of wonder, associated with Japanese cultural traditions.
history	131	Encounters with Socrates: architecture, dialogue and gesture in the Athenian Agora Samantha L. Martin-McAuliffe shows how philosophic dialogues situate Socrates around and within significant buildings in the Agora of Athens, thereby offering important clues to how the Greeks perceived and understood their civic realm.
	141	The art and architecture of Peter Yates and Gordon Ryder at Kenton, Newcastle upon Tyne Bob Giddings and Oliver Moss discuss the origins and legacy of Ryder and Yates's Kenton Bar Estate, Newcastle upon Tyne, examined as an innovative outcome of the relationship between art and architecture.
	155	Representing Korean architecture in the modern West: two Korean Pavilions from 1960s international expositions Hyon-Sob Kim considers two examples of modern representations of Korean architecture by Chung-Up Kim and Swoo-Geun Kim, at the 1964 New York World's Fair and the 1967 Montreal International Exposition respectively.
practice	171	The gendered attrition of architects in Australia Gill Matthewson collates and analyses data to delineate complex patterns of departure from the architecture profession using Australia as a case study.
education	183	Following John Hejduk's Fabrications: on imagination and reality in the architectural design process Jane Anderson and Colin Priest consider the work of John Hejduk, live projects, the subject/object problem and Thing Theory, in order to investigate the interaction between reality and imagination in the architectural design process.
review	193	The Practice Turn in Architecture: Brussels after 1968 by Isabelle Doucet reviewed by Hélène Frichot
