CONTENTS

SEPTEMBER-OCTOBER 1987
No. 260

PROTECTION AND ASSISTANCE

- Jean-Luc Blondel: Assistance to protected persons . . . . . 451

The unique nature of the Red Cross in situations of armed conflict resides in the combination of assistance and protection that it provides. These two concepts, which the author defines and examines from all angles, are and must remain inseparable if victims are to be defended, human life and dignity respected, unity within the Movement maintained and the long-term credibility of the Red Cross and Red Crescent preserved.

- Dr. Boško Jakovljević: The right to humanitarian assistance — Legal aspects . . . . . 469

The author reviews the rules and procedures relating to humanitarian assistance and the right to such assistance in time of armed conflict and in peacetime. He points out the advantages and the shortcomings of the present system and emphasizes the need for closer co-operation between the organizations involved in order to ensure that the principle of humanity is respected in all circumstances.

- Michael A. Meyer: Humanitarian action: a delicate balancing act 485

To what extent are non-governmental organizations able to provide humanitarian assistance, offer such assistance, or denounce grave violations of human rights? The author endeavours to answer these crucial questions through a detailed study of international legal instruments and the conditions that govern relief operations. He concludes that the compromise represented by international humanitarian law is the best we can expect.

447

Peter Macalister-Smith: Non-governmental organizations and co-ordination of humanitarian assistance . . . . . 501

Co-ordination of humanitarian assistance between intergovernmental and non-governmental organizations is a complex matter. The author delineates the responsibilities of the NGOs at the national and international levels, analyses the current co-ordination mechanisms and stresses the need for improvements.

André Aoun: The role and characteristics of an emergency mission . . . . . 509

This article deals with emergency missions carried out by National Societies — their objectives, the means required and the volunteers used.

INTERNATIONAL COMMITTEE OF THE RED CROSS

Rémi Russbach: The International Committee of the Red Cross and health . . . . . 513

It has been 10 years since the ICRC's Medical Division was created. The Chief Medical Officer describes the evolution of the Division's activities, with emphasis on how its programmes are adapted to needs and the problems involved in their implementation.

Official visits to the ICRC . . . . . 523

EXTERNAL ACTIVITIES:

Africa — Latin America — Asia — Middle East . . . . . 525

IN THE RED CROSS AND RED CRESCENT WORLD

Death of Mr. Enrique de la Mata . . . . . 533

Humanitarian aid and development in the Third World . . . . . 570

Extracts, in Arabic, from the International Review of the Red Cross . . . . . 576

The International Committee of the Red Cross (ICRC), together with the League of the Red Cross and Red Crescent Societies and the 145 recognized National Red Cross and Red Crescent Societies, is one of the three components of the International Red Cross and Red Crescent Movement.

An independent humanitarian institution, the ICRC is the founding body of the Red Cross. As a neutral intermediary in case of armed conflicts or disturbances, it endeavours on its own initiative or on the basis of the Geneva Conventions to protect and assist the victims of international and civil wars and of internal troubles and tensions, thereby contributing to peace in the world.

International Review of the Red Cross has been published, in French, under various titles, by the International Committee of the Red Cross (ICRC) since 1869. Its first complete edition in English was issued in 1961.

- As the official organ of the ICRC and the International Red Cross and Red Crescent Movement,
- specializing in international humanitarian law and ICRC doctrine,
- recording the international activities of the Red Cross, mainly for reference purpose, as a chronicle of events,

International Review of the Red Cross provides a constant flow of information and maintains the necessary link between the members of the International Red Cross and Red Crescent Movement.

International Review of the Red Cross appears once every two months in three languages:

in English: INTERNATIONAL REVIEW OF THE RED CROSS (from 1961)

in French: REVUE INTERNATIONALE DE LA CROIX-ROUGE

in Spanish: REVISTA INTERNACIONAL DE LA CRUZ ROJA (from 1976)

It also publishes, in German, a short edition, Extracts, of various articles which appear in the main editions.
