Cambridge Journals on Linguistics

Applied Psycholinguistics

A new international journal whose scope encompasses work both on normal and on disordered language and communicative functioning and development in adults and children. In addition to full length articles and shorter notes, a special feature of Applied Psycholinguistics is the Editor's Overview which serves an integrative function and helps readers keep abreast of major trends in the field.

£24.00 for Institutions £12.50 for individuals

Journal of Child Language

The journal publishes material on all aspects of the scientific study of language behaviour in children and the principles which underlie it. In addition to articles and book reviews, the journal contains a Notes and Discussion section, and from time to time an Observations section with short pieces of data illustrating points of general theoretical interest.

£29.00 for institutions £15.00 for individuals

Journal of Linguistics

The Journal of Linguistics is published on behalf of the Linguistics Association of Great Britain. It is concerned with all branches of linguistics, including phonetics. Preference is given to articles of general theoretical interest, but the journal covers as wide a field as possible, and includes articles on a variety of languages, as well as book reviews and a section devoted to comment arising from recent articles.

£17.00 for institutions

Language in Society

An international journal of sociolinguistics concerned with all branches of the study of speech and language as aspects of social life. In addition to original articles, the journal publishes book reviews, brief accounts of work in progress, and notes and comments on points arising out of recent publications.

£26.00 for institutions £13.50 for individuals

Language Teaching and Linguistics: Abstracts

This journal is compiled by the English-Teaching Information Centre of the British Council and the Centre for Information on Language Teaching and Research. It aims to keep teachers and others professionally concerned fully informed of the latest research and developments in the study and teaching of modern languages, including English as a second language.

£17.00 for institutions £9.50 for individuals

The English Language Division of the British Council and
the Centre for Information on Language Teaching and Research

The British Council's English Language Division and CILT are both concerned with collecting, collating and disseminating information: the former is concerned with all aspects of teaching English as a second or foreign language overseas, and CILT with modern languages (including English as a second language) and their teaching in Britain. The services of both centres are available to all who are professionally concerned – students, teachers, trainers of teachers, research workers, administrators or writers.

The British Council and CILT occupy adjacent accommodation and maintain jointly the Language-Teaching Library (about 22,000 volumes), where files of journals covered by Language Teaching & Linguistics: Abstracts may be consulted. The library contains an audio-visual section with facilities for hearing and viewing teaching materials. A register of relevant current research is available for reference.

In addition to joint publications such as this journal and A Language-Teaching Bibliography, each centre issues publications in its own name.
