

advances

in psychiatric treatment

From the Editor

- 81 Areas of uncertainty
Joe Bouch

Editorial

- 82 Why psychiatry should engage with the media
Claire Bithell

Articles

- 85 Case-based discussion
Nick Brown, Gareth Holsgrove & Sadira Teeluckdharry
- 91 Management of acute agitation in psychosis: an evidence-based approach in the USA
Justin J. Schleifer
- 101 Commentary Treatment of acute psychotic agitation: gaps in the evidence base
Steve Brown
- 104 Teaching medical undergraduates: the psychiatrist as medical teacher
Bennett Eng
- 110 Commentary Undergraduate psychiatry education: the challenges ahead
Neil Masson
- 114 EEG in psychiatric practice: to do or not to do?
Vellingiri Raja Badrakalimuthu, Radhika Swamiraju & Hugo de Waal
- 122 When things go wrong: a practical guide to dealing with complaints
Richard Hodgson, Santhushi Mendis & Sandra Storey
- 131 Working with struggling teams
Guy Undrill & Nathan Gregory
- 139 A balanced approach to race in the treatment of personality disorder
Piyal Sen & Dave Ramaswamy
- 142 Body dysmorphic disorder
Jennifer Ross & Simon Gowers
- 150 Peer reviewing made easy
Neel Halder, Rosalind Ramsay, Peter Tyrer & Patricia Casey
- 158 Correspondence
- 158 Correction

In other words

- 103 Excerpts from *The Letters of Dostoyevsky to His Wife
Fyodor Dostoyevsky

Cover image

The increasing interest of the UK national news media in mental health problems offers psychiatrists a valuable opportunity to communicate with the public (see Bithell, pp. 82–84, this issue).
Photo by Candace Gillies-Wright.