

WORLDVIEW

VERIFYING SALT

WILLIAM E. COLBY

NOT SO LIBERAL RUMANIA

DONALD KIRK

THE CHINA IN AMERICA'S FUTURE

JOHN R. WATT

FAR BEYOND THE GOOD NEIGHBOR POLICY

FRANCIS X. GANNON

HISTORY AS SACRED DRAMA

RICHARD JOHN NEUHAUS

DEMOCRATIC MESSAGES FROM BRAZIL

THEODORE JACQUENEY

ON SUNDAYS THE PEASANTS GO NATIVE

SHARON E. BELDEN

REFLECTIONS ON AMERICAN RELIGION

JAMES A. NUECHTERLEIN

& MARTIN GREEN, RICHARD J. MOUW, TAKESHI WATANABE, SUDHIR SEN, CHARLES G. ROBERTSON, JR., SAMUEL HUX, MARTHA BAYLES, THOMAS ROBBINS, JOSEPH AMATO, ABRAHAM MARTIN MURRAY

REVIEWS

"Lethal Trash" is MICHAEL HAMILTON's incisive survey of the choices we have, and do not have, in disposing of nuclear waste. The issue is finally not one of moral crusade but of prudential judgment. . . . WALTER PARCHOMENKO exposes the costs of "détente" paid by dissidents in the Ukraine and elsewhere. . . . Jimmy Carter was going to do big things in the area of arms transfer restraints. LUCY WILSON BENSON takes a close look at Carter's achievements and failures to date. . . . The showing of "Holocaust" rocked the German public. In "Older Germans, Younger Krauts," SAMUEL HUX examines the perceptions and self-perceptions of Germans today. . . . A hundred (at least) rationalizations and counterrationalizations contend to "explain" India's rejection of Indira Gandhi's "emergency rule." MICHAEL HENDERSON analyzes them all and argues for what he thinks is the lasting historical importance of that great turn-around toward democracy. . . . Two articles on Fidel's Cuba—one explaining why Cuba is politically post-Marxist, and the other exploring Cuba's legal system that precludes "democracy" A thorough report on "disappeared persons" in Argentina, plus an article that suggests Chile's Pinochet is pursuing policies that make very unlikely the promised return to civilian rule. . . . And much more that continues to make WORLDVIEW the journal that brings together global analysis, moral reflection, and an uncompromising commitment to human rights. Isn't this the month to introduce WORLDVIEW to a friend?

FOUNDED IN 1914 BY ANDREW CARNEGIE