

STUDIES OF SNRs IN THE MAGELLANIC CLOUDS

A.J. TURTLE
School of Physics
University of Sydney
Sydney NSW 2006
Australia

ABSTRACT. In the Magellanic Clouds about 60 confirmed supernova remnants (SNRs) or candidates are known. They have been detected by a combination of X-ray, optical and radio observations. Various statistical aspects of these SNRs will be considered including the implied supernova rate, the spatial distribution, the implications of the radio luminosity/diameter distribution for SNR evolution, and the relation to the extended non-thermal emission.