

prominent political scientists give their time as guest lecturers, and over 40 graduate programs sent representatives to Atlanta to recruit the students for graduate school.

Funding for the Bunche Institute is generously provided by the Coca-Cola Foundation, the U.S. Department of Education, the Ford Foundation, the Graduate School of Emory University, and Georgia State University.

Application forms for the 1993 Ralph Bunche Summer Institute are available from APSA.

Section News

Council Approves New Sections on Politics and Literature and on Internships

Two new organized sections were approved by the APSA Council at the 1992 Annual Meeting. The first is a section on Internships and Experiential Education to promote and to improve the quality of use of experienced-based techniques in teaching political science including academic internships, cooperative education, service learning, international education, and simulations. The organizers of the section are William D. Muller, SUNY-Fredonia; Gene Alpert, Texas Christian University; John Berg, Suffolk University; and Helen Graves, University of Michigan, Dearborn. Dues are set at $5.

The other section approved is titled Politics and Literature and addresses the varied relations between politics and literature, including the history of political thought, literature as propaganda, literature as ideological expression, and the political sociology of literature. The section has been organized by Catherine Zuckert of Carleton College, following initial planning by Lyman Tower Sargent, University of Missouri-St. Louis. Dues are $5.

Two Sections Adopt New Names

Computers and Multimedia is the new name for what was formerly the Computer Users Section. This change reflects members' interests in the application of a wide variety of technologies in teaching and research.

The former Law, Courts, and Judicial Process section has condensed its name to Law and Courts.

History and Politics Section Establishes New Award

Two new annual History and Politics Awards have been created by the Section, to be first given at the 1993 APSA Annual Meeting. The first is the "J. David Greenstone Award for an Outstanding Book in History and Politics." Books published in the two years prior to the meeting will be considered, though next year books published in 1990 are eligible. The second award is the "History and Politics Section Award for an Outstanding Published Article or Essay," for articles published in the two years prior to the meeting. Nominations must come from section members, and selection will be made by a committee designated by the section president. Ira Katznelson has been elected Section president for 1992-93.

Faculty Attend Annual Meeting Seminar on Japan: A Comparative Perspective

The APSA organized a seminar devoted to enhancing teaching about Japanese politics which met September 2-4, 1992, during the APSA's Annual Meeting in Chicago. The seminar was supported by a grant from the Japan-United States Friendship Commission which also supported a seminar on this subject in conjunction with the 1990 Annual Meeting. Kent E. Calder, Princeton University, directed this seminar as he had the 1990 seminar. He will prepare an essay on the seminar's objectives along with a reading list which will be published in a 1993 issue of PS: Political Science & Politics. Takeshi Sasaki, University of Tokyo, was a guest speaker at the seminar. Richard Lehne, an alumnus of the 1990 seminar, spoke about the strategies for incorporating coverage of Japan in political science courses.

The seminar participants included: Marilyn H. Baissa, Utica College of Syracuse University; Naomi Black, York University; Cal Clark, University of Wyoming; David P. Conradt, University of Florida; William B. Fullerton, U.S. Military Academy; Joyce Gelb, City University of New York; Harvey Glickman, Haverford College; Ceferina Hess, Lander College; Mary Jane Hogan, Idaho State University; Gerald L. Houseman, Indiana University-Purdue University; C. Richard Ostrom, California State University-Chico; John N. Short, University of Arkansas; Yawsoon Sim, Grambling State University; Marianna Sullivan, Trenton State College; George Vernardakis, Middle Tennessee State University; Martin P. Wattenberg, University of California-Irvine; Richard L. Wilson, Samford University; and Charles E. Ziegler, University of Louisville.

Seminar on South African Politics Held at Annual Meeting

A seminar on South African Politics was held on September 2, 1992, in conjunction with the APSA's Annual Meeting in Chicago. The John D. and Catherine T. MacArthur Foundation provided support for the seminar.

The seminar was directed by Arend Lijphart, University of California-San Diego, with the assistance of three South African scholars: Hermann Giliomee, University of Cape Town; Thabane Vincent Maphai, University of the Western Cape; and Robert Schrire, University of Cape Town.

A review of the seminar and its reading list is being prepared by Arend Lijphart for publication in an early 1993 issue of PS: Political Science & Politics.

The 23 seminar participants were: Mark R. Amstutz, Wheaton College; Donald G. Baker, Long Island University (Southampton Campus); Elizabeth Boles, Pomona College; Tristan Borer, Ph.D. candidate, University of Notre Dame; David A. Frolick, North Central College; Donald L. Gordon, Furman University; James Gump, University of San Diego; C. R. D. Halisi, Indiana University; Tracy Kuperus Heun, Ph.D. candidate,