SUMMER 1978

Volume 32, Number 3

International Organization publishes analytical articles, review essays of current literature, notes dealing with problems of theoretical and methodological interest, and comments designed to encourage lively interchanges on issues of wide interest.

International Organization particularly welcomes manuscripts that focus on the development and functioning of international agencies or arrangements, (including regional ones), or on their relationships with the political and economic environments. The journal is also interested in articles on transnational relations and on problems of intergovernmental policy coordination in the absence of international institutions.

The Board of Editors welcomes original critical analyses. It is not interested in mere descriptions or chronological treatments of institutions. Manuscripts should provide fresh interpretations and evaluations of significant developments or trends; they should not repeat material familiar and available elsewhere to specialists in international affairs.

Manuscripts, in order to be considered, should be sent in triplicate to the Editor, Robert Keohane, Center for Research in International Studies, Stanford University, Stanford, CA. 94305. Articles and review essays should not exceed 45 double-spaced typewritten pages (8½ × 11"). Notes on theory and method and comments should not exceed 2,000 words. The style followed should be consistent with the University of Chicago Manual of Style.

Decisions on publication are made pursuant to independent critical comment by two or more readers. Authors may expect a decision within eight weeks of the Editor's receipt of a manuscript.
