"STORY" IN POLITICS

by

MICHAEL NOVAK

A CRIA Special Study $1.75

"The American bias suggests that modern nations have moved from a worldview composed of myth, story, and symbol to a worldview composed of empirical reason, fact and verification—from myth to reality. So deep is the bias of demythologizing that Americans fail to notice how problematic is their own relationship to nature, to one another, to other peoples. . . ."

Is Gradualism Dead?

REFLECTIONS ON ORDER,
CHANGE AND FORCE

by

DENIS GOULET

Ethics & Foreign Policy Series $.50

"In my view, unless the ground rules of production and decision-making are profoundly altered within the United States, a world order of authentic development has no chance to be born. Thus, at the very least, a major cultural revolution is needed in the United States. . . ."

THE OBLIGATION TO DISOBEY

CONSCIENCE & THE LAW

by

MULFORD Q. SIBLEY

A CRIA Special Study $1.75

"A society which aspires to freedom and 'democracy,' as John Stuart Mill argued, needs citizens who actively and conscientiously obey rather than those who acquiesce passively or with reluctance. Passive acquiescence or slavish obedience cannot advance either the cause of non-violence or that of democracy. Possible civil disobedience is the price we must pay if we are to develop the ideal of active rather than tamely passive citizenship. . . ."
