

APSA Introduces Navigating the Profession: Sage Advice from the Pages of PS

This first virtual issue of PS: Political Science & Politics brings together some of the journal’s most highly cited articles about the profession from more than a dozen past issues. This practical material spans numerous topics that especially apply to young scholars. From “ideas and debates” of political science as a vocation, to the “nuts and bolts” of preparing a literature review and publishing as a graduate student, this virtual issue has something both for scholars just beginning their studies and for academics early in their careers. Other topics include:

- Restructuring the social sciences
- Navigating the challenges of fieldwork and research design
- Harnessing the potential in blogging and other outreach in the profession and the public
- Becoming a reviewer
- Writing more effectively
- And more!

APSA is proud to offer this arrangement of 24 PS articles in this virtual issue Navigating the Profession. The association looks forward to producing more virtual issues to highlight excellent research and make this research more accessible to members. Members can access this virtual issue at Cambridge Journals Online.

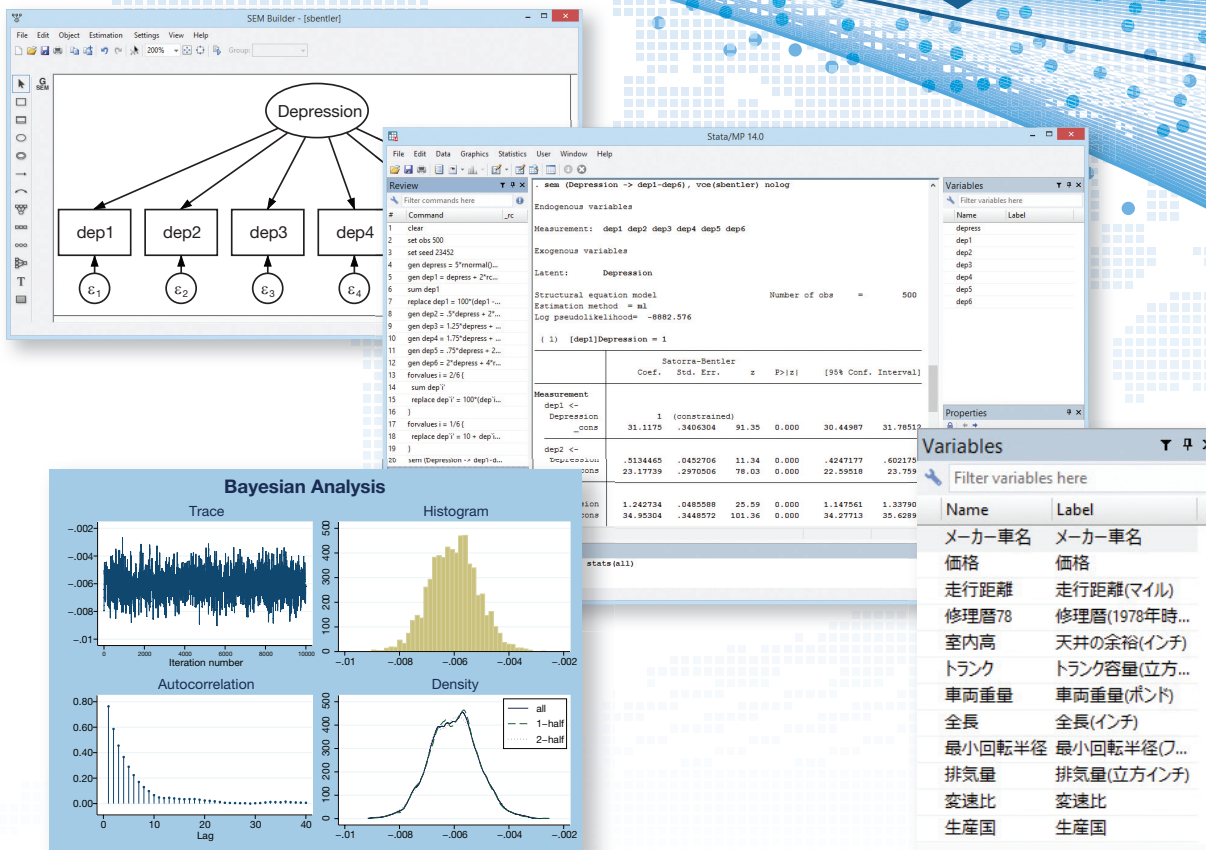

“Mentoring the profession has been and should continue to be one of the most important missions of PS.”

–Robert J-P. Hauck,
Editor, PS, 1987–2014

Questions? Comments? Let us know at publications@apsanet.org.

Announcing STATA[®] 14 release

Here are some of the new features:

- » Bayesian analysis
- » Multilevel models for survey data
- » Markov-switching models
- » Regression models for fractional data
- » Endogenous treatment effects
- » IRT (item response theory)
- » Panel-data survival models
- » SEM: survey data, Satorra-Bentler, survival models
- » Censored Poisson regression
- » Unicode

stata.com/psp-14

Stata is a registered trademark of StataCorp LP, 4905 Lakeway Drive, College Station, TX 77845, USA.

