Crime, Shame and Reintegration

JOHN BRAITHWAITE

Integrating legalistic ideas about deterrence with sociological ideas about why people commit crime this book argues that the key to why some societies have higher crime rates than others lies in the way different cultures go about the social process of shaming wrongdoing.

Combat the perils of the sea . . .

Tetley: Marine Cargo Claims

Third Edition, 1988

By William Tetley, BA, LL, QC, Professor of Law, McGill University

Tetley covers the law of carriage of goods by sea of the US, the UK, France and Canada; taking the reader, after a broad introduction, through the order of proving a marine cargo claim. All the reported judgements on the Hague Rules and the Hague/Visby Rules of these countries have been studied and utilised in the text to provide a book which will be of enormous interest to readers in more than fifty nations world-wide. In addition, the Hamburg Rules are discussed in each chapter where these rules come into force or where the reader might wish to compare the differences between them and Hague/Visby.

Now brought right up to date, the third edition has been completely re-written and greatly expanded. Twice as large as the last edition, the new edition also includes five new chapters on the Interpretation of Bills and Lading; Freight Forwarders; Set-Off; Sale; and Waybills. Broadening the scope of the work, forty-five well-known experts from different countries around the globe have each contributed a chapter on the law as applicable to their own particular country – providing further invaluable insight into the international operation of this area of law.

As the supreme work of reference on the subject, Tetley needs no further introduction – order your copy today.
