An Authoritative History of Modern Computing
Atsushi Akera, Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute

Frederick Nebeker, IEEE History Center, Rutgers University

This collection is broad in scope, offering an authoritative and up-to-date introduction to the history of computing. It gives an overview of two centuries in the history of information processing and detailed coverage of a number of more recent topics, including PC software, user interfaces, and the Internet. By integrating the technical, business, and policy aspects of the history of computing, the authors explain how and why computers were created, and how they were shaped by the intent of their creators.

STATE BANKING IN EARLY AMERICA

A New Economic History

Howard Bodenhorn, Lafayette College

Howard Bodenhorn's State Banking in Early America studies the financial experimentation that took place in the United States between 1790 and 1860. Dr. Bodenhorn's book explores regional differences in banking structures, which bear indirectly in the connection between financial and economic development. If a single theme emerges, it is that the United States benefited from its free banking philosophy in which state governments, rather than a centralized authority, created financial structures designed to serve specific, local needs.

TO FORM A MORE PERFECT UNION

A New Economic Interpretation of the United States Constitution

Robert A. McGuire, University of Akron

This is a quantitative reexamination of the behavior of the Founding Fathers during the creation of the United States' Constitution. It employs diometric analysis, formal economic analysis, and modern statistical techniques to explain the choices the founders made during the drafting and ratification of the Constitution.

A NATION TRANSFORMED BY INFORMATION

How Information Has Shaped the United States from Colonial Times to the Present

Alfred D. Chandler, Jr., Harvard University, and James W. Cortada

This book makes the startling case that North Americans were getting on the "information highway" as early as the 1700's, and have been using it as a critical building block of their social, economic, and political world ever since. In the 19th century, Americans developed the telegraph, telephone, and motion pictures. In the 20th century they added television, computers, and the Internet, ultimately connecting themselves to a whole world of information. This book explores what the deployment of these technologies says about American society.

THE CRS TEAM
AND THE BUSINESS OF ARCHITECTURE

Edited by Jonathan King and Philip Langdon

Foreword by Ronald Skaggs

From its establishment in the 1940s as a three-man operation above a grocery store in College Station, Texas, Caudill Rowlett Scott, or CRS, evolved into a world leader in programming, construction management, school design, and other dimensions of modern architectural practice. Based on oral histories taken from many leaders and staff members of CRS, this book traces the company's development from its beginnings to its emergence as the largest architecture/engineering firm in the United States by the early 1980s and to its dismemberment in 1994. 384 pp. 47 b&w photos. 4 line drawings. GUIDELINES FOR CONTRIBUTORS

GENERAL INFORMATION

Manuscripts are considered for publication on the understanding that they are not concurrently under consideration elsewhere and that the material—in substance as well as form—has not been previously published.

Three copies of the manuscript should be submitted.

Authors should identify themselves only on a separate title page that provides name, mailing address, and telephone number. Authors must also remember not to identify themselves in the body of the manuscript; specifically, references to their own work in the text should be in the third person, and citations should be written without possessive pronouns—not “See my”

Potential contributors should initially submit hard copy, not diskettes, but it will save considerable work for all parties in the event of acceptance if authors follow a few rules from the beginning:

- In general, use as few formatting commands as possible.
- Left justify text.
- Do not hyphenate words at the end of lines.
- ALL material—including extracted quotations and notes—must be double spaced.
- Notes should be numbered consecutively and citations should be placed as footnotes or endnotes formatted as indicated by The Chicago Manual of Style (1993).
- Each table and figure must be accompanied by a complete source.

Each article should be accompanied by an abstract of 75 to 100 words outlining the main point(s) of the paper and placing the article in context. Subheads should be used to divide the manuscript into three or four sections (or more, depending on length). We do not have an upper or lower page limit, but articles usually run between 25 and 50 typescript pages, including notes and other material.

We are always eager to publish illustrations, but authors should not include originals of illustrative materials at the time of submission; photocopies of such material may be included. Authors are responsible for obtaining all illustrative materials and permissions for reproduction, and for writing captions.

Authors of accepted manuscripts will receive two copies of the issue in which the article appears and twenty-five offprints.

MANUSCRIPT PREPARATION

We use the 14th edition of The Chicago Manual of Style (1993) and spell and hyphenate words according to Webster's Ninth New Collegiate Dictionary.

The journal encourages authors to use gender-neutral prose in all cases where it is not anachronistic to do so; male nouns and pronouns should not be used to refer to people of both sexes. We use the day-month-year form for dates, as 11 Feb. 1998. Double quotation marks should be used for direct quotation; single quotation marks are used for quoted material inside quotations.

SAMPLE CITATION FORMS

Book: Alfred D. Chandler, Jr., The Visible Hand: The Managerial Revolution in American Business (Cambridge, Mass., 1977), 321–22.

Journal: Charles Cheape, “Not Politicians but Sound Businessmen: Norton Company and the Third Reich,” Business History Review 62 (Autumn 1988): 444–66.

Note that we do not include the publisher in book citations. We do not use loc. cit., op. cit., or idem., but ibid. (not italicized) may be used.
