THE VIRTUE OF CIVILITY

SELECTED ESSAYS ON LIBERALISM, TRADITION, AND CIVIL SOCIETY

By Edward Shils

Edited by Steven Grosby

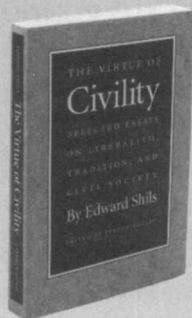

Edward Shils (1920–1995) was one of the leading intellectual defenders of freedom in the twentieth century. Learned in history, politics, literature, economics, theology, and legal history, he taught for many years at the University of Chicago's Committee on Social Thought and at Peterhouse College, Cambridge. In these nine essays, Shils explores the importance of civility and tradition to a free society.

The essays' significance is enormous, for Shils was one of the first and assuredly one of the most courageous writers to examine the natures of civility and civil society and their relation to a free, ordered, liberal democratic society. As H.R. Trevor-Roper has written, "Deeply concerned for the Western values of rationality, freedom, and progress, Shils was dismayed by the threat which they now faced: the threat posed by the absolute individualism into which Western Liberalism had degenerated." Among the essays are "Tradition and Liberty: Antinomy and Interdependence," "Max Weber and the World Since 1920," and "The Modern University and Liberal Democracy."

RACE AND STATE

The Collected Works of Eric Voegelin
Volume 2

Edited, with an Introduction, by
KLAUS VONDUNG
Translated by RUTH HEIN

ERIC VOEGELIN

“The best historical account of race-thinking in the pattern of a ‘history of ideas.’”—Hannah Arendt, in Origins of Totalitarianism

One of five books that Eric Voegelin wrote before his emigration from Austria in 1938, Race and State was published in Germany in 1933, the year Hitler came to power. Voegelin neither descends to the level of contemporary debates on race nor dismisses these debates by way of value judgments. Although still young when he wrote this book, he already demonstrates his singular analytical capacity as well as his ability to put political phenomena into a new perspective.

THE HISTORY OF THE RACE IDEA

From Ray to Carus

The Collected Works of Eric Voegelin, Volume 3

Edited, with an Introduction, by KLAUS VONDUNG
Translated by RUTH HEIN

In this companion volume to Race and State, Voegelin investigates the race idea in the period from the late seventeenth century to the mid-nineteenth century, placing its ascension in the context of the development of modern philosophy, and modernity in general. He expands upon the concepts of John Ray and Carl Gustav Carus to argue the inseparability of mind and body in human beings and the necessity for viewing mankind as more than merely a biological species.

Christianity and Politics

Special Issues

The Review of Politics will mark the passing of this millennium with two special issues given to essays and scholarly studies engaging in some way the relationship of Christianity and Politics. A broad interpretation of that theme is encouraged. Welcome are manuscripts that consider topics (or some aspect or instance thereof) such as Christianity and Liberalism, Catholicism and American Democracy, Christianity in Post-Modern Analysis, and thinkers such as Thomas More, John Calvin, Alexis de Tocqueville, Jacques Maritain, John Courtney Murray and Reinhold Niebuhr. Welcome are studies that bring the resources of the Christian tradition to bear on some problem of national or international politics. Welcome are studies in religion and politics in which Christianity is approached comparatively and/or in which systematic empirical research plays a role.

Communications indicating an intention to submit a manuscript are encouraged. Manuscripts for these issues will be received until April 1, 1999.
