Filial Piety and the State

Norman Kutcher

The first to do so in any language, Norman Kutcher's study of mourning looks beneath the rhetoric to demonstrate how Qing China's Manchu leaders - unwilling to make the sacrifices that a genuine commitment to proper mourning demanded - quietly but forcefully undermined, not re-invigorated, the Confucian mourning system.

Stanford from CAMBRIDGE

Yingjin Zhang

This volume establishes cinema as a vital force in Shanghai culture and directs attention to early Chinese cinema, long neglected by Western scholars. Coming from film studies, literature, and ethnomusicology, the contributors broaden the 'leftist film' as narrowly defined in mainland Chinese historiography.

ONE QUARTER OF HUMANITY

MALTHUSIAN MYTHOLOGY AND CHINESE REALITIES
JAMES Z. LEE AND WANG FENG

Overtuning much of the received wisdom about the differences between China and the West, James Lee and Wang Feng argue that there has been effective regulation of population growth in China through a variety of practices that depressed marital fertility and through the widespread practices of infanticide and abortion. These practices and other distinctive features of the Chinese demographic and social system, they argue, led to a different demographic transition in China from the one that took place in the West.

A Concise History of China

J. A. G. ROBERTS

The centuries-long complexity of China's political experience, the richness of its culture, and the drama of its economic unfolding are the hallmarks of this short but sweeping history. Incorporating recent archeological finds and new documentary reevaluations, this book provides an up-to-date interpretation of China's history of both the early and modern periods. More than a nuanced history of a vast continent, this study is sensitive to the multifaceted and changing interpretations of China that have been offered over the years.

"[Roberts] provides both fascinating detail and clear explanations of some of the best-known aspects of Chinese history...[It is] a clear trail into a vast, lovely, alluring land."

REAPPRAISING THE PERFORMANCE OF CHINA'S STATE-OWNED INDUSTRIAL ENTERPRISES, 1980—96

Dic Lo

School of Oriental and African Studies, University of London

This paper seeks to reappraise the performance of China's state-owned industrial enterprises over the period 1980-96. By examining all the available indicators of performance, and by placing that performance in the context of the country's specific path of economic system reform and industrial growth, it argues that the state-owned enterprises (SOEs) have performed much better than is widely perceived in the literature. In particular, the performance of large-scale, state-owned enterprises has been at least comparable to that of the acclaimed collectively-owned enterprises. The latter have been much more market-oriented than SOEs, but their status has been equally unclear from the standpoint of private ownership. The paper thus constitutes a challenge to the big-bang or shock-therapy approach to the transformation of Soviet-type economic systems.

Anniversary
十五周年校慶

City University of Hong Kong is a young and dynamic institution directly funded by the Government of the Hong Kong Special Administrative Region through the University Grants Committee (Hong Kong). Its strategic plan is an ambitious one, reflecting its aspirations to become one of the leading universities in the Asia-Pacific region by achieving excellence in teaching and research. The student population for 1999-2000 is approximately 16,200 (11,000 full-time and 5,200 part-time). The medium of instruction is English.

Applications are invited for the following concurrent headship appointment :

Head of Department of Applied Social Studies [Ref. D/394/49]

The Department of Applied Social Studies provides a thorough education for students preparing for careers in government, the private sector, social service agencies, and para-public organisations. The department has a multidisciplinary team of faculty with a strong commitment to research and teaching. The academic disciplines are Psychology, Sociology, and Social Work. It offers undergraduate degrees in East Asian Studies and Social Work, an internationally recognised diploma in Psychology, and post-graduate research programmes leading to a PhD. It is located within the Faculty of Humanities and Social Sciences which has three research centres. It is at the leading edge in surveys and polling, programme evaluation, clinical studies, and gerontological studies.

The successful candidate will head a dynamic young faculty; foster scholarship and research; promote new degree programmes which meet emerging academic and professional needs; collaborate with universities in China; establish linkages with universities internationally; and work constructively with faculty, staff, students, as well as employers to enhance opportunities for research and programme development.

The University also accepts nominations and reserves the right not to fill the position.

Qualifications for Appointment

The Head of Department will be expected to provide strong academic leadership in the development of the teaching and research in the Department. Candidates should possess strong academic and professional qualifications in the Social and Behavioral Sciences or related degrees, substantial relevant experience in tertiary education and a successful record of research and scholarship. Candidates will also be required to demonstrate an ability to give academic and managerial leadership in the Department.

Salary and Conditions of Service

The successful candidate is expected to be appointed at the professorial level on superannuable terms with provision for retirement benefits, or on fixed-term contract with contract-end gratuity. Salary will be competitive and be commensurate with the appointee's qualifications and experience. Concurrently, the appointee will be offered the headship appointment for an initial term of three years. Generous fringe benefits include annual leave, housing assistance, medical and dental care provisions and passage allowance where applicable.

Application and Information

Further information on the post and the University is available on the University's World Wide Web home page <http://www.cityu.edu.hk> or the University's listserv accessed by E-mail at "hrmail@cityu.hk", or from the Human Resources Office, City University of Hong Kong, Tat Chee Avenue, Kowloon, Hong Kong (Fax: (852) 2788 1154 or (852) 2788 9334/ E-mail: hrrecrut@cityu.edu.hk). Please send nomination or application with a current curriculum vitae and the names and addresses of three academic referees at full professorial or other appropriate level to the Human Resources Office. Applications will be considered until the position is filled. Please quote the reference of the post in the application and on the envelope.

Internal candidates shortlisted will only be considered for the concurrent administrative position and their substantive appointments will remain unchanged.

Applicants who have responded to the previous advertisements on the post of Head of Department of Applied Social Studies need not re-apply.

A Translucent Mirror

History and Identity in Qing Imperial Ideology

PAMELA KYLE CROSSLEY

In this landmark exploration of the origins of nationalism and cultural identity in China, Crossley traces the ways in which a large, early modern empire of Eurasia, the Qing (1636–1912), incorporated neighboring, but disparate, political traditions into a new style of emperorship. This groundbreaking study examines the relationship between the increasingly abstract ideology of the centralizing emperorship of the Qing and the establishment of concepts of identity in the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries, before the advent of nationalism in China.

(National University of Singapore)

Research Fellows/Senior Research Fellows

The East Asian Institute (EAI) is an autonomous research organisation set up under a special statute of the National University of Singapore. Its main mission is to promote academic and policy-oriented research on East Asian development, particularly the political, economic and social development of contemporary China (including Taiwan and Hong Kong).

EAI invites applications from suitably qualified scholars in modern Chinese studies, trained in the disciplines of political science, sociology, economics or international relations. Applicants should possess at least a Ph.D. They must be interested in doing research on China's economic and political reforms, and political and social changes which are taking place in China today.

Intellectual maturity and a good command of English and Chinese are important prerequisites. Working experience in China would be advantageous. Successful candidates will be offered an initial contract of up to two years, which can be renewed for up to five years. Scholars may also come for shorter terms on visiting appointments; particularly those on sabbatical leave.

Remuneration

Gross monthly emoluments will range from S$4800 to S$11,668 (current exchange rate: US$1.00 = S$1.67). In addition, for those appointed on two-year contracts, a 13th month salary plus an annual variable component (between one to two months' salaries) under the flexible wage system may be payable at year end. The commencing salary will depend on the candidate's qualifications, experience and the level of appointment offered.

Vacation leave and medical benefits will be provided. Depending on the type of contracts offered, other benefits may include provident fund benefits or an end-of-contract gratuity, a settling-in allowance, subsidised housing, education allowance for children.

A letter of application together with a detailed curriculum vitae, the names and addresses of three academic referees plus samples of publication should be sent to:

CHINA REMEMBERS

Zhang Lijia & Calum MacLeod

October 1, 1999 marks the fiftieth anniversary of the People's Republic of China (PRC). It has been a rocky ride, at times euphoric, at others tragic. Hidden behind a 'bamboo curtain' for so many years, China now claims its rightful place on the international stage. China Remembers commemorates the PRC's journey to date, by presenting some of the most honest, varied, and compelling accounts of the country ever compiled.

Among those who offer eyewitness accounts are a Korean POW, a peasant farmer who lost nine relatives in the worst famine of the twentieth century, China's foremost rock star, and its richest businessman.

'Without ever attempting to disguise the magnitude of the task now facing Jiang Zemin and Zhu Rongji as they lead the People's Republic into the twenty-first century, the stories compiled here resonate with courage, determination, and confidence in a brighter future.'

Sir Edward Heath, KG, MBE,
MP

MACAO REMEMBERS

Jill McGivering, with photographs by David Hartung

December 20, 1999 marks the end of the longest-running chapter in Macao's history. After over 450 years of administration, Portugal will hand over one of the oldest colonies the world has ever known to China. Macao Remembers commemorates this vital juncture in Macao's history through interviews with twenty-six people, representing most of Macao's unique mixture of races, creeds, classes, and traditions.

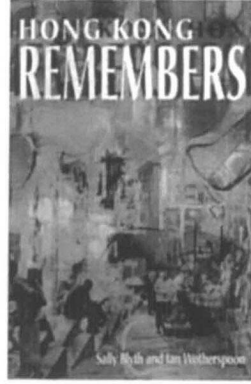

Aristocrats and fisherfolk, priests and triads, novelists and politicians bring to life this intriguing portrait of one of the world's most fascinating cities at the brink of a momentous change of identity.

'Macao is an often enchanting, often illusive sort of place. This marvellous book shows why it is enchanting and makes it less illusive.'

HONG KONG REMEMBERS

Sally Blyth & Ian Wotherspoon

The story of Hong Kong's social, political, and economic development is a remarkable Chinese-British chronicle. The contributors to this book recall the important events along the rocky path to development, including the housing crisis of the 1950s, the 1967 anti-Government riots, the Sino-British talks of the 1980s, and the effect on the Hong Kong people of the Tiananmen Square protests in 1989.

'Unrivalled, this wonderful book gives us the feel and texture of Hong Kong since the 1930s. No anemic colonial nostalgia here. Voice after voice calls out. "This is how it was and is."
