

From the Editor

BUSINESS ETHICS QUARTERLY is pleased to welcome two new associate editors: Heather Elms (management, American University) and Wayne Norman (philosophy, Duke University). Heather Elms will be handling a selection of manuscripts taking social scientific approaches to matters of business ethics, especially those impinging on questions of corporate social responsibility or corporate strategy. Wayne Norman will be handling manuscripts reflecting a variety of philosophical questions and perspectives. Both of them have a long association with BEQ, as authors, reviewers, editorial board members, and, in Wayne's case, as guest editor of a special issue. I am very pleased to welcome them to the editorial team.
