Exploring Africa's rich heritage

The Journal of Modern African Studies

The Journal of Modern African Studies offers a quarterly survey of politics, economics, and related topics in contemporary Africa. The main emphasis is upon the peoples and policies, the problems and progress of this dynamic and disparate continent; upon the many societies that are evolving rather than the essential characteristics of the old; and upon the present, rather than the past. The best current work is presented from specialists in different academic disciplines. Editorial policy avoids commitment to any political viewpoint or ideology, but aims at a fair examination of controversial issues in order to promote a deeper understanding of what is happening in Africa today. The journal also includes an invaluable book review section.

Volume 33 in 1995: March, June, September and December. £78 for institutions; £37 for individuals; £25 for contributors; delivery by airmail £19 extra. ISSN 0022-278X.

The Journal of African History

The Journal of African History publishes articles and book reviews ranging widely over the African past, from the late Stone Age to the 1960s. In recent years increasing prominence has been given to economic and social history and several articles have explored themes which are also of growing interest to historians of other regions such as: gender roles, demography, health and hygiene, propaganda, legal ideology, labour histories, nationalism and resistance, custodial institutions, the construction of ethnicity, ideas of time, and photographs as historical sources. Articles on slavery, the slave trade and the interpretation of oral tradition are also included.

Subscriptions

Volume 36 in 1995: March, July and November. £64 for institutions; £35 for individuals; £27 for students; delivery by airmail £14.50 extra. ISSN 0021-8537.
