

Research and Training Support

Announcements of Awards

---

Trinity University Summer Institute in Political Science and the Secondary School Curriculum

---

Trinity University in San Antonio, Texas, has received grants from the National Science Foundation and the Brackenridge Foundation for support of a summer institute in political science and elementary school curriculum. According to Harold M. Barger, the Director of the Institute, the six week program from June 4 to July 14 has been designed to aid the secondary school government teacher develop new curriculum in area schools which will be relevant, stimulating and in tune with methods and approaches now being used by contemporary political scientists. The institute will work in conjunction with the APSA Committee on Pre-Collegiate Education.

---

National Endowment for the Humanities Senior Fellowships

---

Four political scientists have been awarded senior fellowships for 1973-74 by the National Endowment for the Humanities. They are: Edgar Litt, University of Connecticut; William Andrews, State University College, Brockport; George Ginsburgs, New School for Social Research; I. William Zartman, New York University.

---

NSF Division of Social Sciences Awards in Political Science

---

Fifteen political scientists have received support from the Division of Social Sciences of the National Science Foundation for individual or group research projects. They are:

G. H. Snyder, SUNY, Buffalo: Theory of Negotiation and Bargaining.

Klaus Knorr, Princeton University: The Political Economy of International Power and influence.

John H. Kessel, Ohio State University: Computer Analysis of Presidential Texts.

Samuel H. Barnes, University of Michigan: Collaborative Research on Italian Electoral Politics.

G. A. Sani, Ohio State University: Collaborative Research on Italian Electoral Politics.

M. J. Shapiro, University of Hawaii: Collaborative Research on Simulation of Policy Decision-Making.

J. M. Gilison, Johns Hopkins University: Political Socialization of Soviet Youth.

F. C. Turner, University of Connecticut: Political Modernization and Development.

J. P. Crece, University of Michigan: Organization Planning and Adaptation in the Public Sector.

Robert C. North, Stanford University: Causal Modelling and Prediction in the International System.

Stanley Rothman, Smith College: Variations in Student Radicalism.

Robert McClure, Syracuse University and T. Patterson, Media Influences on Attitudes and Information.

R. J. Rummel, University of Hawaii: The Dimensionality of Nations Project.

Oliver P. Williams, University of Pennsylvania: Changes in the Political Structure of Metropolitan Areas.

R. S. Sigel, SUNY, Buffalo: Comparative Study of Adolescent Political Involvement.

---

SSRC Foreign Area Fellowship Program in Latin America and the Caribbean

---

The Social Science Research Council has announced awards in its new predoctoral training programs in its foreign Area Fellowship program in Latin America and the Caribbean. These collaborative research training fellowships enable a professor or research associate and 3-4 students from a Latin American or Caribbean university or research institution and a visiting North American professor and an equal number of graduate students to undertake jointly, in Latin America or within the Caribbean area, a 3-month (July-September) research project of special interest to the senior scholars. Five projects were approved and conducted in 1972:

Stages of Expansion of the Railroads in Peru and Their Impact on Its Economy; Codirectors: Heraclio Bonilla, Institute of Peruvian Studies, Lima, Marcello Carmagnani, Luigi Einaudi Foundation, Turin, Italy; research sites: archives in Lima, Matucana, Cerro de Pusco, Huancayo, and others:

Peruvian participants

Baltazar Caravedo, graduate student, Catholic University.
 Dennis Chávez de Paz, graduate student, Catholic University.
 Angel Delgado, graduate student, Catholic University.
 Susan Griffis, graduate student, Catholic University.

North American participants

Kathleen A. Barrows, graduate student in Latin American studies, University of California, Los Angeles.
 John G. Bernardino, M.A. in history, Queens College, City University of New York.
 Stephan C. Crawford, Ph.D. candidate in history, University of Chicago.
 Robert Oppenheimer, Ph.D. candidate in history, University of California, Los Angeles.

Paraguayan Political Elites: Their Origin, Composition, and Role in Politics since 1930; Codirectors: Domingo Rivarola, Center of Sociological Studies, Asunción, Riordan J. A. Roett, Assistant Professor of Political Science, Vanderbilt University; research sites: Asunción and smaller cities in Paraguay:

Paraguayan participants

Hugo Berbosa Oddone, licentiate in psychology, Faculty of Philosophy, Catholic University.
 Carlos Torres Alarcón, licentiate in social work, National University.
 Anneliese Kessler Krug, licentiate in history, Faculty of Philosophy and Educational Sciences, Catholic University.
 Miguel Aquino Benítez, student, Gonzaga University.

North American participants

David S. Daykin, graduate student in sociology, Vanderbilt University.
 William D. Gallagher, graduate student in political science, Vanderbilt University.
 Arturo G. Muñoz, graduate student in history, Stanford University.

Role of the Chilean Party System in the Last Twenty Years: Mobilization and Integration; Codirectors; Patricio Chaparro, Institute of Political Science, Catholic University of Santiago, James W. Prothro, Professor of Political Science, University of North Carolina; research site: Santiago:

Chilean participants

María Victoria Castillo, Assistant Professor of Political Sociology, Catholic University of Chile.
 Carlos Eduardo Mena Keymer, Assistant Professor of Political Theory, Catholic University of Chile.

North American participants

Luciano Coutinho, Ph.D. candidate in economics, Cornell University.
 Richard J. Moore, graduate student in government, University of Texas at Austin.
 José Rodríguez, graduate student in political science, Yale University.

Relationships between Legal Institutions and Sociopolitical Behavior in Colombia, 1958-72; Codirectors: Fernando Cepeda, Department of Political Sciences, University of the Andes, Mauricio Solaún, Assistant Professor of Sociology, University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign; . . . research site: Bogotá:

Colombian participants

Alfonso Llevano, graduate student in political science, University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign.
 Gabriel Murillo, M.S. in political science, State University of New York at Stony Brook.
 Patricia Pinzón, licentiate in political science, University of the Andes.

North American participants

Bruce Bagley, graduate student in political science, University of California, Los Angeles.
 Robert Franzino, graduate student in political science, University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign.
 John I. Laun, graduate student in history, University of Wisconsin.

Case Studies of Successful Adaptations of Technology in the Chemical Industry with Scale Reduction; Codirectors: José Giral, Department of Chemical Engineering, National Autonomous University of Mexico, Robert P. Morgan, Associate Professor of Chemical Engineering, Washington University; research site: National Autonomous University of Mexico:

Mexican participants

Francisco Barnes, Ph.D. candidate in chemical engineering, University of California, Berkeley.
 Carlos Pani, Research Associate, National Autonomous University of Mexico.
 J. C. Romero, Research Associate, National Autonomous University of Mexico.

Announcements of Awards

North American participants

Luis Arturo Alfonso, Research Assistant in Chemical Engineering, New York University.

James W. Curtis, Jr., graduate student in economics, Washington University.

M. A. Monem Omran, Ph.D. in chemical engineer, University of California, Berkeley.

Kyriakoulis Phinopoulos, Ph.D. candidate in chemical engineering, Washington University.

Carlos E. Souza Baesse, Department of Social Sciences, University of Brasília.

Marcos de Souza Ferreira, Graduate School of Economics, Getúlio Vargas Foundation.

John P. Stockton, graduate student in government, Cornell University.

Kenneth A. Switzer, Ph.D. candidate in politics, University of Denver.

Manuel Villa Aguilera, Center for Economic and Demographic Studies, College of Mexico.

Seminar on Divergent Theories of Development and Dependence in Latin America — Quantitative Methods in Historical Analysis of Social and Political Change, June 25-August 18, 1972, at the University of Chicago; Faculty Directors: Philippe C. Schmitter, Assistant Professor of Political Science, John H. Coatsworth, Assistant Professor of American Economic History:

Nelida Ester Archenti Salerno, student, Department of Sociology, Bariloche Foundation, Argentina.

Claire Bacha, Institute of Human Sciences, University of Brasília.

Felix G. Boni, graduate student in political science, University of Pittsburgh.

Jeffrey L. Bortz, graduate student in history, University of California, Los Angeles.

Barbara Ann Browman, graduate student in political science, Washington University.

Rolando Franco Díaz, student, Latin American Institute for Economic and Social Planning, Santiago.

Edward Herman Goff, graduate student in political science, University of New Mexico.

Peter H. Lemieux, graduate student in government, Cornell University.

Clemy Machado Rivero, Faculty of Economics, Andrés Bello Catholic University.

Lorenzo F. Meyer, Center for International Studies, College of Mexico.

William K. Meyers, graduate student in history, University of Chicago.

Steven M. Neuse, graduate student in government, University of Texas at Austin.

George I. Oclander, graduate student in political science, Indiana University.

Charles A. Reilly, graduate student in social sciences, University of Chicago.

Emilien Robichaud, graduate student in political science, University of Chicago.

John H. Shamley, graduate student in history, University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign.

María Teresa Sirvent, graduate student in educational sociology, Columbia University.