

Sources of Law, Legal Change, and Ambiguity

ALAN WATSON

"The author has done an astounding job in illustrating, in so few pages, what a hash judges and lawyers have made of their sources over the centuries and across the breadth of what was once thought of as Western civilization."—Law and History Review

GENDERED JUSTICE IN THE AMERICAN WEST

Women Prisoners in Men's Penitentiaries

ANNE M. BUTLER

The penitentiary was an important symbol of violence in the American West, intensified when compounded by the factors of race, class, and sex. Anne M. Butler shows that women were subjected to intense physical and mental violence while in prison. For women of color or of lower social class, the violence was even greater and more frequent. Butler's poignant cross-cultural account draws on prison records and the words of the women themselves.

"Thoroughly researched and beautifully written, this study will revolutionize the way women's and western historians think and write about violence." — Glenda Riley, author of A Place to Grow: Women in the American West

Landmark Law Cases and American Society

Peter Charles Hoffer and N.E.H. Hull, Series Editors

In Praise of the Series

"In this series luminaries in legal and constitutional history explore the relations between society and law in cases involving some of America's most profound conflicts. A valuable addition to the classroom repertoire in history, political science, and law school classes."

—William M. Wiecek

"Fills a major vacuum in the literature of American constitutional and legal history."

—Kermit L. Hall

American Society for Legal History

ORGANIZATION AND MEMBERSHIP

The American Society for Legal History is a nonprofit membership organization dedicated to fostering scholarship, teaching, and study concerning the law and institutions of all legal systems, both Anglo-American and international. Founded in 1956, the Society sponsors this journal, and Studies in Legal History, a series of book-length monographs available to ASLH members at substantial pre-publication discounts. In addition, the Society holds an annual meeting to promote scholarship and interaction among teachers, practitioners, and students interested in legal history, and publishes a semiannual newsletter reporting developments in the field. For further information concerning the Society, please write: Donald Nieman, History Department, Bowling Green State University, Bowling Green, OH 43403.

To become a member of the Society, please complete and mail the application below to the University of Illinois Press at the address indicated.
