“If You Leave Us Here, We Will Die”

How Genocide Was Stopped in East Timor

Geoffrey Robinson

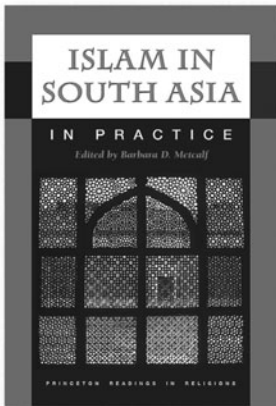

“In this outstanding book, Robinson provides an authoritative and gripping account of the violence visited upon East Timor by the Indonesian Armed Forces that is unparalleled in documentation, nuance, sophistication, and insight. His appraisal of the conditions enabling the belated United Nations intervention in East Timor is likewise unrivalled in its combination of scholarly analysis and insider insights.”

Islam in South Asia in Practice

Edited by Barbara D. Metcalf

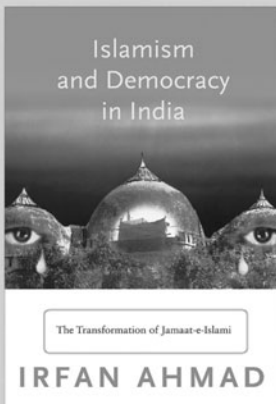

Barbara Metcalf has helped transform the study of modern South Asian Islam by her insistence on close readings of texts, her attention to religious practice, institutions, and worldview, and her refusal to dismiss the concerns of South Asian actors. This edited volume, with its magisterial introduction, exemplifies these qualities while giving us access to a wide range of texts from throughout South Asia. She and her collaborators are owed great thanks.”

Islamism and Democracy in India

The Transformation of Jamaat-e-Islami

Irfan Ahmad

“This is an outstanding historical and ethnographic account of one of the most influential Islamist movements in South Asia. It is the result of courageous fieldwork at a time of increased Hindu-Muslim tension in India. The book’s thesis that even a radically antisecular Islamist movement can be transformed into supporting secular democracy is an extremely important contribution to today’s global discussions. It is essential reading for political scientists, sociologists, anthropologists, historians, and students of Islam.”

EARLY KOREA

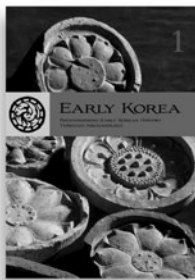

THE SAMHAN PERIOD
IN KOREAN HISTORY

Mark E. Byington, Editor

2009, 208 pages, over 90 illustrations, $30.00, Paper
ISBN 978-0-9795800-3-1

Early Korea, a publication of the Early Korea Project at the Korea Institute, Harvard University, is a series designed to promote and develop studies of early Korean history and archaeology in the English language. While these fields are active and dynamic in East Asia, they are only beginning to develop in English-language scholarship. Early Korea provides a forum for scholarly articles focused on studies of Korean history, archaeology and art history prior to the tenth century. Each volume features a section dedicated to several articles focused on a selected theme, along with articles on timely issues in the fields of early Korean history and archaeology as well as studies on the academic fields themselves.

The second volume, "The Samhan Period in Korean History," features three articles examining historical developments and trade relations in the southern part of the Korean peninsula prior to the fourth century A.D., as well as a survey of historical sources available for the study of this period. Other articles present an annotated translation of primary source materials related to the study of the Samhan period and an overview of one of the important archaeological sites associated with Samhan society. The sixth article offers a look at the development of the field of art history in Korea through biographical treatments of two of its pioneers.

These essays bring to life Indonesian figures of authority—village and district heads, slum leaders, parliamentarians, and others—who have carved out positions of power using legal and illegal means. International Journal of Asian Studies (IJAS) is an interdisciplinary, English-language forum for research in the social sciences and humanities. IJAS examines Asia on a regional basis, emphasising patterns and tendencies that go beyond the borders of individual countries. It is particularly interested in locating contemporary changes within a historical framework, especially using interdisciplinary approaches, and so promotes comparative studies involving the various regions of Asia. As well as encouraging contributions from western scholars, IJAS focuses attention on the work of Asian scholars, in order to encourage multi-directional communication across the international Asian studies community. It includes both themed and general issues.

CASTE IN INDIA

Diane Mines

"Diane Mines has produced a clear and compelling introduction to one of the world's most complex and misunderstood social systems.

This booklet offers an exhaustive overview of the anthropology and history of caste based on extensive reading and over two decades of ethnographic research in rural South India. It also speaks to the wider political and economic dimensions of caste as it is lived and debated in India today. Caste in India will be a most welcome addition to introductory courses in anthropology, history, sociology, geography, and political science."

NEW from NORTH CAROLINA

A VIETNAM WAR READER

A Documentary History from American and Vietnamese Perspectives

EDITED BY MICHAEL H. HUNT

This book, better than any book I know, shows the multiple sides of the Vietnam War. It is nuanced and balanced, and the selections are superb. There is a clear sense of looking at common issues through different sets of lenses, and coming out with a richer and fuller understanding than before. More than a simple reader cobbled together for classroom use, this is a rock-solid, creative assessment of the war using a variety of sources not easily accessible to most people."

—Allan M. Winkler, Miami University

AMERICAN INQUISITION

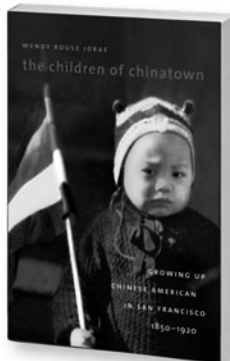

The Hunt for Japanese American Disloyalty in World War II

ERIC L. MULLER

Anyone with a thirst for thoughtful and well articulated information and analysis will find value in Muller's examination of this lesser known and less patriotism-inspiring aspect of World War II. This book joins a conversation that has been going on for years and supplements that discussion with new information and unique perspectives."

ASIA PAST & PRESENT

New Research from AAS

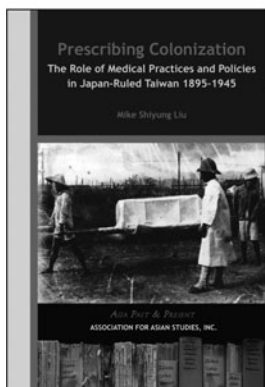

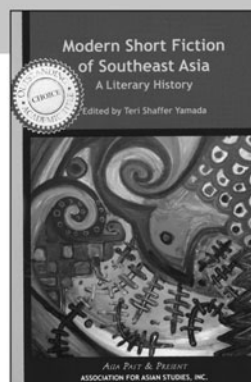

“To Die and Not Decay: Autobiography and the Pursuit of Immortality in Early China” is the only book-length study to date on early Chinese autobiographical writing and the cultural issues surrounding this particular genre. This book will appeal to scholars of Chinese history, literature, religion, and culture. It will have an important effect on our views of medieval China and the texts that it produced.

2009 CHOICE Outstanding Academic Title

“Modern Short Fiction of Southeast Asia: A Literary History” surveys the historical and cultural significance of modern short fiction in nine Southeast Asian nations—Laos, Cambodia, Myanmar/Burma, Singapore, Malaysia, Indonesia, the Philippines, Thailand, and Vietnam.

Edited by Teri Shaffer Yamada

“Prescribing Colonization” provides a carefully-researched analysis of the establishment of medical practices in Taiwan during Japanese colonial rule. Through this vivid analysis of the institutions, people, and ideals of Japanese state medicine in the ‘model colony’ of Taiwan, Michael Liu reveals the commonalities and contrasts between Asian and European imperialisms. A welcome addition to the growing body of transnational scholarship on the histories of medicine, science, and technology in the colonial world.

“Tools of Culture” addresses aspects of Japanese human and material interactions in East Asia from the late eleventh through the late sixteenth centuries, a period coincident with Japan’s late classical and medieval eras.

Each chapter provides a different perspective on the interactions—travel, trade, texts, religion, poetry, medicine, and art—rippling through Japanese society and across the waters that joined Japan and the continent.
