The Gold Coast in Transition

By David Apter

The author applies the insights and methods of social science in a study of the amazing development of the Gold Coast, the first African colony to make the transition from a tribal dependency to a parliamentary democracy. This book is both a graphic account of the Gold Coast today and an intensive case study of political change. "A timely and important book . . . extraordinarily useful to anyone trying to understand the emergent revolutionary situations in Africa and elsewhere outside the Western World."—William O. Brown, Director, Boston University Research & Study Program. 370 pages. Illustrated. $5

The Politics of Compromise

A Study of Parties and Cabinet Government in Sweden

By Dankwart A. Rustow

How is it that Sweden has been able to combine political stability with an entrenched multiparty system? How has she been able to produce such remarkable achievements in economic policy, social welfare, labor relations, and international cooperation? In this first comprehensive study of Swedish parties and cabinet government, the author attempts to answer these questions by examining the delicate, yet effective, means of compromise worked out by the political parties. 288 pages. $5

The Bourgeoisie in 18th Century France

By Elinor G. Barber

By delving into the religious, economic, social, and political attitudes and practices of the French bourgeoisie in the 18th century, the author dispels the idea that they were a revolutionary class bent on the destruction of the ancien regime. Instead, she reveals that only slowly and partially did they become antagonistic to the established society. 178 pages. $3.50
