

SOUTHEAST ASIAN AFFAIRS 1975

The growing importance of Southeast Asia — economically, politically, and strategically — has generated keen interest and the need to be informed of the events and trends which are shaping the region and affecting the world.

Southeast Asian Affairs 1975 offers scholars, researchers, businessmen, and policy-makers — as well as the discerning general reader — the wealth of information and the perspectives they seek.

In clear and penetrating studies, Southeast Asian Affairs 1975 analyses such topics of regional concern as Stagflation and the Diplomatic Emergence of China and its Implications for the Region; examines the Security Situation in Peninsular Malaysia and the Position of Muslim Minorities in the Philippines and Thailand; discusses the Rundown of Australian and British Forces and the Wider Question of Stability and Security in the Region; and considers the Possible Impact and Implications of Japan's Recent Anti-Foreign Trend. In addition to these, specific issues on a country by country basis are given.

SOUTHEAST ASIAN AFFAIRS 1975

- * The only publication of its kind wholly devoted to Southeast Asia.
- * Published under the auspices of the Institute of Southeast Asian Studies — a regional research centre for scholars and other specialists concerned with modern Southeast Asia.
- * Discussion of issues and in-depth analysis of topics are from the vantage point of the area.
- * Though scholarly in approach, the Annual avoids being too academic or forbidding in terms of style and citation.
- * Stimulating and authoritative, providing an up-to-date account of significant political, economic, and social developments and trends in the region — factors essential to understanding conditions and problems today and helping anticipate tomorrow.
- * An indispensable source material and reference guide.
