Popular Music is an international multi-disciplinary journal covering all aspects of the subject - from the formation of social group identities through popular music, to the workings of the global music industry, to how particular pieces of music are put together. The journal includes all kinds of popular music, whether rap or rai, jazz or rock, from any historical era and any geographical location. Popular Music carries articles by scholars from a variety of disciplines and theoretical perspectives. Each issue contains substantial, authoritative and influential articles, topical pieces, and reviews of a wide range of books. Some issues are thematic. The editors also welcome polemical pieces for the 'Middle Eight' section of the journal. Contributors should consult the 'Notes' on the inside back cover.

Articles and any other material not related to reviews should be submitted online at cambridge.org/pmu. Any queries relating to submissions may be addressed to popularmusic@cambridge.org. Material for review should be sent to Dai Griffiths, email dmgriffiths@brookes.ac.uk.

Subscriptions Popular Music (ISSN 0261-1430) is published four times a year in February, May, October and December. Four parts form a volume. The subscription price (excluding VAT) for Volume 41 which includes print and electronic access to institutional subscribers is £479 (USA, Canada and Mexico $818); print only for individuals is £82 (USA, Canada and Mexico $125). Single parts cost £137 (USA, Canada and Mexico $226). An online only price is available to institutional subscribers for £392 (USA, Canada and Mexico $656). EU subscribers (outside the UK) who are not registered for VAT should add VAT at their country's rate. VAT registered subscribers should provide their VAT registration number. Orders, which must be accompanied by payment, may be sent to a bookseller, subscription agent or direct to the publisher: Cambridge University Press, Journals Fulfillment Department, University Printing House, Shaftesbury Road, Cambridge CB2 8BS, UK. The Contributors

OLA K. BERGE (PhD) is a senior researcher at the Telemark Research Institute, where he leads the Department of Cultural Policy Research. Berge has broad experience from various research and development projects, most prominently from the field of culture, but also research fields such as regional development. He holds a particular interest in cultural sociology and international cultural policy, and his work has focused on topics including popular culture in Foreign Cultural Policy.

BÅRD KLEPPE (PhD) works as a senior researcher at Telemark Research Institute. He has conducted a number of research projects on cultural policy, cultural sociology and the creative industries and published a number of evaluations, reports, and scientific articles on these topics. Kleppe holds a PhD in Cultural Studies from the University College of Southeast Norway. His PhD project was a comparative study of cultural policy and artistic work in three European countries.

ELLIOT MARLOW-STEVENS is a PhD student at Durham University researching music and aesthetics in the 20th century. His interests are in musical subcultures, aesthetics in both continental and analytic philosophy, and in the broader notions of the concept of art.

ALYSSA MICHAUD is Assistant Professor in Music at Ambrose University. She has presented her work on music and technology in music at conferences in Canada, the U.S., and Japan, and her most recent work appears in Keyboard Perspectives. Currently, her research focuses on the relationship between technology and live performance, examining the dynamics between audiences and artists in today's technologically mediated society.

JULIA SIMON is Professor of French, affiliated faculty in Music, and on the faculty of the Cultural Studies Graduate Group at the University of California, Davis. She is the author of five books, including Time in the Blues (Oxford UP, 2017) and the forthcoming The Inconvenient Lonnie Johnson: Blues, Race, Identity (Penn State UP, 2022).

DAVE WILSON is Senior Lecturer in Music and Jazz Performance Programme Director at Te Herenga Waka-Victoria University of Wellington (Aotearoa New Zealand). His work integrates ethnographic research, performance, and composition and has been supported by the ACLS, American Councils for International Education, and the Aaron Copland Fund for Music. He is co-author of the music appreciation textbook Gateways to Understanding Music (Routledge), and his publications include articles in Commoning Ethnography, Ethnomusicology, Leonardo Music Journal, and Music & Politics. As a composer and performer on saxophone and other wind instruments, his recordings include the collaborative albums SLANT (2019) and In Passing (2017). He has been a member of the Jazz Advisory Panel for the Wellington Jazz Festival since 2018.

JEFF WRAGG is the Programme Manager for the Music and Audio Institute of New Zealand (MAINZ). He gained his PhD and Masters degrees from Waikato University and his Bachelor of Music from Berklee College of Music. His research interests include the cultural and technological associations inherent in sampling, the role of producer as composer, and practice-based/practice-led creative research methodologies within popular music. He has published numerous journal articles on popular music analysis and presented at conferences in New Zealand, the United States, and Europe. In addition to teaching and writing he is an active composer, producer, and performer and releases music under the moniker Massenai.
