NOTES ON THE CONTRIBUTORS

GUILLERMO O'DONNELL is Director of the Center of Studies of State and Society (CEDES). Author of Modernization and Bureaucratic-Authoritarianism, he is also active with the CLACSO working group studying the state.

VERA BLINN REBER is Associate Professor of Latin American and African History at Shippensburg State College in Pennsylvania. Her primary research interest is in nineteenth-century economic history and nineteenth- and twentieth-century art.

JAY KINSBRUNER teaches History at Queens College, CUNY, and specializes in the period 1750–1850. Among his books is Diego Portales: Interpretative Essays. In 1967 he was Fulbright Lecturer in History to Venezuela.

JORGE I. DOMÍNGUEZ is Associate Professor of Government and a Research Fellow of the Center for International Affairs, Harvard University. His book, Cuba: Order and Revolution in the Twentieth Century, is forthcoming this year from Belknap Press. He has also published articles on political development, international politics of less developed states, contemporary Cuba, and the Latin American wars of independence period.

ROBERTO ETCHEPAREBORDA has written extensively about the national period of Argentine history. A member of the Argentine National Academy of History, he was at one time Dean and then Rector of the National University of the South (Bahia Blanca). From 1975 to 1977 he was Visiting Professor of History at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. His current research deals with geopolitics in Latin America in the twentieth century and with the career of Estanislao Zeballos.

DONNA J. GUY is Assistant Professor of History at the University of Arizona and book review editor for the Hispanic American Historical Review. She is the author of "Tucumán Sugar Politics and the Generation of Eighty," The Americas 32:4 (April 1976) and is currently studying the politics of domestic industry in late nineteenth-century Argentina.

JOHN CROTHERS POLLOCK is Assistant Professor of Political Science and Sociology and an Adjunct in the Department of Journalism and Urban Communications at Rutgers University (Livingston College). Formerly director of the Latin American Institute at Rutgers, he is senior editor of Studies in Comparative International Development and author of The Politics of Crisis and Reporting: American Journalism and Foreign Affairs (forthcoming).

JON S. VINCENT, an obvious pseudonym, left town to avoid the forwarding of bomb threats, but persists in writing letters on stationery apparently purloined from the Department of Spanish and Portuguese of the University of Kansas.

LOUIS A. PÉREZ, JR. is Associate Professor of History at the University of South Florida. He is presently researching the Cuban independence period between 1895 and 1902. He is the author of Army Politics in Cuba, 1898–1958 (1976).

ANTHONY P. MAINGOT teaches Sociology at Florida International University in Miami. He works on Caribbean social and political history.

NEW in the PLAS PITT Latin 7 American Series

THE OVERTHROW OF ALLENDE AND THE POLITICS OF CHILE, 1964-1976/Paul E. Sigmund

Although there has been no lack of angry rhetoric and suspicion about the overthrow of Salvador Allende's socialist government in Chile, no one has yet offered an exhaustive, objective account of what happened, or a balanced analysis of how and why it occurred. Now Paul Sigmund, who has studied Chile for more than a decade and has lived and taught there, has written such an account. $14.95

CUBAN SUGAR POLICY FROM 1963 TO 1970/Heinrich Brunner, translated by Marguerite Borchardt and H. F. Broch de Rothermann

After describing Cuba's development strategy and plans, the author evaluates their implementation and success. Finally he explains the effects of the accelerated development of the sugar industry on the rest of the Cuban domestic economy. Includes 34 tables. $9.95

THE UNITED STATES AND CUBA: HEGEMONY AND DEPENDENT DEVELOPMENT, 1880-1934/Jules Robert Benjamin

From its independence from Spain in 1898 until the 1960s, Cuba was dominated by the political and economic presence of the United States. This book is a study of that unequal relationship through 1934: its structure, development, sources in the United States, and effects on Cuba. "A very impressive study . . . it will be a significant and well-known book. . . . This is first-class scholarship."—David Healy $14.95

GAITAN OF COLOMBIA: A POLITICAL BIOGRAPHY/Richard Sharpless

Jorge Eliécer Gaitán, assassinated in Bogotá in 1948, was the outstanding populist leader in Colombia during the 1930s and 1940s. In this detailed account of his political career, his ability to mobilize the dispossessed masses is examined as a response to the modernization crisis of a traditional society. A charismatic leader, Gaitán provided an emotional and ideological focus for the populist movement. $11.95

Race and Class in Colonial Oaxaca

John K. Chance. The central concern of this study of changing social stratification in the city of Oaxaca is the development and function of the sistema de castas—the system of ranked ethnic statuses, encoded in Spanish law, that emerged in response to the growth of the New World's racially mixed population. Rejecting previous interpretations of the system, the author uses a wealth of new anthropological and historical data to demonstrate that it was far from static throughout the three centuries of colonial rule, and much less rigid than commonly supposed. $14.00

Announcing Four New Titles on Latin America

VENEZUELA

The Democratic Experience

Edited by JOHN D. MARTZ and DAVID J. MYERS

Venezuela's experience with democratic reformism from 1959 to the present is the subject of this authoritative work on politics in contemporary Venezuela. In-depth analyses of political institutions, interest group participation, and policy-making processes contribute to a comprehensive, incisive study of one of Latin America's few remaining democracies. The volume examines the roles of political parties, the military, the church, labor, business, and students; and evaluates government policies in key areas including administration, Indian affairs, petroleum, and foreign policy. The authors appraise the viability of the democratic reformist model for Venezuela, with important implications for other Latin American political systems.

THE LEGACY OF POPULISM IN BOLIVIA

From the MNR to Military Rule

CHRISTOPHER MITCHELL

A critical analysis of Bolivia's political development from 1952 to the present. The author probes the decline of a major Latin American populist movement—the National Revolutionary Movement (MNR)—and studies the military regimes that have ruled the country since the MNR's collapse. Dr. Mitchell argues that the MNR's ultimate failure grew out of its inability to represent a pluralist constituency while safeguarding the interests of a rising middle class. He emphasizes that the political fragmentation inherited from the MNR period has continued to characterize the military years, and discourages both popular support for and organized opposition to military rule. The Bolivian experience is compared with other Latin American populist parties.

Kenneth Paul Erickson

In his analysis of the strengths and weaknesses of organized labor in Brazil, Erickson highlights the corporative ideology of the conservative modernizers who designed the modern Brazilian state in the 1930s. He demonstrates how the corporative labor laws, which created the present structure of labor organizations, have subjected trade-union leadership, finances, and activities to state control.

THE COMPLETE CARIBBEANA 1900-1975: A BIBLIOGRAPHIC GUIDE TO THE SCHOLARLY LITERATURE

By Lambros Comitas
Professor of Anthropology and Education
Teacher's College, Columbia University

The Complete Caribbeana is a four-volume bibliography containing over 17,000 articles, books, reports and doctoral dissertations published in the twentieth century. The geographical areas covered include Surinam, French Guiana, Guyana, Belize, Bermuda, the Bahamas, and all nations, associated states, and colonies of the Greater and Lesser Antilles, with the exception of Haiti and the Spanish-speaking territories.

The organization of the bibliography is topical; titles appear in more than one subject category when appropriate. In addition to complete bibliographic information, each entry contains a geographic designation and a code indicating the library in which the cited material can be found. Citations of material in foreign languages include an English translation of the title. Two indices are provided—an author index and a geographical index. This bibliography supersedes Professor Comitas' one volume Caribbeana 1900-1965: A Topical Bibliography.

Peasant Politics

Struggle in a Dominican Village

Kenneth Evan Sharpe

Drawing on his own two years of residence with a peasant family, Sharpe provides an insider's view of the life and politics of one community in the Dominican Republic. He traces the roots and dynamics of a peasant movement as it struggles against entrenched middlemen whose control over capital, credit, and marketing give them the power to fix the value of the major cash crop of the region—coffee. Not only economic but also cultural elements which shape the struggle are analyzed (local kinship structures, patron-client relations, peasant beliefs, and the unusual activists role played by the Catholic Church). Following the lead of dependencia theorists, Sharpe links the structure of local production with the national and international coffee marketing system. $15.00

Cities and Frontiers in Brazil

Regional Dimensions of Economic Development

Martin T. Katzman

Brazil bases its aspirations for world-power status on its ability to dominate and reshape its vast space. Mr. Katzman focuses here on Brazil's diverse policies for controlling frontier settlement, regional integration, and urbanization—the creation of growth poles, development highways, and fiscal incentives—in a thorough analysis of the neglected spatial dimensions of economic development. This book is unique both in its interdisciplinary approach, drawing upon materials from anthropology, political science, history, geography, and economics, and in its full analysis of the interrelationships between urban and rural development. $16.50

Marxism in Latin America

Revised Edition
Edited with an Introduction by
Luis E. Aguilar

This classic text has been thoroughly updated to cover the events of the last decade, including the fall of the Allende government in 1972. Also newly added are writings by Fidel Castro on Cuba's Angolan involvement and its support of Soviet action in Czechoslovakia; by Teodoro Petkoff of Venezuela presenting the first important dissent within a Latin American Communist party; and six other articles on topics ranging from the failure of the urban guerrilla to the "Peruvian Revolution." This book remains the only collection of primary and interpretive documents on Marxism by Latin Americans.

LIFE IN A MEXICAN SHANTYTOWN

By LARISSA ADLER LOMNITZ

A Volume in the STUDIES IN ANTHROPOLOGY Series

This book, a revised translation of ¿Como Sobreviven los Marginados? (Siglo XXI, Mexico City, 1976), presents a detailed study of the social and economic structure of a Mexico City shantytown based on repeated house-to-house surveys and an extended period of participant observation. Using a combination of anthropological and sociological field methods, the author demonstrates the migration patterns, residential patterns, and occupational patterns which all point to the overriding importance of social networks as an underlying mechanism of economic survival.

THE WOOL EXPORT ECONOMY AND REGIONAL SOCIETY IN SOUTHERN PERU

By BENJAMIN S. ORLOVE

A Volume in the STUDIES IN ANTHROPOLOGY Series

One of the few anthropological studies of a regional society in Latin America, this groundbreaking examination of the Sicuani region in southern highland Peru sets forth a new analytical model as an alternative to the theories of modernization and dependency. Although this sectorial model shares the historical materialist orientation of dependency theory, it is considerably more flexible and draws on current work in anthropology, particularly cultural ecology, studies of complex societies, and actor-based approaches. Fundamentally processual in nature, the sectorial model offers a precise, accurate analysis of the nature of social conflict and the relation between the economy and the state.
