The Letters of Charles and Mary Anne Lamb

Volume III: 1809-1817

Edited by EDWIN W. MARRS, Jr. Rich in revelations about the extraordinary lives of the Lambs, these beautifully written letters are an inexhaustible store of information about the Romantic era and its major figures. "Charles Lamb's letters need no recommendation. ...Marrs' edition will contain more than 1150 letters when complete, including about 100 not previously published. Here, probably for a long time to come, is the standard edition of Lamb's finest work." —Library Journal. $35.00

THE SENSE OF THE SEVENTIES A Rhetorical Reader

Edited by PAUL J. DOLAN, State University of New York, Stony Brook, and EDWARD QUINN, City College, City University of New York

This decade's sequel to the editors' enormously popular earlier volume, The Sense of the Seventies captures the tones of our time expressed by a wide range of commentators, including journalists, novelists and non-fiction writers, popular and academic critics, a politician, an activist playwright, a humorist, and a criminal. The more than seventy selections offered here have in common a commitment to honesty of feeling and expression in their diverse approaches to core experiences. Pieces by "Adam Smith," Gloria Steinem, Nat Hentoff, Studs Terkel, Joan Didion, Gail Sheehy, Tom Wicker, Susan Brownmiller and others are arranged in thematic units: The Sense of the Seventies; The Power and the Press; The Search of the Seventies; People; Pop Culture; Male/Female; Scenes of the Seventies; Working; Race; Terror/ Violence/Crime; The Limits of Life; and A Sense of the Future. Recording the vitality of the contemporary voice, The Sense of the Seventies provides for both student and teacher an engaging approach to composition. Its selections have been carefully chosen for the level of reading they require and for their usefulness as rhetorical teaching tools. Questions for discussion accompany each piece. A Rhetorical Table of Contents facilitates classroom use of the reader.

February 1978 500 pp. paper $6.00

A Teacher's Manual, indicating the reading level of each piece, will also be available.

GREAT FILM DIRECTORS A Critical Anthology

Edited by LEO BRAUDY, The Johns Hopkins University, and MORRIS DICKSTEIN, Queens College, City University of New York. Film Directors is an extraordinarily rich source-book on the careers and individual films of twenty-three of the world's most important directors. It surveys the full range of critical perspectives in more than eighty selections. Some pieces cover entire careers or highlights—Michael Wood on Buñuel, Braudy on Renoir, Pechter on Ford—while others treat a representative film—Sontag on Persona, Kael on Shoot the Piano Player and Jules and Jim. A number of essays deal with particular directors in light of a specific aesthetic theory, for example, Christian Metz on "Mirror Construction in Fellini's 8 1/2." The editors have also included statements by directors on the work of other filmmakers—Buñuel on Lang, Ray on Renoir, Rivette on Hawks.

March 1978 650 pp. paper $7.50

COMEDY HIGH AND LOW

An Introduction to the Experience of Comedy
MAURICE CHARNEY, Rutgers University. Comedy High and Low is a lively exploration of the nature of comedy. In his own teaching Professor Charney has discovered how difficult it is to talk about comedy, which, unlike tragedy, has no common vocabulary, nothing comparable to "tragic flaw," "pity and fear," or "catharsis." He considers fundamental questions in his search for a mode of critical discourse: "Why is something comic? What are the comic conventions? How does the author elicit laughter, and to what purpose?" Comedy High and Low seeks to bridge the gap between comic literature, especially stage comedy, and the popular comedy of jokes, graffiti, and the comic happenings of daily life. With examples taken from major figures of stage comedy, from Aristophanes to Stoppard, it brings an historical perspective to the subject. An extensive critical bibliography supplements this provocative and highly readable book.

ELEMENTS OF LITERATURE

Essay, Fiction, Poetry, Drama, Film

Edited by

ROBERT SCHOLES,

Brown University;

CARL KLAUS,

University of Iowa; and

MICHAEL SILVERMAN,

Brown University

Elements of Literature provides a rich sampling of fiction, poetry, and drama and a survey of the historical development of each genre as well. In addition to full representation in these traditional anthology areas, a unit on the essay and one on the film are offered. The teaching value of Elements of Literature is enhanced by the editors' exemplary analyses of several pieces within each genre and by their lively introductions and critical remarks. For easy reference, the editors supply a glossary with each unit. Throughout the volume women writers are well represented.

1978 1,416 pp.; 17 illus. paper $10.00
A Teacher's Manual is available.

DECISIVE WRITING

An Improvement Program

LINDA DRISKILL, Rice University, and

MARGARET SIMPSON, San Jacinto College.

Most good writing results from a set of decisions made by the writer about his subject, his audience, his purposes, and the expressive options he commands. Decisive Writing aims to make student writers aware of the nature of decisions made in successful writing and to aid them in evaluating the implicit choices in their own writing. It may be used in a self-paced writing lab or a traditional classroom.

February 1978 300 pp.; 3 illus. paper $5.00
A Teacher's Manual will be available.

FICTION

Nature and Industrialization

An Anthology

Edited by ALASDAIR CLAYRE. □ This rich collection of poetry and prose traces the social, literary, industrial, and cultural development of Britain from 1760 to 1860—the century of industrialization. The selections are divided into twenty-five sections, each focusing on a particular aspect of the general theme. The introduction explains the sequence of the sections and the selection of extracts. Also included are editorial comments on individual extracts and brief biographical notes on each author represented.

Sir Leslie Stephen's Mausoleum Book

Edited with an Introduction by ALAN BELL. □ Sir Leslie Stephen (1832-1904), first editor of the Dictionary of National Biography and father of Vanessa Bell and Virginia Woolf, was one of the great minds of late Victorian Britain. His Mausoleum Book, only recently made available for study, sheds new light on his private life and on his own literary reputation. It is an intimate autobiography written for his immediate family after the death of his second wife. The impact of that event on his teenage daughters is well known, and this edition emphasizes its importance, and the relevance of the Mausoleum Book as an influence on the writings of Virginia Woolf.

BEN. JONSON AND ELIZABETHAN COMEDY

Essays in Dramatic Rhetoric

by L. A. Beurline

Ben Johnson said that he loathed the stage; however he continued to write for it. For more than thirty years he lectured, fooled, and delighted his audiences, experimenting with various modes of comedy, always stamping them with his own inventive genius. Jonson's comedy is compared here with that of Lyly and Shakespeare; a later chapter offers a brilliant study of Bartholomew Fair. Mr. Beurline writes with enthusiasm and wit, and his book makes important reading for all students of Jonson and his times. Mar. 1978, app. 384 pp., illus. $14.50

The Bitter Air of Exile

Russian Writers in the West, 1922-1972

Edited by Simon Karlinsky and Alfred Appel, Jr.

For the first time in English the work of the best Russian writers of the century. This book offers samples of the writings of some of the finest Russian émigré novelists, poets and critics as well as essays about their work by Russian émigré commentators and by American literary scholars. Among the writers represented are such major figures as Aleksei Remizov, Marina Tsvetaeva, Khodasevich, V. S. Yanovsky, Nabokov and Poplavsky. Also included is an important essay on Tolstoy by Khodasevich and previously untranslated memoirs about Chekhov, Esenin and Bunin.

Samuel Johnson

Selected Poetry and Prose

Edited with an Introduction and Notes by

Frank Brady and W. K. Wimsatt

A major new selection of Samuel Johnson's best work. This first extensive anthology of Johnson's writings to be published in many years emphasizes Johnson the writer. It responds to those aspects of his work of special interest to modern readers. It comprises a selection of Johnson's letters, all of his major poems, Rasselas, twenty-one Ramblers, nineteen Idlers, the Prefaces to the Dictionary and to the edition of Shakespeare, and several Lives of the Poets.

Soviet Semiotics

An Anthology

edited, translated, and with an introduction

by Daniel P. Lucid

Semiotics, the science of signs, is now the fastest-growing and most lively structuralist discipline. Writing on general concepts, modeling systems, communications studies, text analyses, art and literature, and the typology of culture, a number of distinguished Soviet scholars add a fresh and exciting dimension to Western thinking in this field. Fortunetelling by cards and moves in a game of chess, folk myths, cybernetic codes, and rules of social etiquette . . . such phenomena, they show, must all be interpreted according to the conventions of a specific sign language. $16.00

Sensible Words

Linguistic Practice in England, 1640-1785

Murray Cohen

"A work of learning and insight. The impressive scholarship serves to bring out with great clarity the fundamental ideas and interests guiding the study of language in 17th- and 18th-century England. . . . He makes a convincing case that the basic linguistics of the period give a revealing expression of its intellectual life."—Noam Chomsky, Massachusetts Institute of Technology $12.50

Violence and the Sacred

René Girard

translated by Patrick Gregory

"René Girard's La Violence et Le Sacré is not only a very great book but it is also a unique and fundamentally contemporary book." — Le Monde (about the French edition).

An anthropological and literary examination of myth and ritual in human society, René Girard's profound work demonstrates that violence pervades all forms of the sacred. The author draws deeply on Greek myth and tragedy and on the rites of tribal peoples in all parts of the world to show fundamental similarities in religious thought and observance. $17.50

Mozart and Beethoven

The Concept of Love in Their Operas

Irving Singer

"By probing the mythic, erotic, and literary sources for the operas, Singer achieves the ideal critical result — he sends us back to the theatre with renewed enthusiasm for opera's 'impossibilities'." — John Harbison, M.I.T.

Drawing upon distinctions he has formulated in earlier books on love and human sexuality, Singer traces the artistic and spiritual development of Mozart during his last ten years and of Beethoven during his middle period. Mozart's use of the Don Juan myth, the author believes, is central to an understanding of the composer's worldview. He contrasts Mozart's celebration of male sensuousness with Beethoven's idealized approach to fidelity. 160 pages. $10.00

The Semantics of Metaphor

Samuel R. Levin

"The poet,' said Sir Philip Sidney, 'nothing affirms, and therefore never lieth;' and while some literary theorists have continued to concur, the relationship between trope and truth have not remained so elegantly simple for students of language and logic. Professor Levin has provided a systematic theoretical treatment of the ways by which metaphors mean what they mean. His work will be of central importance to students of every sort of discourse and of text." — John Hollander, Yale University

"Levin's work will appeal strongly to those who realize that a more modern attitude, inspired by linguistics and semiotics, is the only kind that can save the study of literature in our universities." — Michael Riffaterre, Columbia University $12.00

Luxury

The Concept in Western Thought, Eden to Smollett

John Sekora

"Sekora's book is clear and informative and the first comprehensive treatment of the topos Luxury. He shows that in the 18th century Luxury is a concept that is peculiarly literary in its richness of associations . . . This period, Sekora reveals, represents the transition from the negative interpretation (the traditional one in which luxury virtually equals lust), to the positive one of Mandeville, Hume, and Adam Smith, and it is an important crux of literary as well as economic history." — Ronald Paulson, Yale University

THE CORRESPONDENCE OF HAROLD FREDERIC

The aim of the Harold Frederic Edition is to make available to scholars the basic materials necessary for a reevaluation of the achievement of novelist and journalist Harold Frederic (1856-1898). The London correspondent to the New York Times, Frederic was largely responsible for the paper's reputation as a source of international news and opinion. As a writer, he wrote in a variety of fictional modes, revealing his subtle thinking and powerful artistry. In two prophetic novels written late in his life he sketched the traumatic changes which Americans faced in the century to come.

The first volume of the Harold Frederic Edition, a series of Modern Language Approved texts edited in accordance with the principles of the Center for Editions of American Authors and the Center for Scholarly Editions.

Edited by Stanton Garner, Charlyne Dodge, George E. Fortenberry, and Robert H. Woodward.

Hardbound, 6x9, 615 pages, $22.00.

Writer's Guide and Index to English Sixth Edition

Wilma R. Ebbitt, The Pennsylvania State University
David R. Ebbitt

The Sixth Edition, revised and updated throughout, speaks directly to today's students in language that is fresh and alive. The reorganized Guide now offers a more logical, more teachable, more flexible approach to college writing. Abundant exercises help students gain control of the writing process, while interesting and varied writing samples help them develop criteria for judging and improving their own work. A new chapter describes, with an example, a practical approach to writing about a literary work. Alphabetical organization and extensive cross-referencing in the Index lead students quickly and easily to handbook articles. January 1978, 736 pages, illustrated, hardbound, approx. $10.95, with A Teacher's Guide to the Writer's Guide.

Contemporary College Reader

Joyce Steward, The University of Wisconsin, Madison

Forty-seven unusually stimulating and readable essays provide examples of expository methods students can apply to their own writing. An introductory chapter shows how writers find and record ideas and impressions. Each subsequent chapter briefly discusses a specific rhetorical mode, analyzes one essay, and provides at least three additional essays, each accompanied by helpful study questions. January 1978, approx. 384 pages, paperback, approx. $5.50, with Instructor's Manual

Handbook of Current English Fifth Edition

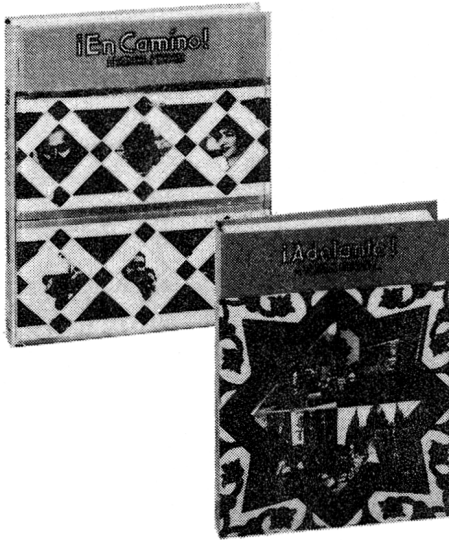

Jim W. Corder, Texas Christian University
The habit-forming handbook—with Instructor's Manual, new students' workbook (see below), and Diagnostic Test—is now the basis of the most complete program available for freshman composition courses. Reorganized to show the writing process more logically, the Fifth Edition includes new and revised exercises, simplified examples, several new summary charts, and an all-new Glossary of Usage. January 1978, approx. 544 pages, paperback, approx. $7.50

Workbook of Current English

William E. Mahaney, Salem State College
Corresponding to the sections in the Handbook of Current English, this new workbook provides clear, detailed explanations of specific writing principles and reinforces them with imaginative written exercises. January 1978, approx. 320 pages, paperback, approx. $5.50, with Answer Key

Writing Research Papers A Complete Guide Second Edition

James D. Lester, Austin Peay State University
The number one research-paper manual helps beginning researchers write papers with skill, ease, and authority. 1976, 196 pages, illustrated, paperback $2.95, with Instructor's Manual iEn camino! / iAdelante!

Eduardo Neale-Silva / Robert L. Nicholas
The University of Wisconsin, Madison

iEn camino! and iAdelante!—Scott, Foresman's exciting new texts for beginning and intermediate Spanish—provide a complete and effective program that makes students feel at home with new language skills. Both texts involve students totally in the cultures and customs of Hispanic peoples throughout the Spanish-speaking world. Emphasizing sound teaching practices, they feature short, interesting readings on a wide range of topics, brief and clear grammatical explanations, creative oral and written exercises, a self-test after every third lesson to help students check their own progress and mastery of material, and an extensive illustration program of photos, drawings, maps, songs, and authentic documents.

iEn camino!

Progress in Spanish Grammar and Practice for the Second Year Second Edition

Ruth Katz Crispin, Belmont College
John Crispin, Vanderbilt University

More useful vocabulary, a more complete review of troublesome points of grammar for English-speaking students, and more practice with basic speech patterns reflect the practical emphasis in the revised edition of this popular second-year text. Other revisions include 50% new reading selections and a new illustration program. Spring 1978, approx. 320 pages, illustrated, hardbound, approx. $9.95, with Instructor's Manual

New Supplementary Program

The new students' Workbook and Laboratory Manual for Progress in Spanish, Second Edition, is designed to be used in conjunction with the text to reinforce and check students' progress. Answer Key included. Spring 1978, approx. 160 pages, illustrated, paperback, approx. $3.95

All-new Tapes for Progress in Spanish, Second Edition, supply approximately seven hours of oral practice with exercises keyed to the workbook. 1978, available for duplication

A New Variorum Edition of Shakespeare

AS YOU LIKE IT

Edited by
RICHARD KNOWLES

With a Survey of Criticism by
EVELYN JOSEPH MATTERN, IHM

The New Variorum Edition of As You Like It is the one book in which scholars can expect to find everything significant about this widely studied play. The volume presents the first edition of 1623 and traces it through forty-seven historically important editions completely and through thirty-six editions partially. Elaborate notes, which synthesize the works of some two thousand scholars and critics, provide literary and dramatic insights. A lengthy appendix discusses such subjects as the history of the text, the date of composition, the work's sources, its stage history, the music of the play (scores are included), the theme, the characters, and the literary style. Included is a complete version of Lodge's Rosalynde, the play's major source. Published 1 September 1977. 737 pages. Hardbound. $50.00.

Also Available . . .

BIBLIOGRAPHIES TO SUPPLEMENT THE NEW VARIORUM EDITIONS OF SHAKESPEARE

Henry the Fourth, Part One

The Life and Death of King Richard II

Compiled by Matthew W. Black and G. Harold Metz. 1977. 31 pp. Paperbound. $5.00.

A hardbound edition including all four of these bibliographies is available for $19.00.

Listing books and articles that have appeared since the publication of the New Variorum Editions of the plays, these bibliographies not only are necessary supplements for the Variorums but are, in themselves, valuable references enabling scholars to keep up with recent Shakespearian studies.

A NEW VARIORUM EDITION OF SHAKESPEARE: TROILUS AND CRESSIDA

Edited by Harold N. Hillebrand. An authoritative edition of the play with textual variants, critical commentary, and extensive background material. 1953. 613 pp. Clothbound. $20.00.

TIME, SPACE, AND VALUE: The Narrative Structure of the New Arcadia
by Arthur K. Amos, Jr.

This study advances three related arguments: that Sidney's use of multiple, matrixlike narrations makes of the poem an anatomy of the arts of love and government; that the work's rhetorical structure internalizes audience and narrator, enabling Sidney's audience to come feelingly to terms with his subjects; and that Sidney orders each book by one of the fundamental conceptual modes—space, time, and value.

MAKERS OF THE TWENTIETH-CENTURY NOVEL

Edited by Harry R. Garvin

These recent essays were selected for their intrinsic critical vitality, significance, and special interest at the present time. The emphasis is on the early masters: Joyce, Virginia Woolf, Conrad, Lawrence, Proust, Gide, Malraux, Mann, Kafka, James, Faulkner, Fitzgerald, Nabokov. Authors of those articles that had already appeared in Bucknell Review were given an opportunity to revise and comment on their essays in the light of recent criticism and scholarship.

GEORGE CRABBE AND THE PROGRESS OF EIGHTEENTH-CENTURY NARRATIVE VERSE

by Beth Nelson

"In the shadow of crumbling genres, Crabbe is a last survivor of Augustan satire. But Nelson's superb study acknowledges his poetry as more than an architectural remain. With a gift for brevity and a clear natural style that is a healthy reflection of her subject, Nelson places Crabbe's verse tales within the context of 18th-Century narrative traditions."—Joan Owen, Library Journal

THE CITY AND THE VELD: The Fiction of Doris Lessing

by Mary Ann Singleton

The author demonstrates how three dominant motifs—the unregenerated city, the ideal City, and the raw nature and primitiveness of the veld—recur throughout Lessing's fiction and epitomize her main theme: the need for a more highly developed consciousness than exists today. "In this lucid tribute to Lessing as social critic and prophet, Singleton puts forth an interesting and provocative interpretation of Lessing's major works."—Marsha A. Murphy, Library Journal

H. G. WELLS AND MODERN SCIENCE FICTION

Edited by Darko Suvin, with Robert M. Philmus, Associate Editor

The implicit governing premise of this book—that modern science fiction originates in H. G. Wells—finds expression in the essays by some of the foremost interpreters of Wells and science fiction. The essays follow three basic approaches: the first concentrates on the character of Wells's science fiction both in itself and as a model for later writers; the second grouping examines Wells's direct influence on modern science fiction; and the volume concludes with two bibliographical studies. "A stunning guide for all H. G. Wells fans."—Compass

COSMIC SATIRE IN THE CONTEMPORARY NOVEL

by John W. Tilton

Cosmic satire probes deeply into the origins of the discrepancy between reality and illusion, into the basic reasons for man's aberrant behavior, and into the nature of man, wherein lies the ultimate explanation of his cosmic plight. This study considers three novels: Barth's GILES GOAT-BOY, Burgess's A CLOCKWORK ORANGE, and Vonnegut's SLAUGHTERHOUSE-FIVE. The author concludes that the three novelists share a common conception of the good-evil duality of human nature and of the consequences of man's inability or refusal to recognize his true self.
