

World Development Report 1981

THE WORLD BANK

Adjustment, global and national, to promote sustainable growth in the changing world economy—this is the main theme of World Development Report 1981, the fourth in an annual series from the World Bank. Recession and inflation in the industrial countries, together with the rise in oil prices, have been the main forces at work in the world economy in the 1970s. The Report examines their effect on developing countries to see how adjustment has been managed and what lessons may be learned for the 1980s. Chapters present global and regional projections for the 1980s, consider international aspects of adjustment in trade, energy, and finance, and explore adjustment problems of different groups of developing countries and the prospects for human development. The Report also includes the 1981 World Development Indicators, a set of 25 tables of economic and social indicators for 124 countries. World Development Reports 1978, 1979, and 1980 are also available from Oxford.

NOTES FOR CONTRIBUTORS

Journal of Latin American Studies is published twice a year under the academic sponsorship of the Centres or Institutes of Latin American Studies at the Universities of Cambridge, Essex, Glasgow, Liverpool, London and Oxford.

The scope of the journal is the study of Latin America from the standpoint of the social sciences, including anthropology, archaeology, economics, geography, history, international relations, politics, sociology, etc., though it is not concerned with linguistic or literary studies.

Editorial policy avoids commitment to any political viewpoint or ideology, but welcomes free discussion of such issues in the Latin American context, on the understanding that all responsibility for opinions expressed rests exclusively with the author concerned and not with either the journal or its editors.

Contributions are invited from all parts of the world. Articles should generally not be more than 8,000 words long, and two copies, typed with double-spacing, should be submitted. Diagrams and maps may be included by arrangement with the editors. The journal is published in English, but articles written in other languages may be considered, and arrangements made as required for translation into English. Contributors should keep one copy of the typescript for use in correcting proofs.

All contributions and editorial correspondence should be addressed to Journal of Latin American Studies, Institute of Latin American Studies, 31 Tavistock Square, London, WC1H 9HA.

Each contributor will receive, free of charge, 25 offprints of their article and a copy of the issue of the journal in which it appears.
