George W. Rice, professor of political science, West Virginia University, effective May 1991.

Paul W. van der Veur, professor of political science emeritus, Ohio University.

Visiting and Temporary Appointments

James B. Christoph, Indiana University, held a visiting appointment at Nuffield College, Oxford University, during the Trinity Term, 1991.

Robert E. DiClerico, professor, West Virginia University, spring semester 1990-91, as an exchange professor at Exeter University, England.

Frank Fischer, Rutgers University, will spend the 1991-92 academic year as a senior Fulbright scholar teaching American politics and public policy at the Intitute for North American Studies of Free University of Berlin, Germany.

Ephraim Inbar, Bar-Ilan University, Israel, has been appointed as the Aaron & Cecile Goldman Visiting Israeli Professor, department of government, Georgetown University, 1991-92.

Ira Katznelson, New School for Social Research, is a visiting scholar, 1990-91, at the Russell Sage Foundation.

Gary Mucciaroni, New York University, is a visiting scholar, 1990-91, at the Russell Sage Foundation.

Clifford Orwin, University of Toronto, will be visiting professor of political science and co-director of the graduate workshop in political theory at the University of Chicago.

Margaret Weir, Harvard University, is a visiting scholar, 1990-91, at the Russell Sage Foundation.

Award Recipients

American Academy of Arts and Sciences

The American Academy of Arts and Sciences has announced the election of 195 new fellows and 21 foreign honorary members. Among them are the following political scientists and their affiliations.

Robert Bates, Duke University.

James W. Fesler, Yale University.

Gary C. Jacobson, University of California at San Diego.

Nannerl Overholser Keohane, Wellesley College.

John W. Kingdon, University of Michigan.

Stephen Krasner, Stanford University.

Elinor Ostrom, Indiana University.

Adam Przeworski, University of Chicago.

David O. Sears, University of California at Los Angeles.

American Association for the Advancement of Science

The following political scientists were elected in 1991 as Fellows of the American Association for the Advancement of Science. A Fellow is one whose efforts on behalf of the advancement of science or its applications are scientifically or socially distinguished.

Mark S. Frankel, American Association for the Advancement of Science.

Susan Hanson, Clark University.

Charlotte Newcombe Dissertation Fellowships

The 40 winners of the 1991 Charlotte W. Newcombe Doctoral Dissertation Fellowships will each receive a stipend of $11,500 to permit a final year of uninterrupted writing of their doctoral dissertations. Following are the politicl science students with their institutions and dissertation topics.

Joshua F. Dienstag, Princeton University. The Temple of History: Historical Thinking in Political Argument.

Debra A. Morris, Yale University. Politics without Foundations: The Postmodern Theories of Democracy.

Dirksen Center Congressional Research Grants

Fifteen writers, researchers, and graduate students will receive grants totalling $20,000 through the Dirksen Center's 1991 Congressional Research Grants Program. The grants range from $500 to $2,500 and all support studies of the U.S. Congress and congressional leadership.

This year's grant recipients with their affiliations and research topics are:

Scott Ainsworth, University of Georgia. Managing the Senate Floor: Leaders and Unanimous Consent Agreements.

William P. Browne, Central Michigan University. How Congress Decides: The Changing Dimensions of Agricultural, Rural and Related Environmental Policymaking.

Gregory A. Caldeira and Samuel C. Patterson, Ohio State University. The Social Matrix of Senate Leadership.

Jean M. Choate, Iowa State University. William Lemke and the National Farmers Process Tax Recovery Association.

Ken Collier, University of Kansas. White House Relations with Congress.

William F. Connelly, Jr., Washington and Lee University. The Permanent Minority Status of House Republicans.

Richard F. Fenno, Jr., University of Rochester. Research on the Explanatory Process in Senate Campaigns.

Shirley M. Geiger, University of South Carolina. The Effects of Environmental Change on Leadership Interactions and Decision Making in Subcommittees of the House Committee on Appropriations.

Malcolm E. Jewell, University of Kentucky, and Marcia L. Whicker, Virginia Commonwealth University. Comparing the Leadersip Styles of Congressional and State Legislative Leaders.

Janann Sherman, Rutgers University. From Senate to White House: Margaret Chase Smith in the "Presidential Incubator." Brooks D. Simpson, Arizona State University. Republican Realignment in the United States Senate, 1869-1880.

Barbara Sinclair, University of California-Riverside. Leadership Strength as a Response to Partisan Adversity: House Majority Party Leadership in the 1990s.

Randall W. Strahan, Emory University. Congressional Leadership in Institutional Time.

Randall B. Woods, University of Arkansas. A biography of Senator J. William Fulbright.

Envisioning Information

Edward Tufte's recent book, Envisioning Information, has received six awards for content and for design. Tufte wrote, designed, and published Envisioning Information. He is professor of political science and statistics, lecturer in law, and senior critic in graphic design at Yale University. The awards are:

George Wittenborn Memoriam Award for Excellence in Book Publishing, Art Libraries Society of North America, for those publications "which represent the best of art publishing, both in content and in presentation."

Best book design, 1990; National Association of Independent Publishers, 1990 book competition.

Association for Computing Machinery, SIGGRAPH Art and Design Show, two-dimensional publication design.

Computer Press Association, 1990 Computer Book (Nonfiction) Award.

American Institute of Graphic Arts, 1990 AIGA Book Show award.

Best Graphic Design, 1990; ID, Magazine of International Design.

Hoover Institution National Fellows

The Hoover Institution on War, Revolution and Peace, Stanford University, has awarded 12 post-doctoral National and Peace Fellowships for the 1991-92 academic year.

The 1991-92 fellows in political science, their affiliations, and topics are as follows:

Clifford Griffin, assistant professor, department of political science and public administration, North Carolina State University. A Rational Approach to Policy Making and Political Development: The Case of the English-speaking Caribbean.

Patrick James, associate professor, department of political science, McGill University. Elaborated Structural Realism and the Problems of Crisis and War.

James A. Leitzel, associate professor, department of public policy studies, Institute of Policy Sciences and Public Affairs, Duke University. Soviet Economic Reform.

Lisa L. Martin, assistant professor, department of political science, University of California, San Diego. Threats, Promises, and U.S. Foreign Assistance: An Institutional Perspective.

Dani Rodrick, associate professor, department of public policy, John F. Kennedy School, Harvard University. Studies on Economic Reform in the Developing World and Eastern Europe.

Marcia A. Weigle, assistant professor, department of government, Bowdoin College. The Emergence of Civil Society in Gorbachev's Russia: Facing the Failure of Liberalism.

National Science Foundation

The National Science Foundation has awarded 950 fellowships for graduate study in the natural and social sciences, mathematics, and engineering. Following are the political science graduate fellows, their baccalaureate institutions, and their graduate institutions.

Winston W. Riddick, Jr., Louisiana State University; University of Texas at Austin.

Jeffrey L. Robins, Stanford University; Columbia University.

Andrew Sabl, Harvard University; Harvard University.

Edward S. Steinfeld, Harvard University; Harvard University.

Sharon R. Wesoky, Brandeis University; Harvard University.

Pew Faculty Fellowships in International Affairs, 1991-92

The following political science faculty have been awarded Pew Faculty fellowships:

Steve Chan, professor, department of political science, University of Colorado at Boulder.

Gerald W. Fry, associate professor, department of political science, University of Oregon.

Charles F. Hermann, professor of political science, The Ohio State University.

Barry B. Hughes, professor, Graduate School of International Studies, University of Denver.

Steven G. Livingston, assistant professor, department of political science, State University of New York at Albany.

Patrick K. McGowan, professor, department of political science, Arizona State University.

George H. Mitchell, Jr., assistant professor, department of political science and Fletcher School, Tufts University.

Albert C. Pierce, professor, department of military strategy, National War College.

Gregory A. Raymond, professor, department of political science, Boise State University.

Carolyn Rhodes, assistant professor, department of political science, Utah State University.

Frances McCall Rosenbluth, assistant professor, Graduate School of International Relations and Pacific Studies, University of California at San Diego.

Eve Sandberg, assistant professor, department of government, Oberlin College.

Caesar D. Sereseres, associate professor, department of political science, University of California at Irvine.

Michael J. Sodaro, associate professor, department of political science and international affairs, The George Washington University.

People in Political Science

Steven L. Spiegel, professor, department of political science, University of California at Los Angeles.

Stephen D. Wrage, assistant professor, department of political science, United States Naval Academy.

U.S. Institute of Peace

The following unsolicited grants were awarded by the U.S. Institute of Peace in January 1991.

Education and Training

Atlantic Council of the United States, Washington, D.C. (John Baker, Project Director): A grant in support of a project designed to enhance prospects for increased civilian oversight of the armed forces in Central and Eastern Europe. $25,000.

Brown University, Providence, Rhode Island (Susan Graseck, Project Director): A grant to support the development of a citizen discussion series and a follow-on high school and college level curriculum on alternative visions of European security. $12,000.

National Institute for Citizen Participation and Negotiation, San Francisco, California (Raymond Shonholtz, Project Director): A grant in support of a training program designed to help create a capacity within Hungarian ministries, organizations, and unions to manage conflict and change through negotiation and mediation. $20,000.

National Institute for Public Policy, Fairfax, Virginia (Keith Payne, Project Director): A grant to continue support of a curriculum project which includes a program of teacher training workshops on the subject of peacekeeping in the nuclear age. $40,000.

Oregon Peace Institute, Portland, Oregon (Elizabeth Furse, Project Director): A grant to suport acquisition of simulations, books, and other materials dealing with conflict management and peace studies, for use at the secondary and collegiate levels. The project will also include training of personnel in the use of simulations in instructional settings. $30,000.

Search for Common Ground, Washington, D.C. (Betsy Cohen, Project Director): A grant in suport of a joint project with the Soviet Center for Conflict Resolution to train Soviet government and union officials in American principles and procedures of labor negotiation, mediation and collective bargaining. $20,000.

Library and Information Services

ACCESS: A Security Information Service, Washington, D.C. (Mary Lord, Project Director): A grant in support of a feasibility study on the establishment of a clearinghouse providing systematic bibliographic control of reports, occasional papers, conference proceedings, substantive newsletters and other literature in the area of peace, security and international relations which escapes the usual bibliographic control systems. $25,200.

California State University, Los Angeles, California (Richard Burns, Project Director): A grant to create a comprehensive, up-to-date bibliography, which will permit researchers to locate basic literature on contemporary and historical events dealing with arms control and disarmament issues. $14,220.

Yale University, New Haven, Connecticut (Jack Siggins, Project Director): A grant for the acquisition and processing of new materials from Eastern Europe and the Soviet Union on democratization and peace. $25,000.

Research and Studies

Canadian Centre for Arms Control and Disarmament, Ottawa, Canada (Tariq Rauf, Project Director): A grant to support research on regional approaches to nuclear non-proliferation. The project will explore regional deterrence dynamics, arms control, and confidence-building measures which might promote nonproliferation. $30,000.

Centro de Investigaciones Europeo-Latinoamericanas (EURAL), Buenos Aires, Argentina (Thomas Scheetz, Project Director): A grant in support of a comparative study of military expenditures as a potential threat to development and democratization in Argentina, Bolivia, Chile, Paraguay, and Peru from 1969 through 1989. $20,000.

City University of New York, New York, New York (Benjamin Rivlin, Project Director): A grant in support of a study on the impact of the changing international political climate on the role of the UN Office of the Secretary-General. $15,000.

Coutau-Bergarie, Herve, Paris, France: A grant to support research on contemporary naval arms control, including the problems of asymmetry in force levels and the difficulties of verification, in order to shape new approaches to future arms talks. $25,000.

Emory University, Atlanta, Georgia (Jan Gross, Project Director): A grant in support of a comparative social history of wartime regimes in Central and Eastern Europe. $20,000.

Foreign Policy Research Institute, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania (Daniel Pipes, Project Director): A grant in support of reseach on the potential for conflict between emigré Muslims in the West and the native citizens of their adopted countries. $25,000.

Garrett, Banning, Alexandria, Virginia: A grant to support research on the development and assessment of possible approaches for a transition to a non-adversarial post-Cold War relationship among major powers in Northeast Asia. $30,000.

George Mason University, Fairfax, Virginia (Richard Rubenstein, Project Director): A grant in support of a study on measures to enhance the organizational competence in mediation of the Organization of African Unity (OAU). $25,000.

George Washington University, Washington, D.C. (Nathan Brown, Project Director): A grant to support a study of the role that rule of law plays in a developing society such as Egypt, and the implications of the Egyptian case for other regimes in the Middle East. $10,000.

Harvard University, Center for Middle Eastern Studies, Cambridge, Massachusetts (Khosrow Shakeri, Project Director): A grant in support of a study analyzing the place of the Islamic Republic of Iran (IRI) in the new world order. $30,000.

Herspring, Dale R., Vienna, Virginia: A grant in support of a study of changes instituted by the Soviet military in the 1920s which could serve as a framework for understanding similar changes now underway. $20,000.

International Center for Development Policy, Washington, D.C. (Ning Lu, Project Director): A grant to support research on the potential for conflict, and the ways of managing and resolving interstate rivalry, in the South China Sea. $30,000.

Jia, Hao and Zhuang Qu-bing,

Arlington, Virginia: A grant in support of a study of China's Korea policy and the implications of this policy for peace and security in East Asia. $40,000.

National Bureau of Asian and Soviet Research, Seattle, Washington (Herbert Ellison and Donald Hellman, Project Directors): A grant to support a study of the impact of Soviet-Japanese-American relations on the development of new international security and economic arrangements in Northeast Asia. $30,000.

Naval War College Foundation,

Newport, Rhode Island (Howard Levie, Project Director): A grant in support of a comprehensive study of the law of war crimes. $8,216.

Sprinzak, Ehud, Rockville, Maryland: A grant in support of research on terrorism that will attempt to integrate the terrorist phenomenon with a larger class of social, legal and political conflicts. $20,000.

Stages for Peace, Jerusalem, Israel (Shmuel Toledano, Project Director): A grant to support an education program to explore a phased approach to the achievement of peace between Israelis and Palestinians. $35,000.

Tel Aviv University, Tel Aviv, Israel (Bruce Maddy Weitzman and Joseph Kostiner, Project Directors): A grant in support of research examining the ways in which Arab states have attempted, since the late 1960s, to contain and manage conflicts and rivalries, avoid war and preserve a measure of regional stability. $25,000. Tufts University, Medford, Massachusetts (Rosemarie Rogers, Project Director): A grant in support of a study of the impact of labor migrations from Southern Europe and North Africa to Western Europe. $35,000.

University of Colorado, Boulder, Colorado (Paul Wehr, Guy Burgess, and Heidi Burgess): A grant in support of a study of the use of nonviolent methods to resolve fundamental political, social, and economic conflicts between dominant and disempowered segments of society. $10,000.

University of Illinois, Urbana-Champaign, Illinois (Roger Kanet, Project Director): A grant in support of a conference and workshops designed to develop a new conceptual framework for understanding the structure of regional conflicts, and to fashion key policy tools to encourage cooperation in the resolution and management of these conflicts. $20,000.

Woodrow Wilson Center

The Woodrow Wilson International Center for Scholars has appointed 39 fellows for the academic year 1991-92. Following are the political science fellows, their institutional affiliations, and the topics of their research.

William A. Galston, University of Maryland at College Park. Political Theory—Autonomous or Interdependent?

Elie Kedourie, University of London. The Idea of Conservatism.

Ellis S. Krauss, University of Pittsburgh. Nippon Hoso Kyokai and the State in Postwar Japan—The Politics of Broadcasting and the Broadcasting of Politics.

Yusuke Onitsuka, University of Tokyo. Japan's Capital Exports, U.S. Indebtedness, and the Long-Run Stability of the International Financial System.

Zeev Sternhell, Hebrew University of Jerusalem. The Intellectual Revolt Against Liberal Democracy, 1870-1945—A Comparative Study. Anne F. Thurston, independent scholar, New York. The Dilemma of Democratization in China—A Critical Reflection.

Francisco C. Weffort, University of Sao Paulo. South and East—Democracy and Crisis.

Zhongyun Zi, Chinese Academy of Social Sciences. A Cross-Culture Bridge—A Comparative Study of the Roles of Chinese Intellectuals and American China Scholars in the 20th Century.

In addition, there will be a political science guest scholar from June to August:

Shlomo Avineri, Hebrew University of Jerusalem. Changes in Soviet and Eastern European Policies and Their Impact on Israel and the Middle East.

Other Awards and Honors

Stefano Bartolini, University of Geneva, and Peter Mair, University of Leiden, have been awarded the 1990 Stein Rokkan Prize for their book, Identity, Competition and Electoral Availability: The Stabilization of European Electorates 1885-1985 (Cambridge: Cambridge University Press, 1990).

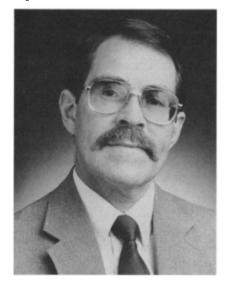

Linda P. Brady, associate professor of international affairs, Georgia Institute of Technology, has received the Georgia Tech Student Government Association George C. Griffin Faculty Member of the Year Award for 1990-91. During the 1991-92 academic year she will be the John M. Olin Distinguished Professor of National Security Studies at the United States Military Academy.

Jeffrey L. Brudney, professor of political science, University of Georgia, has won the John Grenzebach Award for Outstanding Research in Philanthropy for Education for his book, Fostering Volunteer Programs in the Public Sector: Planning, Initiating, and Managing Voluntary Activities (San Francisco: Jossey-Bass, 1990).

Charles S. Bullock III, department of political science, University of Georgia, is the recipient of the University of Georgia's 1991 William A.

September 1991

People in Political Science

Charles S. Bullock III

Owens Creative Research Award, which recognizes outstanding contributions to the social and behavioral sciences.

Anne Costain, University of Colorado at Boulder, has been named a President's Teaching Scholar. This is a lifetime award that recognizes consistent teaching excellence over the course of her career.

Paul F. Diehl, department of political science, University of Illinois-Champaign, was given the 1991 Pi Sigma Alpha Clarence Berdahl Award for Excellence in Undergraduate Teaching.

Adolfo Gilly, National University of Mexico, has been selected as a National Humanities Center Fellow for 1991-92.

Daniela Gobetti, The University of Michigan, has been selected as the winner of the "Sophonisba Breckenridge Award" for the best paper written about women and politics at the 1990 Midwest Political Science Association convention.

William C. Green, associate professor of government, Morehead State University, received the university's 1991 Distinguished Researcher Award.

John Kincaid, executive director of the U.S. Advisory Commission on Intergovernmental Relations and associate professor of political science (on leave) at the University of North Texas, received the Donald Stone Distinguished Scholar Award from the Section on Intergovernmental Administration and Management of the American Society of Public Administration.

Nicholas P. Lovrich, professor of political science, Washington State University, is one of three faculty members who received the 1991 President's Faculty Excellence Award.

Timothy McElroy, School of Management, Suffolk University, was chosen as a Presidential Management Intern for 1991.

Alfred G. Meyer, The University of Michigan, was presented with the Commanders Cross of the Order of Merit from the Federal Republic of Germany in a ceremony in April 1991.

Michel Oksenberg, The University of Michigan, has been chosen to receive an LS&A Teaching Excellence Award for 1991.

Marion Orr, a Ph.D. candidate in the department of government and politics at the University of Maryland, College Park, has been awarded a Brookings Institution dissertation fellowship and a Ford Foundation dissertation fellowship for 1991-92.

Frank Parker, director, Voting Rights Project of the Lawyers' Committee for Civil Rights Under Law in Washington, has received the Mississippi Historical Society's McLemore Prize for his book, Black Votes Count: Political Empowerment in Mississippi After 1965.

David Pfeiffer, Suffolk University, received the 1991 Recognition Award for Research from the School of Management.

Kim Lane Scheppele, The University of Michigan, has received the John Rich Faculty Fellowship to spend the 1991-92 academic year at the Michigan Institute for the Humanities. She has also received a Rackham Research Partnership Award with Cary Coglianese, a Ph.D. student in the department, to begin a major study of the effects of legal doctrine generally and procedural rules specifically on the development of interest group litigation.

J. David Woodard

Thomas Vocino, professor and head of political science and public administration at Auburn University at Montgomery, was recently presented the Donald C. Stone Service to APSA Award at the annual conference of the American Society for Public Administration.

J. David Woodard, department of political science, Clemson University, was selected for the 1991 Alumni Master Teacher Award.

In Memoriam

Gwendolen Carter

Gwendolen M. Carter died in Orange City, Florida, on February 20, 1991. Her life spanned the extraordinary events and transformations of the twentieth century and she was an active observer and participant in many of them. She reached out to people and they, in turn, saw in her someone who would champion their causes and respond to their needs. Human beings were at the center of her political analyses rather than detached institutions or political structures. Her particular concern with Africa, and her in-depth involvement with South Africa, drew her into dramatic circumstances. She discussed politics with Kwame Nkrumah and saluted Nelson Mandela as he was led out of the court room to life imprisonment.