

Working Papers in Austrian Studies

The Center for Austrian Studies serves scholars who study the politics, society, economy, and culture of modern Austria and of Habsburg Central Europe. It encourages comparative studies involving Austria or the Habsburg lands and other European states. The working paper series seeks to stimulate discussion in the field and to provide a vehicle for circulating work in progress. It is open to all papers prior to final publication, but gives priority to papers by affiliates of the Center or by scholars who have given seminars or attended conferences at the Center.

The editors of the series are David Good and Randall Kindley. If you would like to have a paper considered for inclusion in the series, please contact the editors at the Center for Austrian Studies.

Beyond Nationalism

A Social and Political History of the Habsburg Officer Corps, 1848-1918

ISTVÁN DEÁK, Columbia University

"A pioneering study of the social history of a military elite. The subject is much neglected....Enthralling."

—R.J.W. Evans, New York Review of Books

"A superior work by a distinguished scholar....Not just the best book about the Habsburg army available, but a work that affords readers marvelously illuminating glimpses into the true nature of the whole monarchy."—Choice

"Written sympathetically and the vast amount of evidence employed is compressed into an easy narrative....More than just a good read, for it makes important revisionist points....An excellent book which every military, social, and political historian of Central Europe will find a joy to read."—Times Higher Education Supplement

Red Vienna

Experiment in Working-Class Culture, 1919-1934

HELMUT GRUBER,

Polytechnic University, New York

"This is by far the most wide-ranging and successful study of Red Vienna....Balancing a comprehensive account of the positive aspects of the experiment with a trenchant critique, Helmut Gruber has produced an exemplary cultural history reaching far beyond its Viennese locale. His book is enhanced by its vivid portrait of the socialist milieu, its imaginative use of sources, and its evocative writing."—Anson Rabinbach, The Cooper Union for the Advancement of Science and Art

"Red Vienna is an important, vigorously argued study that demonstrates effectively the successes and failures of inter-war Austrian Social Democracy in Vienna."—John W. Boyer, University of Chicago

"Exhaustively researched and written in clear, stylish prose, this is the first comprehensive analysis of Austrian socialism's effort to transform completely the physical and cultural environment of the Viennese working class after World War I. Skillfully integrating political, social, and cultural history, Gruber's book is not only a major contribution to the study of modern Austria, but a model exploration of the complex relationship between socialist parties and their working-class supporters. Incisive comparisons with other European countries make this study invaluable for all social historians and scholars of the working class. A most impressive achievement."—Geoffrey G. Field, State University of New York, Purchase

Nutrition and Economic Development in the Eighteenth–
Century Habsburg Monarchy
An Anthropometric History
John Komlos

John Komlos examines the industrial expansion of Austria from a fresh viewpoint and develops a new model for the industrial revolution. Comparing this "Austrian Model" of economic growth to the industrial revolution in Britain, Komlos argues that the model is general enough to explain demographic and economic growth elsewhere in Europe.

"This innovative and cogent work of comparative history lays a new foundation for studies of industrialization. Through ingenious studies of anthropometric and nutritional studies, John Komlos propounds a new model to explain how industrial production can break through to sustained growth. Komlos makes the 'Austrian Model' relevant not only for all historians but for all social scientists."

Exile and Social Thought

Hungarian Intellectuals in Germany and Austria, 1919–1933
Lee Congdon

Embroiled in the political events surrounding World War I and the failed Hungarian revolutions of 1918–19, a number of intellectuals fled Hungary for Germany and Austria, where they essentially created Weimar culture. Among them were Georg Lukács, Béla Balázs, László Moholy-Nagy, and Karl Mannheim. In this collective portrait combining intellectual history with biographical detail, Lee Congdon describes how Hungarian thinkers, each in a different way, passionately advocated the need for community in a Europe torn by war and revolution.

From the Enlightenment to the Police State
The Public Life of Johann Anton Pergen

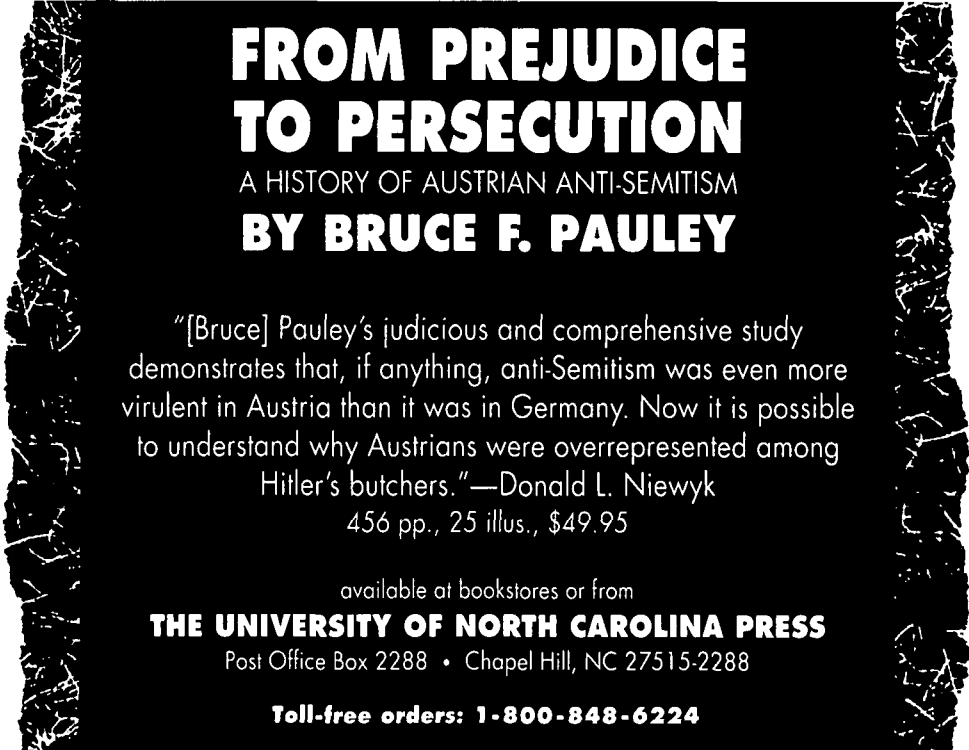

Paul Bernard

Pergen's life spans the vast philosophical distance from the shining tenets of the Enlightenment to the less palatable doctrines of the police state. "This is a work of sound scholarship, gracefully presented, such as is customary with Bernard. It affords a portrait of a man who, despite the importance of his role in the affairs of the Habsburg monarchy in the times from Maria Theresa to Franz II, has been treated rather as a caricature of a policeman—or simply neglected." — William E. Wright, author of Serf, Seigneur, and Sovereign: Agrarian Reform In Eighteenth-century Bohemia. "A fine new study from a recognized authority on 18th-century Austria." — P. Petschauer, Choice.

A HISTORY OF AUSTRIAN ANTI-SEMITISM
BY BRUCE F. PAULEY

"[Bruce] Pauley's judicious and comprehensive study demonstrates that, if anything, anti-Semitism was even more virulent in Austria than it was in Germany. Now it is possible to understand why Austrians were overrepresented among Hitler's butchers." — Donald L. Niewyk

Austria Since 1945

Edited by William E. Wright

This volume contains the papers presented at the first annual symposium hosted by the Center in May 1977. They deal with political, economic, and cultural developments in the Second Republic of Austria. The main theme is the stark contrast between Austria's ill-fated evolution after 1919 and her political stability and rapid growth after World War II. Includes articles by William Johnston, Fritz Fellner, Helga Leitner, and Egon Schwarz.
