Shape the Future of International Law

ASIL has allowed me to meet other lawyers with similar interests, but also exposed me to new issues of international law. ASIL offered me a space to share my ideas and build on them...[and] to be an active participant in international law.

JOIN ASIL

The American Society of International Law is dedicated to fostering the study of international law and to promoting the establishment and maintenance of international relations on the basis of law and justice. Founded in 1906, it brings a 100-plus-year-old tradition of convening its diverse community, comprising nearly 4,000 members from more than 100 countries, to address the pressing international legal questions of the day. Its reputation for providing a forum for balanced, non-partisan, and rigorous analysis is unparalleled.

Benefits of Membership

- Scholarship and News
- Debate, Discussion, and Problem Solving
- Networking and Professional Development
- Education and Outreach

To take advantage of these and many other ASIL member benefits and to help shape the future of international law, join the world's leading association for scholars, practitioners, and students of international law.

Strengthening International Law.*

2223 Massachusetts Avenue, NW | Washington, DC 20008 | www.asil.org

In the advent of industrialization and globalization, humanity has greatly enjoyed the convenience brought about by science and technology, reaping unprecedented benefits made possible by progress and development. Yet, humanity also faces a multitude of critical environmental, socio-cultural, and ethical issues on an unparalleled scale, such as climate change, inequality, and moral degradation. Against this backdrop, Dr. Samuel Yin established the Tang Prize in December 2012 to encourage individuals across the globe to chart the middle path to achieving sustainable development by recognizing and supporting scholars for conducting revolutionary research in the four major fields of Sustainable Development, Biopharmaceutical Science, Sinology, and the Rule of Law. The Tang Prize is truly global in reach, with laureates selected on the basis of the originality of their research along with their contributions to society irrespective of their nationality or ethnicity.

The Prize in Rule Of Law

All individuals are born equal, and everyone, including states and international organizations, is accountable to the law. For the purpose of the Tang Prize, the Rule of Law encompasses due process and substantive justice, and champions peace, human rights, and sustainable development in order to serve the common good of humankind and nature. The Tang Prize in the Rule of Law recognizes individual(s) or institution(s) who have made significant contributions to the rule of law, reflected not only in the achievement of the candidate(s) in terms of the advancement of legal theory or practice, but also in the realization of the rule of law in contemporary societies through the influences or inspiration of the work of the candidate(s).

The 2014 Tang Prize Laureates in Rule of law

Albie Sachs

For his many contributions to human rights and justice globally through an understanding of the rule of law in which the dignity of all persons is respected and the strengths and values of all communities are embraced, in particular through his efforts in the realization of the rule of law in a free and democratic South Africa, working as activist, lawyer, scholar, and framer of a new Constitution to heal the divisions of the past and to establishing a society that respects diversity and is based on democratic values, social justice and fundamental human rights.

Foreword

From its inception, the collection, publication, and dissemination of important international legal materials has been among the primary functions of the American Society of International Law. These materials were originally published as a section of the American Journal of International Law, and for the past 50 years they have been produced as a freestanding publication. Throughout this period, International Legal Materials has filled a critical need by giving scholars and practitioners access to primary source materials that were often difficult to find.

Today, with the advent of the Internet, many of these materials are widely available. But the explosion of online information related to international law has made it impossible for busy international lawyers to sift through the vast array of documents and identify those that are truly significant. Happily our editorial staff, working with our Editorial Advisory Committee, devotes the time and expertise to selecting the most significant materials and highlighting them in International Legal Materials and our blog, International Law in Brief. In addition, the Society's ASIL Insights series provides analyses of particularly high-profile developments.

Beginning in 2007, we have introduced all documents published in International Legal Materials with a prefatory note by experts from among our membership. These notes provide summaries of the documents and offer insight into their significance. In this volume, we feature notes by Jacqueline Peel, David P. Riesenberg, Elizabeth Stubbins Bates, Christina Trahanas, and Dire Tladi. We are extremely grateful to these authors, and we are confident that you will find their contributions of value.

We invite your comments and suggestions as we continue our efforts to meet the evolving needs of the international legal community.

Sincerely,

Mark David Agrast

INTERNATIONAL LEGAL MATERIALS®

Statement of Editorial Policy

International Legal Materials is a core publication of The American Society of International Law that reproduces texts of documents reflecting the broad scope and evolution of international law. The range of covered subjects has expanded from traditional topics such as international organizations, jurisdiction, and international trade to include developments in fields such as intellectual property, environmental law, nuclear non-proliferation, human rights, and international criminal law.

International Legal Materials serves as both a bi-monthly information service and a widely recognized archive of international law documents for a diverse, global community of legal scholars, government officials, private practitioners and institutions sharing a common interest in international law. To meet the varied demands of such a readership, documents are selected from world-wide sources on the basis of their present and future legal significance.

International Legal Materials is prepared for publication in Washington, D.C., with both the advice of the Editorial Advisory Committee and the assistance of Corresponding Editors around the world. In order to reproduce the texts of selected documents under tight production schedules, the best available source is used, whether electronic or printed.

Guidelines for Submission of Documents

The ILM Office welcomes any effort to bring suitable documents to the Office's attention. Electronic files or web links are required for publication, although printed texts can be used for initial deliberations regarding republication.

The authenticity (i.e., official version status) of submitted documents must be easily verifiable. This is facilitated by submitting files or print versions which are clearly attributable to the original source, or by providing links to documents on the original source's official website.

If the official version of a document is not available in English, an unofficial translation is acceptable. The original text must accompany such a translation.

Introductory Notes

Introductory Notes are brief articles from one to three pages in length which are intended to provide background information for a document reproduced in ILM.

For example, an Introductory Note for a treaty might include a short history of the negotiations, the dates of signature, and entry into force. An Introductory Note for legislation would give its history and international significance, while one for judicial proceedings would provide the background of the case.

The views of authors in Introductory Notes are their own and do not necessarily reflect those of either the American Society of International Law or the Managing Editor.

Acceptance of Materials and Corrections

Print submissions cannot be returned. Translators and others submitting material will be notified of the acceptance of their document for publication.

Once a translation or Introductory Note has been accepted for reproduction, the American Society of International Law will send a publication agreement to the author.

Translators and Introductory Note Authors shall be acknowledged in International Legal Materials.

In some cases minor editorial or typographical alterations may be made without contacting the author or translator. Major corrections will be sent to the author or translator for approval. Corrected Introductory Notes or translations must be returned within the time specified.

International Law In Brief

The Attorney-Editor of International Legal Materials also publishes the blog International Law In Brief, which contains objective abstracts of recently released documents pertinent to international law.

Documents abstracted in International Law In Brief are later considered for reproduction in International Legal Materials.

The archive of the International Law In Brief blog is located at The American Society of International Law website (<http://www.asil.org>). A search engine provides an easy way to find abstracts of specific documents.

The International Law In Brief blog is free, and subscription is available via RSS feed.
