COVER: Thomas A. Scott, President of the Pennsylvania Railroad, who agreed with a fellow businessman that "the destruction of railroad property may be attributed 'to a class of Damn Fools' who refuse to make and maintain rates." From an engraving by the Continental Bank Note Company, used by the courtesy of Baker Library, Harvard University. (See pp. 491-516.)

The records business men leave have a kind of veracity that we do not find as a rule in political records The Business Historical Society and allied associations are providing material which is going to give us a more accurate foundation for judgment in other fields of history.—Victor S. Clark in an address to the first American conference on business history, Harvard University, December 30, 1930.
