

Iraq in Fragments

The Occupation and Its Legacy

Eric Herring and Glen Rangwala

Placing the Iraq conflict within the context of regional, global, and U.S. politics, Herring and Rangwala explain how the international relations of consent, coercion, and capital accumulation have transformed the lives and allegiances of the Iraqi population. As uncertainty about the future of Iraq and the stability of the Middle East persists, this volume offers a new perspective on the prospects for Iraq and the significance of the occupation.

Consumer Capitalism

Politics, Product Markets, and Firm Strategy in France and Germany

Gunnar Trumbull

"By basing his argument in detailed case studies, Trumbull shows how governments in France and Germany pursued different targets and objectives with the result that product labeling, product safety standards, product recall, consumer contracts, manufacturer liability, and advertising rules have greatly diverged."

Making War and Building Peace

United Nations Peace Operations

MICHAEL W. DOYLE & NICHOLAS SAMBANIS

“A balanced assessment of the record of United Nations peace operations. It provides encouraging insights into the future role of the United Nations in helping countries make the transition from war to peace.”

—Kofi A. Annan, Secretary-General of the United Nations

Making War and Building Peace examines how well United Nations peacekeeping missions work after civil war. Statistically analyzing all civil wars since 1945, the book compares peace processes that had UN involvement to those that didn't. Finding that UN missions are most effective in the first few years after the end of war, and that economic development is the best way to decrease the risk of new fighting in the long run, the authors also argue that the UN's role in launching development projects after civil war should be expanded.

Democracy and Elections in Africa

Staffan I. Lindberg

"There is a dearth of publications on democratization in Africa, but here is a book that is presented on the basis of solid empirical data and carries a surprisingly positive message. Lindberg meticulously codes all the information on African elections and democratization and makes it available to the scholarly community."

Women's Rights

A Human Rights Quarterly Reader

edited by Bert B. Lockwood

For the past twenty-five years, Human Rights Quarterly has been a leading publisher of important work in human rights research. This interdisciplinary collection brings together nineteen of the most compelling articles written on women's human rights issues. The essays address such topics as the rights of Middle Eastern women, rape camps in the former Yugoslavia, and abortion law in Ireland.

Legal Borderlands

Law and the Construction of American Borders
edited by Mary L. Dudziak and Leti Volpp

This collection focuses broadly on the role of law in the construction of U.S. borders. For this project, a "border" is not simply a territorial boundary. Borders are created through formal legal controls on entry and exit, through the construction of rights of citizenship and noncitizenship, and through the regulation of American power in other parts of the world.
