

The Cambridge Illustrated History of China

Patricia Buckley Ebrey

"Patricia Ebrey's Illustrated History of China is a fine book...With great economy of text, it outlines the major elements and changes in four millennia of Chinese history and social life; the art work and photographs, skillfully chosen and admirably reproduced, both illuminate the text and supplement it."

– Jonathan Spence,
Yale University

In this lavishly illustrated history of China, Patricia Ebrey brings academic expertise and a highly engaging style to her task of tracing the origins of Chinese culture from prehistory to the modern communist state, embracing Chinese arts, culture, economics, society and its treatment of women, foreign policy, emigration, and politics. Both as a comprehensive introduction to an extraordinary civilization, and an expert exploration of the continuities and disjunctures of Chinese history, Patricia Ebrey's book is invaluable.

Useful Adversaries

Grand Strategy, Domestic Mobilization, and Sino-American Conflict, 1947–1958

Thomas J. Christensen

This book provides a new analysis of why relations between the United States and the Chinese Communists were so hostile in the first decade of the Cold War. Employing extensive documentation, it offers a fresh approach to long-debated questions such as why Truman refused to recognize the Chinese Communists, why the United States aided Chiang Kai-shek's KMT on Taiwan, why the Korean War escalated into a Sino-American conflict, and why Mao shelled islands in the Taiwan Straits in 1958, thus sparking a major crisis with the United States.

They Came to Japan presents selections from the writings of more than thirty Europeans, merchants and missionaries, who visited Japan during the century of contact with the West. Some of them lived in Japan for many years, spoke the language fluently, and acquired an expert knowledge of the country; others stayed for only a matter of months, yet frequently their reports are both discerning and original. Through their writings we are given a picture of sixteenth- and seventeenth-century Japan and the European writers themselves, for their attitudes towards the newly discovered country and its inhabitants is clearly reflected in their letters and reports.

RECOGNIZING REALITY

Dharmakīrti's Philosophy and Its Tibetan Interpretations

GEORGES B. J. DREYFUS

"Georges Dreyfus is to my knowledge to date the only Westerner who is a fully-qualified Tibetan Ge-shay. He knows exactly how this material is interpreted and used in Tibetan debate within the dGe lugs tradition of Tibetan Buddhism. The fact that Dreyfus is also very aware of Western philosophy, broader Indian thought, other Tibetan schools than the dGe lugs, and is able to adopt a fully critical approach to his material which does not shy away from criticisms of the dGe lugs material within which he was trained, makes for a wonderful book from the scholar most qualified to write it. When all this is combined with an enthusiasm for his material, a sensitivity to its historical and political context, and a systematic exposition with an almost unbelievable clarity, we have a very exciting book indeed."

— Paul Williams, Centre for Buddhist Studies, University of Bristol

Dreyfus examines the central ideas of Dharmakīrti, one of the most important Indian Buddhist philosophers, and their reception among Tibetan thinkers. This work presents a detailed picture of this Buddhist tradition and its relevance to the history of human ideas. Its perspective is mostly philosophical, but it also uses historical considerations as they relate to the evolution of ideas.

UNDERSTANDING CHINA

Center Stage of the Fourth Power

YANAN JU

"Fascinating! ...everyone seriously interested in the future of China will want to read and consider his [Ju's] position."

— Randall Harrison, University of California

Using empirical research data and his first-hand experiences, the author argues that (1) the Fourth Economic Power is truly emerging with mainland China being the center stage, and the Chinese Diaspora being the key players, (2) understanding guanxi (connections), among other things, represents the key to understanding doing business in China, (3) China is not yet ready for democracy, benevolent authoritarianism will most likely define China's political life, (4) China's corruption problem—either of a structural nature or a moral nature—is solvable, (5) education holds China's future, and (6) the Chinese family can be the most sustainable resource of the Fourth Power.

THE BEST FROM CAMBRIDGE

The Third Revolution in the Chinese Countryside

Ross Garnaut, Guo Shutian, and Ma Guonan, Editors

The first revolution in the Chinese countryside was the land reform after 1949. The second was the shift to the household responsibility system as a basis for agricultural production. This set the scene for the third revolution. This book has contributions from a team of experts on the Chinese economy on issues of poverty and feeding the Chinese population, agricultural price reforms, international and regional issues of China's agricultural economy, and institutional changes associated with the third agricultural revolution.

The Hermeneutics of the Spring and Autumn Annals, According to Tung Chung-shu

Sarah A. Queen

Every general account of the development of Chinese thought makes mention of Tung Chung-shu (195-105 bce) as one of the pivotal philosophers of the Han. The Luxuriant Gems of the Spring and Autumn Annals established the first state-sponsored Confucian orthodoxy, and created a view of the ruler and his role in government that was focal in political discussion for two thousand years. A Partnership of Disorder examines the American-Chinese foreign policy planning in World War II for decolonizing the Japanese Empire and controlling Japan after the war. The study reveals how their disagreements on many concrete issues prevented the two governments from forging an effective partnership. Among these issues were the role of the Soviet Union and the meaning of Asian nationalism. At the war's end, the victorious Allies were neither in cooperation among themselves nor in position to cope with the upheavals in Asia.

The release of secret Chinese police files by the C.I.A. allow the inner workings of these terrorist groups, and their links to the Green Gang just before Pearl Harbor was bombed and World War II erupted, to be exposed for the first time.

A NEW HISTORY OF INDIA

Fifth Edition

Stanley Wolpert, University of California at Los Angeles

Half a century of freedom has tripled India's population, more than quadrupled its gross domestic product, and lifted its economy in the last five years alone, creating an India that is enjoying all the pleasures and pains of modern Western life. Now in its fifth edition, this most readable and illuminating one-volume history of India brings students up-to-date on the current developments of today's affluent India. Wolpert places these developments within the context of India's 4,000 years of continental continuity and communal complexity. No other history records as truthfully the brightest achievements of Indian civilization and the dark depths of its socio-sexual inequities and economic-political corruption.

Indigenous Peoples of Asia

Edited by R.H.Barnes,
Andrew Gray, and
Benedict Kingsbury

This long-awaited collection offers an introduction and eighteen separate articles designed to promote a general understanding of the Asian indigenous peoples movement. The authors include sociologists, anthropologists, international legal scholars, and journalists, all addressing common themes.

"This book will constitute a major advance in our general understanding of the character of these Asian 'indigenous' movements and will be of value to scholars working in many cognate disciplines." Professor Peter Carey, Trinity College, Oxford University.

"This volume presents timely information on a pressing issue. . . . The bibliographies alone will be worth the book for many specialists and for students with a beginning interest in this very real human problem." Professor Robert McKinley, Anthropology Department, Michigan State University.

Charming Cadavers

HORRIFIC FIGURATIONS OF THE FEMININE IN INDIAN BUDDHIST HAGIOGRAPHIC LITERATURE

Liz Wilson

In this highly original study of sexuality, desire, the body, and women, Liz Wilson investigates first-millennium Buddhist notions of spirituality. She argues that despite the marginal role women played in monastic life, in narratives used for the edification of Buddhist monks, women's bodies in decay (diseased, dying, and after death) served as a central object for meditation, inspiring spiritual growth through sexual abstinence and repulsion in the immediate world.

Revolution and Subjectivity in Postwar Japan

J. Victor Koschmann

"Koschmann's examination of the 'debate on subjectivity' offers a scrupulously researched, lucidly written, and deeply suggestive account of what is generally regarded as the true beginning of postwar Japanese thought. The Double Screen

MEDIUM AND REPRESENTATION IN CHINESE PAINTING

Wu Hung

In the first exploration of Chinese paintings as both material products and pictorial representations, The Double Screen shows how the collaboration and tension between material form and image gives life to a painting. A Chinese painting is often reduced to the image it bears; its material form is dismissed; its intimate connection with social activities and cultural conventions neglected.
