

EDITORIAL POLICY & GUIDELINES FOR CONTRIBUTORS

In the tradition of the HOGENDORPcentre, the European Constitutional Law Review (EuConst) follows the classical approach of constitutionalism, to discuss EU law's developments as well as comparative public law of the member states, political and constitutional theory and history. The journal is a platform for scholarly discussion of European constitutional events and evolution. It is open to contributions in this field from any country in the world and from any discipline. These contributions should satisfy as to substance, apart from the common scholarly criteria, two specific conditions, to a) have a distinctly European relevance and b) include a reference to and discussion of legal aspects involved.

Submission of Material

Authors are requested to send their manuscript to the Editorial Office European Constitutional Law Review, c/o HOGENDORPcentre, P.O. Box 1030; NL – 1000 BA Amsterdam, E-mail: EuConst@uva.nl. All submitted materials should be in English. Materials may be submitted at any time of the year and, if accepted for publication, will be published at the earliest available opportunity.

Copyright

Copyright is exclusively vested in EuConst and the author(s) jointly. Acceptance of the Board of Editors' offer to publish implies, however, that authors agree to an embargo on publication elsewhere, either in English or another language, for a period of two years following the date of publication in EuConst. The agreement of the Board of Editors will be necessary before the article can be subsequently published elsewhere.

Revision

Articles accepted will be edited, linguistically and substantively, subject to author's approval.

Books for Review

These should be sent to Dr. Lars Hoffmann, University of Maastricht, International and European Law Department, Bouillonstraat 1-3, 6211 LH Maastricht, the Netherlands. E-mail: lars.hoffmann@maastrichtuniversity.nl.

The State of Interdependence Globalization, Internet and Constitutional Governance

by

Rudolf W. Rijgersberg

The State of Interdependence explores the implications of globalization for constitutional governance. The study examines how globalization, viewed as a process which increases the level of transnational interdependence between actors, is shaping modern governance in the public interest. It uses the Internet's interdependency-imposing nature as a starting point for the inquiry since the Internet is the most important and inclusive manifestation of the globalization phenomenon in terms of transnational interdependence.

Interdependence gives rise to a variety of challenges to modern governance. Institutionally, the main challenge is how to accommodate highly diverse views into globally uniform policies. Ideologically, it poses the challenge of how to export fundamental values worldwide. Economically, it raises the question of how to use national economic policies to stimulate innovation on a global scale.

The main thesis of this study is that an interdependent context has far-reaching implications for today's democratic constitutional governance and ultimately calls for a re-examination of our philosophical understanding of decision-making in the public interest in terms of legitimacy, accountability and representation.

The interdisciplinary nature of this work makes it particularly suited for academic scholars and policy makers interested in foundational questions regarding the nature of globalization, governance and the changing role of the State under conditions of interdependency. The Internet-based case studies are likely to appeal to a Law and ICT interested readership. The book is easily accessible and is self-contained in terms of technical expertise.

Rudolf W Rijgersberg is Assistant Professor Foundations and Methods of Law at Maastricht University, The Netherlands.
