

Article: 1304

Topic: EPV08 - e-Poster 08: Depression

---

Neuropsychiatric Presentation of Corona Radiata Infarct

V. Tanwani<sup>1</sup>, V.S. Dr Vivekananda Sivalingam<sup>1</sup>

<sup>1</sup>General Psychiatry, Institute of Mental Health, Singapore, Singapore

---

Lacunar infarcts are often considered benign as they do not usually cause clinically significant neurological/neuropsychiatric deficits. In this presentation, we highlight the case of a middle aged female who develop psychiatric symptoms from lacunar infarcts in the corona Radiata ; necessitating in pharmacological intervention. The possible association of Lacunar infarct in Corona Radiata with neuropsychiatric symptoms may help in dealing with these patients with psychiatric symptoms, more effectively.