

ANNOUNCEMENTS:

University of Toronto—Joint LL.B./Ph.D. in Philosophy Programme. The programme is designed for students interested in Social, Legal, Political, and Feminist Philosophy. It extends over four years, at the end of which the student will have completed the LL.B. and reached the all-but-dissertation stage in philosophy. This permits students to complete both degrees in a shorter time than would be the case outside the programme. For more information, please visit: <http://www.law.utoronto.ca/jd/phdphil.htm>; for other questions, e-mail Dr. David Dyzenhaus at david.dyzenhaus@law.utoronto.ca.

The School of Law (Boalt Hall) at the University of California at Berkeley offers a program designed for students interested in combining the scholarly examination of legal ideas and institutions with research on issues of social policy. The Jurisprudence and Social Policy Program leads to the Ph.D. degree. A professional law degree is not a prerequisite for admission. It is possible, however, simultaneously to pursue the Ph.D. in Jurisprudence and Social Policy and the J.D. degree at Boalt Hall. For more information, please visit: <http://www.law.berkeley.edu/academics/jsp>.

The University of Texas at Austin offers a combined degree program leading to the J.D. and the Ph.D. in philosophy. Faculty for 2002-03 now includes John Deigh, Leslie Green, Brian Leiter, Lawrence Sager, and Jane Stapleton; short-term visitors to the Law & Philosophy Program will include G.A. Cohen, Jules Coleman, and Joseph Raz. For more information on the program, requirements, visitors, etc. please visit:

<http://www.utexas.edu/law/academics/curriculum/philosophy/index.html>.

Address questions to Professor Brian Leiter at bleiter@mail.law.utexas.edu.

New York University offers dual degree programs: J.D./M.A. and J.D./Ph.D. Information is available on web sites:

M.A.: <http://www.nyu.edu/gsas/dept/philoprograms/jdma.html>

Ph.D.: <http://www.nyu.edu/gsas/dept/philoprograms/jdphd.html>. The person to contact is Professor Liam Murphy, e-mail: murphy1@juris.law.nyu.edu.

The University of Pennsylvania offers a joint Ph.D./J.D. program in law and philosophy. The program involves six years of study and requires separate admission to the Law School and the Philosophy Department. The Law School provides special financial assistance, in addition to the regular assistance provided to graduate students in the Philosophy Department. For further information, please contact Professor Samuel Freeman: sfreeman@sas.upenn.edu.

Princeton University offers the Program for Law and Public Affairs which each year brings together six Fellows for study dedicated to the interdisciplinary study of legal norms and institutions. Information is found at: www.princeton.edu/~lapa

Indexed in: Index to Canadian Legal Periodical Literature (Montreal); Index to Canadian Legal Literature (Toronto: Carswell); Current Law Index (Foster City, CA); Index to Legal Periodicals and Books (New York: H.W. Wilson); Philosopher's Index and Constitutional Law, Jurisprudence, and Legal Philosophical Abstracts: www.ssrn.com. Electronic Version: Hein-On-Line, Lexis-Nexis, West Online, Wilson Full Text, and in Canada through QuickLaw. Database code: CANJLJUR (Vol. 7(2) to present). Microfiche available from William S. Hein & Co. Inc.