

CONTRIBUTORS

JOHN E. BACHMAN is a Ph.D. candidate in history at American University.

DEMING BROWN is professor of Russian literature at the University of Michigan.

JESSE J. DOSSICK is professor of social studies at New York University.

CHARLES GATI is associate professor of political science and director of the Program in Comparative Communist Studies at Union College.

JANOS HORVATH is professor of economics at Butler University.

ZDZISŁAW NAJDER is a literary critic and philosopher and coeditor of Twórczość, and for the academic year 1970-71 is visiting Regents' Professor at the University of California, Davis.

BARNABAS RACZ is associate professor of political science at Eastern Michigan University.

IN FORTHCOMING ISSUES

Aleksander Gella, "The Life and Death of the Old Polish Intelligentsia"

D. Richard Little, "Legislative Authority in the Soviet Political System"

Rodney Barfield, "Lenin's Utopianism: State and Revolution"

R. Alan Kimball, "The Russian Past and the Socialist Future in the Thought of Peter Lavrov"

William W. Rowe, "Gogolesque Perception-Expanding Reversals in Nabokov"

Alfred Kuhn, "Dobroliubov's Critique of Oblomov: Polemics and Psychology"

Richard Pipes, "Russian Conservatism in the Second Half of the Nineteenth Century"

John W. Long, "The Russian Naval Museum, Lakewood, New Jersey"

Evelyn Jasiulko Harden, "Griboedov and the Willock Affair"

Karl von Loewe, "Military Service in Early Sixteenth-Century Lithuania: A New Interpretation and Its Implications"

Henryk Hinz, "The Philosophy of the Polish Enlightenment and Its Opponents: The Origins of the Modern Polish Mind"

Winston M. Fisk, "The Constitutionalism Movement in Yugoslavia: A Preliminary Survey"

M. K. Dziewanowski, "Czartoryski and His Essai sur la diplomatie"

William C. Fletcher, "Religious Dissent in the USSR in the 1960s"

Marin Pundeff, "Marxism in Bulgaria Before 1891"

Walter D. Connor, "Alcohol and Soviet Society"

Edwina Jannie Blumberg, "Tolstoy and the English Novel: A Note on Middlemarch and Anna Karenina"

New

Civil War in South Russia, 1918

The First Year of the Volunteer Army

Peter Kenez

The Soviet Union was created as much by the Civil War as by the revolutions of 1917: indeed, the revolution and the struggle that followed are inseparable. In this study the author focuses on South Russia, for here in microcosm can be found most of the ills that beset all of Russia at the time. Events in South Russia were also significant. It was here the Whites sent their best armies and here that the anti-Bolsheviks suffered the most dissension in their ranks. The author contends that while the Volunteer Army proved itself very capable militarily, its leaders failed politically and the seeds of disaster for the Whites were sown.

1970 LC: 78-114339 416 pages $10.00

Dostoevsky

Essays and Perspectives

Robert Lord

The majority of essays in this volume approach Dostoevsky from the present day, and together they compose a critical biography of the great Russian writer. They reveal the influence of the political movements and religious thinkers of his time and the way in which their ideas were used in his novels. They are both modest and ambitious, drawing on hitherto unavailable Russian sources, and they reveal interesting insights about Dostoevsky, his art, and the "epileptic mode of being."

1970 LC: 70-100018 270 pages $5.95

Now available in paperback

A Harvest of Russian Children's Literature

Edited, with Introduction and Commentary,
by Miriam Morton

Foreword by Ruth Hill Viguers

"This book provides a unique approach to the study of not only the children's literature of the USSR, but also the social and political background of Soviet children . . . it could prove far more effective in teaching about the Soviet Union than most of the available non-fiction books combined."—School Library Journal

illustrations 486 pages paper, $5.95; cloth, $13.50

Soviet National Income, 1958-1964

National Accounts of the USSR in the Seven Year Plan Period

Abraham S. Becker

Dr. Becker, a Senior Economist at the RAND Corporation, is here concerned with the pattern of change in Soviet national income and product in the years 1958-1964, which he develops through analysis of a set of national accounts constructed independently from official Soviet national income data. Representing a continuation of the work heretofore associated with Abram Bergson, the book is unique in this or any other Western series in presenting ex ante accounts for the target year of the Seven Year Plan, 1965. Western estimates for these years contain no counterpart of Dr. Becker's growth measurements by deflation and only intermittent exploration of the structure of resource use, a focal theme in this study. For a significant transitional period in Soviet affairs, this volume offers the only published national income and product accounts.

1969 LC: 70-77483 650 pages tables $19.75

from California

University of California Press • Berkeley 94720