The California Conference on Education for Public Administration was organized at Fresno, California, March 3, 1966. The purposes of this organization shall be to provide a forum for discussion and a vehicle for advancing the development of educational programs that respond to the needs of all levels of government. This broad mission shall be elaborated upon and refined by the Executive Committee.

Pending the implementation of the full organization of this Conference, the Executive Committee shall be empowered to act for the membership in pursuit of the purposes outlined above.

Members of the Executive Committee are:

James Ballard, San Jose State College
 Ernest A. Engelbert, University of California, Los Angeles
 Lloyd Musolf, University of California, Davis
 Frederick C. Mosher, University of California, Berkeley
 Henry Reining, Jr., University of Southern California
 Cy Roseman, San Francisco State College
 John Vieg, Claremont Graduate School
 Robert F. Wilcox, San Diego State College, Chairman
 Assoc. Member—Brewster Denny, University of Washington

The Fresno meeting was devoted to a discussion of the topic "The Future of Graduate and Professional Training in Public Administration in California". The chairman of the convening committee was Professor Ernest A. Engelbert of the University of California, Los Angeles. The meeting was organized on a seminar basis and devoted its deliberations to the following three topics: the academic content of public administration, professional training and manpower needs in public administration. Present as resource persons were representatives of the California State Personnel Board, the California League of Cities, the County Supervisor's Association of California, and the Department of Finance of the State of California. Visitors from out of state universities were Professors Brewster Denny, University of Washington; Leo Reithmeyer, University of Colorado; and Bruce Mason, Arizona State University.

The general theme of the professor's meeting was carried over into the program of the statewide ASPA meeting in panels entitled What Practitioners Expect from Training Programs in California on March 4 and Where Public Administration is Going in California on March 5.

The Conference will hold its next meeting in May of 1967, preceding the national conference of ASPA in San Francisco.

OTHER ACTIVITIES

SSRC PROGRAMS

During the coming year the Social Science Research Council will administer or co-sponsor the several fellowship and grant programs listed below. A more definitive announcement will be available in September on request addressed to Social Science Research Council Fellowships and Grants, 230 Park Avenue, New York, N.Y. 10017.

For further information about certain of the co-sponsored programs, however, inquiries should be addressed to the other offices indicated. To avoid missing deadlines, correspondence should be initiated no later than early October.

Research Training Fellowships will be offered to postdoctoral and advanced predoctoral candidates who desire special research training that is outside the scope of the usual doctoral programs in their fields. These fellowships are no longer offered in support of regular doctoral studies and preparation of dissertations.

Foreign Area Fellowships for multi-disciplinary pre-doctoral or post-doctoral training relating to Asia and the Near East, the Soviet Union and Eastern Europe, Africa, Latin America, or Western Europe, are administered by a separate staff under the joint auspices of SSRC and ACLS. The address of the Foreign Area Fellowship Program is 444 Madison Avenue, New York, N.Y. 10022.

Faculty Research Grants will be offered by SSRC to mature social scientists holding the Ph.D. degree or its equivalent, who need relatively small grants to meet expenses of research and in some cases to replace their regular salaries for periods of leave not longer than 6 months. Projects within the purview of the more specialized grant programs listed below may not be supported through the Faculty Research Grant Program.

Grants for Research on Governmental and Legal Processes will be offered by SSRC to legal scholars and to social scientists holding the Ph.D. degree or its equivalent. Proposals may include support for collaborating junior colleagues and student assistants. The program is limited to American governmental, political, and legal processes.

Grants for Research on Foreign Areas will be offered by joint committees of SSRC and ACLS, to social scientists and humanistic scholars holding the Ph.D. degree or its equivalent. With certain exceptions, grants may be sufficient for up to a full year's research. Grants for research on Africa, Contemporary China, Latin America, and the Near and Middle East are administered by the Social Science Research Council. Grants for Asian and for Slavic and East European Studies are administered by the American Council of Learned Societies, 345 East 46th Street, New York, N.Y. 10017.

A new Department of Political Science has been established at the Federal University of Minas Gerais in Belo Horizonte, Brazil. The aims of the Department are to improve teaching and research in systematic, empirically-based political science in Brazil. The primary emphases within this context are comparative politics, political science methodology, and Brazilian politics. Both undergraduate and graduate teaching programs are being started.

The Department is being supported jointly by the Federal University of Minas Gerais (FUMG) and by a substantial five-year grant from the Ford Foundation. The grant funds will be used for visiting professors from the United States and Europe; for graduate work for Brazilian students and professors in the United States; and for research, library acquisitions, equipment, and seminars.

The United States Coordinators for the grant activities are Professors Gabriel A. Almond and Robert A. Packenham of the Department of Political Science at Stanford University. Their responsibilities are to assist the Brazilians in recruiting visiting professors to go to Brazil, to place Brazilian graduate students and younger faculty for graduate work and advanced study in North American universities, and generally to promote the objectives of the grant and the Department.

A variety of forms of visiting professorships to Brazil and scholarships for study in the United States are planned. Grant funds are available for about eight year-long visiting professorships in Brazil, five visiting graduate researchers, twelve man-months of visiting consultantships, fourteen year-long fellowships for Brazilian graduate students, and five fellowships for Brazilian professors to study and do research in the United States.
