

and Franz Neumann (Columbia University, New York). The research director is O. H. v. d. Gablentz. American political scientists who are interested in the work of the Institut may secure further information regarding its activities by writing to Professor Neumann or by addressing the Institut directly. The address of the Institut is: Gelfertstrasse 11, Berlin-Dahlem.

The publication of the Revue d'Histoire Politique et Constitutionnelle is being resumed in Paris, pursuant to a decision of the International Academy of Political Science and Constitutional History at its meeting at the Sorbonne in 1949. The Revue, the official organ of the Academy, was suspended in 1940 by the occupation authorities. Its editors are Julliot de la Morandière, dean of the Faculty of Law of the University of Paris, and Boris Mirkin-Guetzévitch, dean of the Faculty of Law and Political Science of the French University of New York.

Pending possible arrangements for the publication of an international political science review, UNESCO has agreed to reserve space in each issue of its International Social Science Bulletin for contributions from members of the International Political Science Association. The executive secretary of the Association has asked the undersigned to serve as editorial adviser for contributions from American and Canadian political scientists.

In addition to news items of international interest, a limited number of original articles will be considered for publication. Such articles, ranging in length from 3,000 to 5,000 words, should be appropriate for an international audience. Topics regarded as particularly suitable for this purpose include significant developments in teaching technique, curricular organization, research methodology, general political theory, and the study of comparative political institutions and behavior. A modest honorarium will be paid to authors of original articles accepted for publication. The UNESCO Bulletin, now issued in separate English and French editions, reaches several thousand social scientists throughout the free world.

American political scientists desiring to submit contributions should send them to the undersigned at the following address: Department of Government, City College of New York, Convent Avenue and 139th Street, New York 31, N. Y.—WALTER R. SHARP.

APPOINTMENTS AND STAFF CHANGES

Orville Alexander has been named chairman of the department of government at Southern Illinois University.

Andrew Anderson, a graduate in law at Cornell University, has been appointed as an instructor in the department of government and international relations at the University of Connecticut.

W. K. Braun is an instructor in political science at the University of Cincinnati for the academic year 1950-51.

Burton R. Brazil has been appointed acting instructor in political science at Stanford University.

Ralph J. Bunche has been appointed professor of government at Harvard University, effective 1951.

Edgar C. Cale is on leave from the University of Pennsylvania for the academic year 1950-51 and is serving as director of public relations for the Philadelphia City Charter Commission.

Gwendolen M. Carter, associate professor of government at Smith College, has been named chairman of the department of government at that institution.

J. Leo Cefkin is an instructor in the department of political science at Brooklyn College for the academic year 1950-51.

James Dalton, instructor in political science at the University of Cincinnati during 1949-50, is studying at the University of the Philippines under a Fulbright grant.

Howard E. Dean, assistant professor of political science at the University of Oregon, was recalled to active duty as an officer in the Army of the United States, effective January 2, 1951.

Francis Downing has been appointed as an assistant professor of political science at Brooklyn College.

Lawrence L. Durisch, chief of the Government Research Division, Tennessee Valley Authority, was visiting professor in the department of political science of the University of Illinois during the first semester of 1950-51.

Harold L. Enarson is on leave from Stanford University and is continuing work which he began in the summer of 1950 as assistant to John R. Steelman, presidential assistant.

Ludwig F. Freund, chairman of the department of political science of Roosevelt College, is a guest professor of political science at the University of Erlangen, Germany, for the second half of the winter semester of 1950-51 and the summer semester of 1951.

Richard W. Gable is acting assistant professor of political science at Stanford University during the absence of Professor Harold L. Enarson.

Clarence O. Gardner has retired from active service at the University of Cincinnati, where he has been since 1914. He has been named professor emeritus of political science.

Louis Gerson, formerly of the Yale Graduate School, has been appointed as an instructor in the department of government and international relations of the University of Connecticut.

Harold D. Gordon, recently a graduate student at Duke University, has been appointed instructor in political science at Wheaton College.

Alex Gottfried has been appointed to an assistant professorship at the University of Washington.

John H. Hallowell was advanced to a full professorship in political science at Duke University in September, 1950.

Ferrel Heady has been appointed assistant director of the Institute of Public Administration at the University of Michigan.

Richard H. Heindel, formerly with the Social Science Research Council as executive associate, has been appointed deputy director of the UNESCO Relations Staff, United States Department of State.

J. C. Heinlein has been advanced to the rank of associate professor of political science at the University of Cincinnati.

Vincent Hogan has been advanced from a lecturership to an instructorship at the University of Washington.

Harry Kantor, formerly lecturer at the University of California (Los Angeles), has been appointed as an instructor in political science at Eastern Washington College of Education, Cheney, Washington.

Kazuo Kawai, formerly editor of the Nippon Times, Tokyo, Japan, is visiting professor of political science at Stanford University.

Willmoore Kendall is on leave from Yale University to serve with the Office of Operations Research, Washington, D. C.

V. O. Key, Jr., has been appointed professor of government at Harvard University, effective 1951.

Samuel J. Konefsky is on sabbatical leave from Brooklyn College for the academic year 1950–51 and is engaged in study as a Guggenheim fellow.

John W. Lederle has been promoted to a professorship and named director of the Institute of Public Administration at the University of Michigan.

Karl Loewenstein of Amherst College spent most of the spring and summer of 1950 in Europe on a field investigation of European union. He also served during the summer on a grant from the United States Department of State as a consultant in governmental affairs to the United States high commissioner for Germany.

S. Gale Lowrie has resumed his work at the University of Cincinnati after spending a year in New Zealand and Honolulu under a Fulbright grant.

George E. McReynolds, head of the department of government and international relations at the University of Connecticut, has been named dean of the College of Arts and Sciences at that University.

John H. Millett has been promoted to an assistant professorship at the University of Rochester.

B. Mirkine-Guetzévitch resumed his duties as dean of the Faculty of Law and Political Science of the French University of New York the past fall, after having taught during the spring semester of 1950 at the National School of Administration and at the Institute of Advanced International Studies of the University of Paris.

Allan S. Nanes has resigned his position in the Division of Research for the Near East and Africa of the United States Department of State to become an instructor in political science at Hofstra College.

William F. Nowlin has been appointed head of a recently created department of Government at Texas State University, Houston, Texas.

Alan Burr Overstreet, formerly of Wesleyan University (Connecticut), is now an associate professor of government at Smith College.

Roy Pierce, formerly of Cornell University, has been appointed as an instructor in the department of government at Smith College.

Mary Reynolds has been appointed as an assistant professor of political science at the University of Bridgeport.

Glenn Roderick, formerly a graduate student at Western Reserve University, became an instructor in the department of government of the University of Miami (Florida) at the beginning of the fall semester of 1950-51.

Joseph S. Roucek, chairman of the department of political science at the University of Bridgeport, will be visiting professor at the University of British Columbia, Vancouver, in the summer of 1951.

Dankwart A. Rustow has been appointed to an associate professorship in the Division of Citizenship of Oglethorpe University.

Gustave Serino has been named director for an intern program in public administration which was recently inaugurated by the department of government of the University of Miami (Florida).

Graham H. Stuart, now on sabbatical leave from Stanford University, is in Europe under a Fulbright grant.

Willis G. Swartz, professor and chairman of the department of government at Southern Illinois University since 1930, has been named dean of the Graduate College of that institution.

Marvin Tableman, instructor at the University of Michigan, has been designated as project coordinator for the German Visitors Governmental Training Project sponsored at the University of Michigan by the United States Department of State.

Robert W. Tucker is acting assistant professor of political science at Stanford University during the absence of Professor Graham H. Stuart.

Erwin Van Allen has been promoted to the rank of associate professor of political science at Bradley University.

E. V. Walter, recently a graduate student at the University of Minnesota, became an instructor in the department of government of the University of Miami (Florida) at the beginning of the second summer session of 1950.

Robert E. Ward has been promoted to an assistant professorship at the University of Michigan.

Glenn G. Wiltsey, chairman of the department of government of the University of Rochester, has been promoted to a full professorship at that institution.

Daniel Wit, formerly instructor of political science at Ohio State University, has joined the political science staff of the University of Cincinnati as assistant professor.

Paul Yloisaker is on leave from Swarthmore College for the second semester of 1950-51 and the first semester of 1951-52 for study in England under a Fulbright scholarship.

William H. Young has resumed full-time teaching at the University of Wisconsin after an extended leave during which he served as assistant to the governor of Wisconsin.

IN MEMORIAM

Irby Roland Hudson, long a member of the political science staff at Vanderbilt University, died on December 2, 1949. Although a veteran of World War I, and one-time editorial writer for the Nashville Tennessean, he spent more than half of his life as student and teacher at Vanderbilt. For approximately a quarter of a century he also served as faculty adviser to the Vanderbilt Student Union. He was one of the founders of the Southern Political Science Association, and served this Association as president in 1930. His death occurred after a lingering illness which was endured with a hope to live until he reached sixty-six years of age, a hope that was gratified to the exact day.

John Calyer Ranney, associate professor of government at Smith College, died in London, England, on January 5, 1950, at the age of thirty-four. At the time of his death he was a Guggenheim fellow, and had gone to England to engage in a study of British political parties. The co-author of The Major Foreign Powers, published in 1949, he had been a member of the faculty of Smith College for six and a half years, having been appointed assistant professor in 1943. He was active as a member of numerous faculty committees, and was acting head of the department of government during the academic year 1946-47. A memorial fund is being collected at Smith College in his honor.

Earl Willis Crecraft, professor of political science at Kent State University, died on March 30, 1950, at the age of sixty-four. He had served on the faculties