

Conflict in Africa

Concepts and Realities

ADDA B. BOZEMAN ■ The author compares Western ideas about conflict and its resolution to the nature of conflict in Africa south of the Sahara in its many social, political, and cultural aspects. Bozeman shows how African perspectives on war and diplomacy have evolved under the influence of non-literacy, tribalism, and a concept of undifferentiated time, and concludes that Western concepts cannot apply to African realities. The Colonial Transformation of Kenya

The Kamba, Kikuyu, and Maasai from 1900 to 1939

ROBERT L. TIGNOR ■ "This is one of the best researched volumes on twentieth-century East African affairs that I have read. The whole study is based upon sound and judicious interpretations drawn from an impressive body of raw materials. In almost every chapter there are important new interpretations of events."—Norman R. Coups and Army Rule in Africa

Studies in Military Style

Samuel Decalo

Samuel Decalo presents detailed evidence from Dahomey, Togo, Congo/Brazzaville, and Uganda that African military coups are engineered by coteries of cliques composed of ambitious officers seeking self-advancement. He successfully refutes prevailing theories that military rule has fostered socio-economic or political development or stability. Cloth $17.50 Paper $4.95

Rural Responses to Industrialization

A Study of Village Zambia

Robert H. Bates

"Bates handles a wide range of fundamental problems concerning the place of rural society in political development. In particular, he connects the socioeconomic with the political and governmental in a way thoroughly unprecedented. Nothing comparable to the richness of Bates's data can be found in any extant study I'm aware of. A major breakthrough."—Martin Kilson $20.00

Kings and Kinsmen

Early Mbundu States in Angola

Joseph C. Miller

How small-scale and decentralized African political institutions developed into the large kingdoms so prominent in early African history has puzzled anthropologists and historians alike. This book approaches the question from a historical perspective. It is based on the early history of the Mbundu of north-western Angola, and interprets oral histories and Portuguese documentation with sensitivity to African ideologies and kinship systems. £9.50 Oxford Studies in African Affairs

Zulu Zion and Some Swazi Zionists

Bengt Sundkler

Bengt Sundkler's Bantu Prophets in South Africa was a pioneering work in the life and ideology of Independent African Churches. In this new study he interprets them from a different point of view, and has concentrated on the history and the leading personalities of some of the churches, including that of the famous Isaiah Shembe. £8 Oxford Studies in African Affairs

North West Africa

A Political and Economic Survey

Wilfrid Knapp

Since 1962, when the second edition of this survey appeared, North West Africa has undergone a radical transformation. In consequence the text has been almost completely rewritten. Mr Knapp examines the political structure of Bourguiba's Tunisia, the ideology and politics of Libya, the attempts at single-party mobilization in Algeria and Mauretania, and the modernization of the Moroccan monarchy. Third edition £12.50

Mission for Hammarskjold

Rajeshwar Dayal

This is an account of the first, crucial period in the Congo crisis. It contributes new material on the Kasavubu and Mobutu coups, on U.N. involvement in them, and on the arrest and death of Patrice Lumumba. The description of the author's own mission as Special Representative of the Secretary-General, Dag Hammarskjold, is valuable for the light it throws on U.N. motives as well as on Hammarskjold himself and his death. TANZANIA AND NYERERE

A Study of Ujamaa and Nationhood

by William Duggan & John Cioville

For two decades Tanzania has been conducting one of the most intriguing and crucial human experiments in Africa. Under the imaginative leadership of President Nyerere, this nation has attempted to lift its people from poverty by blending traditional African values with modern political and economic institutions. This richly detailed study analyzes the fascinating effort of an emerging nation to fuse the Bronze Age with the Atomic Age.

UGANDA: THE ASIAN EXILES

by Thomas & Margaret Melady

On August 4, 1972 General Idi Amin Dada, President of Uganda, announced that he had been told in a dream to order the expulsion of all Asians who were not Ugandan citizens. Thomas Melady had arrived in that country as U.S. Ambassador only ten days before, and was in a position to see how ruthlessly Amin's decree was carried out. The Meladys have written the first non-journalistic account of the inhuman tragedy which befell 50,000 people as the result of a tyrant's whim.

THE PRAYERS OF AFRICAN RELIGION

by John S. Mbiti

Professor Mbiti demonstrates how prayer, of all aspects of religion, contains the most intense expression of African traditional spirituality. This comprehensive collection of African prayers has been taken from different tribes and countries and reflects the riches of indigenous spirituality. This is the first such collection of prayers taken from African life. Each chapter contains prayers for specific occasions together with a commentary on the text.

Politics of Decolonisation

*Kenya Europeans and the Land Issue
1960–1965*

GARY WASSERMAN

Decolonisation in the Third World has most often been approached by tracing the ties of nationalist movements to the attainment of independence. This book attempts to revise the perspective. It presents a model of decolonisation centering on the idea that the process was shaped by the reaction of colonial interests to the ascendancy of a national elite. This is the first study of decolonisation in Africa based on primary sources, and one of the few contemporary studies dealing with white settlers. £9.50 net

Liberia and Sierra Leone

An Essay in Comparative Politics

CHRISTOPHER CLAPHAM

Very similar in some ways, but strikingly different in others, Sierra Leone and Liberia have an obvious appeal for comparative analysis. This study seeks to analyse and account for both similarities and differences, looking at the two countries' experience in the 1960s and early 1970s, not only in central politics but also at local level in economic policy. £4.50 net

THE JOURNAL OF MODERN AFRICAN STUDIES

The Journal offers a quarterly survey of politics, economics, and related topics in contemporary Africa.

The main emphasis is upon the peoples and policies, the problems and progress of this dynamic and disparate continent; upon the many societies that are evolving rather than the essential characteristics of the old; upon the present, not on the more distant past. The best current work is sought from specialists in different academic disciplines, whose contributions can illuminate and cross-fertilise one another.

The Journal seeks to promote a deeper understanding of what is happening in Africa today. It is intended for both the political scientist and the practical politician, the administrator and the advocate, the economist and the educator, the banker and the businessman, the diplomat and the technocrat, the civil servant and the nationalist leader. All have something to contribute to these pages and, it is hoped, much to learn from them.

Editorial policy avoids commitment to any political viewpoint or ideology, whether imperialism, pan-Africanism, capitalism, socialism, or nationalism. Such concepts, however, have relevance to the modern African situation, and merit serious discussion, often from several different points of view, in order that controversial issues may be fairly examined.
