Popular Hinduism is shaped, above all, by worship of a multitude of powerful divine beings. The fluid relationship between these beings and humans is a central theme of this rich and accessible study of popular Hinduism in the context of the society of contemporary India. Lucidly organized and skillfully written, The Camphor Flame brings clarity to an immensely complicated subject.

“This is a major contribution to the field . . . Fuller covers a vast terrain of material, successfully managing to capture the complexity and variation of each subject while at the same time providing nicely rendered examples and case studies.”—Nicholas B. Dirks, University of Michigan

One of the most devastating periods in twentieth-century history was the rule of Pol Pot and the Khmer Rouge over Cambodia. From April 1975 to the beginning of the Vietnamese occupation in December 1978, the country underwent perhaps the most violent of all modern revolutions. The United Nations Human Rights Commission declared the violations in Cambodia to be “the worst to have occurred anywhere in the world since Nazism.” The essays here search for the possible motivations of the Khmer Rouge in perpetrating these atrocities.

“ . . . a highly authoritative work on the years of Khmer Rouge rule in Cambodia . . . it is the first truly scholarly work that tries to deal with Pol Pot’s regime . . . ”

The Confucian's Progress

Autobiographical Writings in Traditional China

Pei-yi Wu

The pages of this first full-length treatment of Chinese autobiography teem with fascinating individuals. Affording the reader a view of some never before examined aspects of the Chinese psyche, The Confucian's Progress is also an accessible introduction to Chinese history and literature.

"A highly intelligent—and thoroughly intelligible—book-length essay on autobiographical writings in China. . . . With its ample and readable translations of a dazzling array of scarce Chinese texts alone, this book will reward readers."

Five Hundred Years of Chinese Poetry, 1150–1650

The Chin, Yuan, and Ming Dynasties

Yoshikawa Kōjirō

Translated and with a preface by John Timothy Wixted

With an afterword by William S. Atwell

Five Hundred Years of Chinese Poetry, 1150–1650 offers the only historical survey, in any language, of this important span of Chinese poetry. Written by the foremost Japanese sinologist of this century, the work provides a brief but comprehensive review of the period's literary history, a sketch of its political and social history in relation to literature, and a rendering of more than one hundred and fifty poems.

"Like the adage about firewood, this book warms twice. First there is the warmth of Yoshikawa Kōjirō's spry and versatile mind, and then there is John Wixted's lovely and obviously loving translation of those thoughts into English. . . . [This] book is a delightful and timely reminder of what the love of literature is all about."—Joseph R. Allen, The Journal of Asian Studies

THE INDIAN ECONOMIC AND SOCIAL HISTORY REVIEW

Editor: DHARMA KUMAR

The Indian Economic and Social History Review offers scholars a major forum for an interdisciplinary study of the social and economic history of India, and South Asia more generally. Articles published in this journal also cover other Asian countries and provide comparative perspectives with a wider geographic spread. The journal is periodically organised around a specific theme as a special number. In addition to research articles, the book review section often contains substantial review articles. Bibliographic surveys, which also cover material available in Indian languages, are a special feature.

The Indian Economic and Social History Review has established itself as indispensable reading for anyone concerned with the history, economy and society of India, and is of interest to those concerned with world development and history in general.

The Indian Economic and Social History Review is published quarterly in March, June, September and December.

Contributions to Indian Sociology

Editors: Veena Das
Ramchandra Guha
Dipankar Gupta
Patricia Uberoi

Contributions to Indian Sociology is the pre-eminent forum for the presentation of research material on Indian and South Asian societies and cultures and for the discussion of different approaches to their study. The journal publishes neither purely theoretical essays nor purely ethnographic accounts but favours papers in which data and theory are mutually related. Occasionally papers dealing with themes of cross-civilizational significance, bringing in data from non-South Asian societies, are also published.

Contributions to Indian Sociology is an indispensable and highly regarded forum for the understanding of South Asian society, culture and religion and provides theoretical insights applicable to the study of other developing societies as well.

Contributions to Indian Sociology is published biannually in May and November.

THE INDIAN JOURNAL OF SOCIAL SCIENCE

Editor-in-Chief : MOONIS RAZA

The Indian Journal of Social Science has been launched by the Indian Council of Social Science Research to disseminate analytical discussion and research findings on themes and issues such as the problems of development and social change, the interface between science, society, culture and technology, and the comprehension of future patterns of development.

The Indian Journal of Social Science articulates rigorous scientific discussion on these diverse concerns of social science research — from comparative research, innovative approaches and the analysis and implications of accepted paradigms and their alternatives, to the understanding of the diverse and complex social and economic issues facing developing countries. Multidisciplinary in approach, the journal periodically undertakes an appraisal of social science research and provides for a closer interaction between the social sciences and policy-making.

The Indian Journal of Social Science is a quarterly journal published in March, June, September and December.

Recent articles published in The Indian Journal of Social Science include:

NOTES TO CONTRIBUTORS

Modern Asian Studies is concerned with the history, geography, politics, sociology, literature, economics and social anthropology of South Asia, South-East Asia, China and Japan. Contributions should be based on original research or field-work.

All articles (text, notes and references) must be clearly typed in double spacing throughout, including footnotes, on one side only of the paper—preferably A4. Two copies should be submitted. Spelling, dates, references and footnote numbers should be checked for accuracy. The use of diacritical marks, italics and capital letters should be kept to a minimum. References repeated in the footnotes should be by author and short title; or the Harvard system of citation may be used.

The title of the article and the author's name and affiliation should be typed on a separate page at the beginning of the article.

Tables should be clearly laid out and numbered consecutively. Vertical lines between columns should be omitted. All figures and totals should be checked for accuracy.

Maps and figures should be clearly legible in every detail. The spelling of place names should be consistent with that used in the text.

Every table, map and figure should have a title and at least one reference in the text to indicate its location.

First proofs only will be sent to the author who will be expected to return them to the Editor within three days. Excessive alterations and additions may be charged to the author.

Each author will receive twenty-five free offprints of his article and a copy of the part of the journal in which it appears.

Submission of an article will be taken to imply that it has not been previously published and that it is not on offer to any other publisher. In the interests of authors, copyright is normally assigned to Cambridge University Press. The editor welcomes expression of all shades of opinion, but responsibility for them rests with their authors.

All correspondence should be addressed to Dr Gordon Johnson, Selwyn College, Cambridge CB3 9DG, England.
