Theological Essays on Art
in the Twentieth Century

GEORGE S. HEYER, JNR.

There runs through Christianity, at least in its Protestant variety, a deep strain of suspicion towards visual art. In some measure this springs from our Hebrew heritage. The Old Testament is relentless in its fidelity to the Second Commandment, and the making of a graven image equals the construction of an idol. Professor Heyer examines idolatry and reassesses the true value of art as the expression of a God-given gift whose exercise can immeasurably enrich human life.

Apart from the numerous illustrations in the book, the text allows artists to speak for themselves, through their words as well as through their works. Thus the theological response addresses the vision that these people—the artists—have of their task and avoids distortion of that vision.

George S. Heyer, Jnr., is Associate Professor of Theology at Austin Presbyterian Theological Seminary, Texas. This book comprises the Gunning Lectures, which the author delivered at the University of Edinburgh in 1975.

Belief in Science and in Christian Life

The Relevance of Michael Polanyi's
Thought for Christian Faith and Life

Edited by Thomas F. Torrance

This book is the exciting product of a conference of scientists and theologians. It reconsiders some basic Christian convictions in the context of the scientific revolution of our times and draws help from Michael Polanyi, one of the greatest scientist-philosophers of the age. Special attention is given to his work in restoring the fundamental role of belief in science, and also to his development of an integrative way of thinking which heals the cultural split between science, the arts and theology and brings to light a gradient of meaning rising through them all to the higher intangible levels of spiritual reality. No systematic account of Polanyi's philosophy of science is given, but illuminating discussion is offered throughout and helpful notes and comments on his basic concepts are added.

This is not a technical book in theology or science, but is designed for a wider public untrained in theology or science who seek a deeper understanding of the Christian Faith and want to grasp something of its inner reasonableness. The book will appeal to many people who look for rational support for their beliefs but instinctively know that this must come from the very foundations on which those beliefs rest. Here the reader will learn that even the most rigorous science shares some of the foundations of these beliefs.

NOTES FOR CONTRIBUTORS

Contributions and editorial correspondence should be sent to one of the editors: Rev. Dr A. I. C. Heron, New College, Mound Place, Edinburgh EH1 2LX; Rev. Dr J. Houston, University of Glasgow, 3 Southpark Terrace, Glasgow G12 8QQ or to Scottish Academic Press Ltd., 33 Montgomery Street, Edinburgh EH7 5JX.

Submission of an article is taken to imply that it has not previously been published in English, or is not being considered by another journal for publication in English. In the interests of authors, copyright is normally assigned to the Scottish Academic Press. The average length of articles is 5000 words. Although longer articles are accepted, those in excess of 10,000 words cannot be considered.

Contributions (articles and reviews) should be clearly typed in double spacing, and on one side of the paper only. The rule about double spacing applies also to footnotes, which should be used sparingly. Cross-references within the article offered should not be included.

Notes for the editors and instructions for the printer should be attached on separate sheets. Contributors should keep one copy of the typescript for use in correcting proofs.

Contributors from the United States may use U.S. spellings. Greek and Hebrew words need not be transliterated. Capitalisation should be kept to a minimum; and in particular should not be used in pronouns referring to the Deity.

First proofs of articles and reviews may be read and corrected by contributors, and should normally be returned to the organising editor within ten days of receipt. Correction should be confined to errors of the printer. More extensive correction can be made only with the concurrence of an editor. No proofs of reviews will be sent.

Contributors of articles and article reviews (but not of reviews) receive 10 free offprints. Extra copies may be bought according to an agreed scale of charges, provided that these are ordered at the time of returning corrected proofs.
