ASIA PAST & PRESENT

NEW 2016 TITLE

TEACHING JAPANESE POPULAR CULTURE

Edited by Deborah Shamoon and Chris McMorran
$25. 308 pp. Pb. 978-0-924304-78-1.

Interest in Japanese popular culture is high among students at all levels, driving enrollment in Japanese Studies programs. However, there has been little reflection on the pedagogy of teaching Japanese popular culture. Now is the time for critical reflection on teaching practices related to teaching about and with Japanese popular culture. This volume encompasses theoretical engagement with pedagogy of popular culture as well as practical considerations of curriculum design, lesson planning, assessment, and student outcomes. While the main focus is undergraduate teaching, there is also discussion of K–12 teaching, with authors discussing their experiences teaching Japanese popular culture not only in North America, but also in Australia, Germany, Singapore, and Japan, both in Japanese-language and English-language institutions.

ASIA PAST & PRESENT Series

NEW! TEACHING JAPANESE POPULAR CULTURE

Edited by Deborah Shamoon and Chris McMorran

"An incredibly valuable book ... might well be retitled 'Taking Japanese Popular Culture Seriously.' ... demonstrates how much the study of Japanese popular culture has matured over the last two decades."

— Susan J. Napier, Professor of Japanese Studies, Tufts University

"This pioneering collection on the pedagogy of Japanese pop offers practical advice as well as theoretical reflections on the opportunities and challenges of teaching with (and about) Japan's globalized media products. Instructors at all levels (from K-12 through university) and in all disciplines (including language teachers) will find this volume timely, stimulating, and thoroughly useful."

— William M. Tsutsui, President, Hendrix College, AR

"Two decades since 'cool Japan' began to attract widespread interest in the university classroom, resources on the teaching of Japan's popular culture remain scarce. This outstanding collection does much to fill this gap, offering insightful, hands-on approaches to help students engage critically with pop culture materials."

— Mark McLelland, Professor in the Sociology Program at the University of Wollongong

ISBN 978-0-924304-78-1. Paperback. 308 pp. List Price: $25 (AAS Member Price: $20).

Key Issues in Asian Studies

NEW! Understanding East Asia's Economic "Miracles" (updated and revised 2016 reprint)

Zhiqun Zhu

"Concise yet comprehensive, Zhiqun Zhu's book is the perfect introduction to the political economy of East Asia for undergraduate and advanced high school classes. Zhu's analysis of the economic 'miracles' of Japan, South Korea, China and Taiwan takes into account both domestic factors and the international environment, and is sensitive to the similarities as well as differences between the developmental experiences of these nations.

Zhu raises important related issues such as the connections between economic development and democratization, the relative economic contributions of the state and the market, and the portability of the East Asian developmental model. A glossary of abbreviations, timeline, and extensive bibliography add to the pedagogical values of this book."

Bibliography of Asian Studies

The Bibliography of Asian Studies to be hosted by EBSCO Information Services

The Bibliography of Asian Studies (BAS)—the single most important record of research and scholarly literature on East, Southeast, and South Asia written in Western languages—will now be available from EBSCO Information Services (EBSCO). The BAS will be accessible via the EBSCOhost® platform and contains nearly 900,000 records for articles published worldwide from 1971 to the present.

The Bibliography of Asian Studies covers a wide variety of journals, particularly those published in Asia that are not available anywhere else. Coverage spans most subjects with an emphasis in humanities and the social sciences. All entries are searchable by author, title, year of publication, subject, country, keyword and ISSN to allow users to find relevant results quickly.

Beyond the extensive coverage of journal articles, the BAS also uniquely covers Western-language chapters in edited volumes, conference proceedings, anthologies, Festschriften, and similar publications. The resource is updated quarterly with nearly 50,000 records added each year.

Mutual subscribers to the Bibliography of Asian Studies and EBSCO Discovery Service™ will receive automatic and seamless integration of BAS into their EDS experience.

About EBSCO Information Services:

EBSCO Information Services (EBSCO) is the leading discovery service provider for libraries worldwide with more than 8,000 discovery customers in over 100 countries. EBSCO Discovery Service™ (EDS) provides each institution with a comprehensive, single search box for its entire collection, offering unparalleled relevance ranking quality and extensive customization. EBSCO is also the preeminent provider of online research content for libraries, including hundreds of research databases, historical archives, point-of-care medical reference, and corporate learning tools serving millions of end users at tens of thousands of institutions. EBSCO is the leading provider of electronic journals & books for libraries, with subscription management for more than 360,000 serials, including more than 57,000 e-journals, as well as online access to more than 700,000 e-books. For more information, visit the EBSCO website at: www.ebsco.com. EBSCO Information Services is a division of EBSCO Industries Inc., a family owned company since 1944.

KEY ISSUES IN ASIAN STUDIES

NEW 2016 TITLE

Understanding East Asia's Economic "Miracles"

(updated & revised reprint)

by Zhiqun Zhu

"In this succinct and elegant book, Zhiqun Zhu shows how East Asian economies have taken different paths to success despite some shared features. East Asia's diverse but dynamic experience is valuable precisely because it demonstrates that developing nations need not follow a single approach to prosperity. An excellent book to assign for courses on Asia."

Ming Wan
Professor of Government and Politics
George Mason University

KEY ISSUES IN ASIAN STUDIES books are designed for use in undergraduate humanities and social science courses, as well as by advanced high school students and their teachers and anyone with an interest in Asia. "Key Issues" books introduce students to major cultural and historical themes and are designed to encourage classroom debate and discussion. The AAS publishes 2-3 "Key Issues" books each year.

Key Issues in Asian Studies

Japanese Literature: From Murasaki to Murakami

Marvin Marcus

Marcus's compelling interpretations of significant works of Japanese literature and their historical moments complement carefully selected passages of literary prose, poetry, and images from Japan's long literary and cultural history. This small gem of a book is essential for students, teachers, and general audiences interested in Japan and its long literary traditions."

NEW FROM INDIANA UNIVERSITY PRESS

Music of Azerbaijan
From Mugham to Opera
Aida Huseynova

This book traces the development of Azerbaijani art music from its origins in the Eastern, modal, improvisational tradition known as mugham through its fusion with Western classical, jazz, and world art music. Aida Huseynova places the fascinating and little-known history of music in Azerbaijan against the vivid backdrop of cultural life under Soviet influence, which paradoxically both encouraged and repressed the evolution of national musics and post-Soviet independence.

PROCEDURE FOR MANUSCRIPT SUBMISSION

Manuscripts of 8,000 to 10,000 words and any accompanying figures should be submitted electronically through the Editorial Manager online submission system (<http://www.editorialmanager.com/jas/>). If needed, the Editorial office can be reached via email: jas@journalofasianstudies.org or by phone: (949) 824-6521. Low-resolution images and illustrations are acceptable for the review process; all images, tables and figures should include titles or captions. Please note that in the event of publication, the author is responsible for acquiring high-resolution images along with permission to publish them.

All authors who wish to include figures should read and follow the Cambridge Artwork Guide, available at <https://journals.cambridge.org/action/stream?pageId=7848&level=2&menu=Authors&pageId=3608>.

Due to the volume of submissions, we cannot evaluate proposed abstracts or titles, only full submissions. The JAS does not do special issues.

See the AAS website (<https://www.asian-studies.org/Publications/JAS>), Cambridge Journals Online (<http://journals.cambridge.org/action/displayJournal?jid=JAS>), and Editorial Manager (<http://www.editorialmanager.com/jas/default.aspx>) for more information on the journal, types of work we publish, and sample articles.

REQUIREMENTS FOR MANUSCRIPT SUBMISSION

When preparing a manuscript, please note that JAS is committed to publishing articles based on in-depth, original research. Authors should also take care to address the interests of our broad, multidisciplinary readership by raising larger questions of interest that reach beyond their precise research specialties. Authors are encouraged to consult recent issues of JAS for guidance on style and formatting.

- Manuscripts submitted to JAS should not have been published elsewhere and should not be under review for publication elsewhere.
- Article manuscripts, including notes and references, should range between 8,000 and 10,000 words, or approximately thirty-five pages in length, and must include a 150 word abstract at the beginning of the document.
- Authors' names must be left off of the manuscript, as JAS engages in double-blind reviews.
- Please double-space manuscripts and use 12-point type with 1 inch margins including abstracts, notes, and references.
- Notes should be as few as possible and appear at the end of the text.
- Use parenthetical in-text citation, and author-date formatting for references per section 15 of the Chicago Manual of Style, 16th edition (Chicago: University of Chicago Press, 2010).
- Please use the following Romanization: Chinese: Pinyin; Japanese: Hepburn; Korean: McCune-Reischauer.

Articles in JAS represent neither the views of the Association for Asian Studies nor those of the JAS editors. The Editor is responsible for the final selection of content of JAS and reserves the right to reject any material deemed inappropriate for publication. Responsibility for opinions expressed and the accuracy of facts published in articles and reviews rests solely with the individual authors.

THE ONE OVER RULE AND OTHER THOUGHTS ON SUBMITTING TO THE JOURNAL OF ASIAN STUDIES

Jeffrey Wasserstrom

Editing the JAS is an exciting job but also a daunting job. It is exciting because so many fascinating pieces get sent in for consideration, but it is daunting because so few of these can be published. There is no magic formula used to determine which 25 or so of the well over 300 submissions we get in any given year end up being accepted, but over the course of my four years as Editor, I have come up with some rules of thumb. Since the Journal's Managing Editor Jennifer Munger and I are often asked questions by authors trying to assess their chances of having their article accepted, it seems worth spelling out some of these:

1) There are more pieces that qualify as the very best articles on Asia than we have room to publish. Our goal, therefore, is to select articles that are of very high quality and that, when taken together, make for individual issues and yearly volumes that seem likely to strike our readers as interesting and attractively varied.

2) The One Over Rule. In an ideal world, every JAS article would be accessible and appealing to all members of the Association for Asian Studies, the group that remains our primary target readership. More realistically, I am determined that nothing run under my watch will only be of interest to scholars working in a single discipline and on a single period or locale, and that nothing will only make sense to a small segment of the AAS membership, due to the terminology or formulae used. A lot of excellent articles are highly specialized and intended simply for others who are expert in an area, but there are many good journals where such work can be published. The JAS, by contrast, is an interdisciplinary general journal. To work for us, an article has to, at the very least, be something that scholars in two or three different disciplines will be able to understand easily and that will have the potential at least to interest readers working on neighboring countries, related topics, and on adjacent periods. Articles do not need to be comparative or interdisciplinary. They do need to have a broad as opposed to narrow aspect to them. Hence, the "one over rule," which means an ability to speak to someone in a field close to the author's own. An article by, say, an anthropologist working on Laos need not have any obvious appeal to a literary critic specializing in the study of Korea, but if this piece would have no chance of drawing the interest of a sociologist whose focus is Cambodia, we have a problem. Similarly, while that imagined Korean literature specialist does not have to write a piece that is certain to draw in an economist primarily concerned with India, there's a problem if Japanese studies scholars working in cultural studies do not think it speaks in any way to them. The same kind of thinking applies to periods as to places and disciplines.
