

State University, on leave from Kyunghee University, Seoul.

Syed S. Islam, University of Dhaka, was a visiting Fulbright scholar during the fall 1988 semester, department of political science, University of Iowa.

Dwight Waldo, visiting distinguished professor, department of public administration, Florida International University.

Huning Wang, department of international politics at Fudan University, was a visiting scholar for the fall 1988 semester at department of political science, University of Iowa.

Award Recipients

International Research & Exchange Board (IREX)

The following political scientists received grants from IREX in the spring 1988 selection.

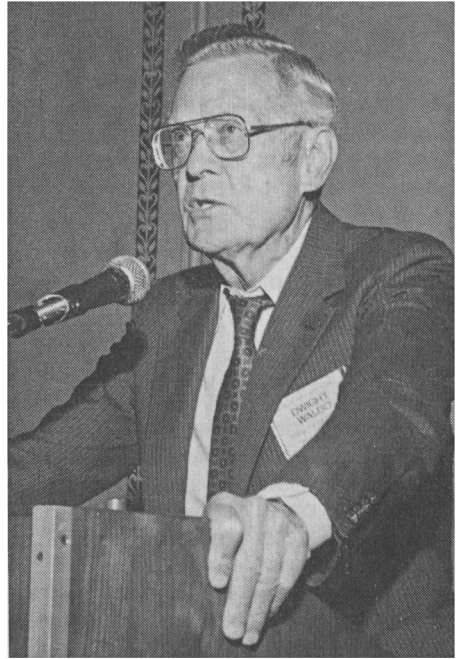

Grants for Collaborative Activities and New Exchanges

Jeffrey C. Alexander, department of politics and culture, UCLA; to attend and be one of the organizers of a conference of the international Sociological Association in Krakow on the topic of "Social Progress and Sociological Theory."

Henry Bienen, Center for International Studies, Princeton University; to invite Yugoslav scholar Anton Bebler from E. Kardelj University in Ljubljana to lecture on civil-military relations in the socialist and communist states of Europe and to give him the opportunity to participate in panels at the 1988 Convention of the American Political Science Association in Washington, D.C.

Travel Grants for Senior Scholars

David P. Forsythe, department of political science, University of Nebraska-Lincoln; to lecture on human rights and humanitarian affairs in Prague as guest of the Czechoslovak Academy of Sciences, as well as to explore the effects of "glasnost" in Czechoslovakia.

DWIGHT WALDO

Grants for Independent Short Term Travel

Steven Burg, department of political science, Brandeis University; to interview political elites in Yugoslav political centers of Belgrade, Zagreb, and Ljubljana to refine his understanding of the nature of current trends in Yugoslav politics. A special emphasis is given to exploring evidence of the trend toward peaceful democratization.

Jeffrey W. Hahn, department of political science, Villanova University; to do research on developing a collaborative study of public opinion regarding local politics in Moscow and to gather data in connection with ongoing research on Soviet electoral reform.

People in Political Science

Carol Hansen, The Johns Hopkins Foreign Policy Institute; to do research in four countries of Eastern Europe—Poland, Hungary, Czechoslovakia, and the German Democratic Republic—on the effects of the practice of 36-year-long U.S. policy of differentiation in Eastern Europe.

Roy Kim, department of international relations, Drexel University; to update ongoing research into Soviet involvement in Korea for his book Soviet Challenge in East Asia: Myths or Reality?

Paul Shoup, department of government and foreign affairs, University of Virginia; to interview lawyers and intellectuals in Yugoslavia on the role of Slovenia in Yugoslav politics to get a sense of the Slovenian experiment, its roots in past Slovenian experience with communism, including constitutional issues, and what this means for the rest of Yugoslavia.

For further information about IREX grants, write: IREX, 126 Alexander Street, Princeton, NJ 08540-7102.

Tinker Foundation

The Tinker Foundation, Inc., 55 East 59th Street, New York, NY 10022, restricts its activities exclusively to Ibero-American issues, stressing the social sciences, international relations, and selected natural resource development. Listed below are political scientists who receive Tinker Foundation support for 1989.

Visiting Professors

Those interested in contacting the Tinker Professors below should write to them directly at the institution of their appointment.

Carlos Huneeus Madge, associate professor, Institute of Political Science at the Catholic University of Chile, will spend the spring semester 1989 at Columbia University's department of political science.

Eduardo Ferrero Costa, professor in the law school at the Catholic University of Peru, will spend the spring semester 1989 at the University of Wisconsin at Madison's department of political science.

Field Research Grants, 1988-89

The following political scientists are listed under their institution of affiliation; names are followed by project titles and country destinations.

Council on Latin American Studies, Duke University

Felipe Aguero. Military Reform Legislation in Contemporary Spain. (Spain).

Chris Blake. The Impact of Redemocratization on Labor Union Leaders. (Argentina).

Cynthia Irvin. A Comparative Study of Spain's Herri Batasuna and Sinn Fein. (Spain).

Latin American Program, The Ohio State University

Sheldon Stanton. Impact of International Systematic Pressures Exerted on Spain Regarding NATO, and the Relationship Between the Domestic Political Environment and Foreign Policy Behavior. (Spain).

Latin American Area Center, University of Arizona

Suzanne Fiederlein. Comparative Study of the Efforts of U.S., Mexican, and Costa Rican Governments to Formulate and Implement Refugee Policies. (Mexico).

Patricia Manning. Liberation Theology and Social Change in Nicaragua. (Nicaragua).

Paul Sondrol. Cross-national Analysis of Methods of Authoritarian Control in Cuba and Paraguay. (Paraguay).

Center for Latin American Studies, University of California, Berkeley

Ollie A. Johnson. Sources of Domestic

Stability in Brazil, 1945–64 and 1979–88. (Brazil).

Deborah Norden. The Argentine Dilemma. (Argentina).

Center for Iberian and Latin American Studies, University of California, San Diego

Renate Adloff. Pesticide Policy Change. (Mexico).

Geoffrey Land. Nicaraguan Refugees in Costa Rica. (Costa Rica).

Cynthia Lopez-Ballieu. Pesticide Policy Change. (Mexico).

Sharyn O'Halloran. Debt Policies in Brazil. (Brazil).

Daniel Wolf. The Development of Political Competition in Nicaragua. (Nicaragua).

Center for Latin American Studies, University of Pittsburgh

Robert Fries. Determinants of Labor Supply in Guatemala's Cotton Industry—Market Forces versus Non-market Forces. (Guatemala).

Brooke Harlowe. Title Security and Access to Markets: Flower Growers in the Bayambe Region. (Ecuador).

Jose Luis Mendez-Martinez. The Decentralization Process in Peru During the Government of Alan Garcia. (Peru).

Katherine MacKinnon Scott. Determinants of Savings and Loan Cooperative Formation in Ecuador. (Ecuador).

Sarah Wheeler. Factors Influencing Women in Paid Labor. (Costa Rica).

Hugo Zegarra. Effects of Internal War and Economic Crisis on the Legitimation Process of the Government. (Nicaragua).

Ibero-American Studies Program, University of Wisconsin-Madison

Jeff Cason. The Politics of Export Promotion of Manufacturers in Brazil. (Brazil).

Judy Lawton Loyal. Urban Social Movements: A Comparative Study of Political Participation in "New" and Traditional Neighborhood Associations. (Argentina).

Naeyoung Lee. The Political Economy of Industrial Development: The Mexican Auto Industry. (Mexico).

Other Awards and Honors

Susan E. Clark and Gary L. Gaile, University of Colorado at Boulder, have been awarded a grant of $72,313 from the Economic Development Administration of the Department of Commerce for their study "Assessing The Characteristics and Effectiveness of Market-Based Urban Economic Development Strategies."

Richard Flathman, Johns Hopkins University, has won the Elaine and David Spitz Book Prize for 1989 for The Philosophy and Politics of Freedom (University of Chicago Press, 1987).

Glenn R. Fong, assistant professor of political science, The University of Illinois at Chicago, has received a research grant from the Social Science Research Council for research on the domestic impact of U.S.-Japanese competition in high technology.

John A. Gardiner, Barry S. Rundquist, and Dick Simpson of the University of Illinois at Chicago, have been awarded a grant of $335,215 to study "Public Budgeting in Chicago."

Gary J. Jacobsohn, Woodrow Wilson Professor of Government, Williams College, has received a 1989–90 NEH Fellowship Award for his project, "Alternative Pluralisms: A Comparative Analysis of Israeli and American Constitutionalism."

Isaac Kramnick, Richard J. Schwartz Professor of Government at Cornell University, has been awarded the prize for the best article published in the William and Mary Quarterly in 1988. Kramnick's article "The 'Great National Discussion': The Discourse of Politics in 1787," appeared in the January issue. This award is made annually by the National Society, Daughters of Colonial Wars, and carries a cash prize of $200.

People in Political Science

Allen Schick, professor of public policy at the School of Public Affairs, University of Maryland, has been named winner of the American Society of Public Administration's Dwight Waldo Award for outstanding contributions to the professional literature of the public administration field.

Alec Stone, doctoral candidate, department of political science, University of Washington, has received a fellowship from the Camargo Foundation to complete a dissertation entitled, "The Birth of Judicial Politics in Europe: The French Constitutional Council in Comparative Perspective."

In Memoriam

Donald Sumner Hecock

Donald Sumner Hecock, Emeritus Professor of Political Science, Wayne State University, died in Bradenton, Florida, on February 20, 1989, after a short illness. He was born in Elyria, Ohio, on December 16, 1906, the only son of John E. and Ethel Sumner Hecock. After graduation from Elyria High School, he received a bachelors degree from Ohio Wesleyan University, a Masters from The Ohio State University, and a doctorate from Syracuse University. In 1936, Hecock joined the political science faculty at Wayne State University in Detroit. During his 33 years with that institution he served in many capacities, including director of the public administration program and as associate dean of the College of Liberal Arts. He had overseas assignments in India, Indonesia, and Pakistan. He co-authored a book entitled Ballot Position and Voter's Choice. Since retirement in 1969 he and his wife have resided in Detroit Lakes, Minnesota, and in Bradenton, Florida. He had life-long interests in stamp collecting and gardening. He took pride in the fact that he had lived in, or visited, all 50 U.S. states and more than 40 foreign countries.

In addition to his wife, Ethel, he is survived by a sister and sons John Edwin of Wauseon, Ohio, Richard Douglas of Stillwater, Oklahoma, and four grandchildren.

Dale Vinyard
Wayne State University