

April 1987

Special feature

Michael P. Breen on contemporary paradigms in syllabus design

language teaching

The international abstracting journal for language teachers and applied linguists

Cambridge University Press

language teaching

The international abstracting journal for language teachers and applied linguists

(formerly Language Teaching and Linguistics: Abstracts)

Editorial Board

Valerie Kinsella

J. L. M. Trim

Michael Hammond

Rob Hirons

Editorial correspondence:

Compiler and Editor

Director, Centre for Information on Language and Research (CILT)

Research Information Officer, CILT

Consultant, English Language and Literature Division,
The British Council

Mrs Valerie Kinsella, 63 Long Ashton Road, Long
Ashton, Bristol BS18 9HW

Produced jointly by

The Centre for Information on Language Teaching & Research (CILT)

Regent's College

Inner Circle

Regent's Park

London NW1 4NS

01-486 8221

Library open 10.00–17.00, Mon–Fri

The British Council

English Language Services Department

10 Spring Gardens

London SW1A 2BN

01-930 8466

(Visits to the English Teaching Information Centre by appointment only)

© Cambridge University Press 1987

Aims and features language teaching is a compact digest of current thinking on the theoretical and practical aspects of learning and teaching languages. It aims to help people concerned with the subject to keep up to date with the latest findings with minimum expenditure of time and money. It aims to encourage cross-fertilisation of ideas between those concerned with the teaching of different foreign languages (e.g. French, German, English) as well as between practising teachers, applied linguists and educational researchers.

In addition to over 130 abstracts in English in each issue, there is a specially commissioned state-of-the-art survey article on an important aspect of language learning or teaching, which features a full bibliography.

There are also brief annotations of recent publications, together with a list of books received, information on where to find substantial bibliographies on particular topics, and details of research projects in various countries.