Insurance of Environmental Risks: Recent Developments

By Werner Pfennigstorf

This report, reprinted from 1982 ABA Environmental Law Symposium, gives an overview of federal laws and regulations that have been introduced recently, or are about to be introduced in the near future, to govern liability insurance; furthermore, it surveys the response of the insurance industry to the risk of environmental liability generally and to the new federal insurance requirements specifically.

Deadly Force: What We Know

By William A. Geller

This study, reprinted from 10 Journal of Police Science and Administration (1982), surveys the empirical research in several dozen studies of police-involved shootings. After examining the patterns that have been found on the frequency, nature, correlates, and control of incidents in which police shoot civilians or are shot by civilians, Geller turns his attention to what is not yet known and suggests future research needs.
